Truth About the Pact.
We Don't Take Advice.
Women in Business.
Work Starts at Last.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

PRESUMABLY, the naval pact, handed to this country by France, Britain and Japan, will be signed by the Senate under pressure. It is called a "peace pact." When did we threaten anybody's peace?

The fact is that the United States is to be bamboozled into giving up the right to manage its own affairs, because Britain cannot afford to compete with us in expenditures, but can outwit our weakminded representatives.

DID GREAT BRITAIN, before 1914, when she had the money, ask our advice about HER navy?

She did not. She built the greatest navy in the world, openly announcing her intention to have a fighting fleet as powerful as any other two fleets combined. She had it.

Now, she can't afford it. Uncle Sam can afford it. But his governing mind is provincial, stands in awe of the British, yields to their demands.

That's the unpleasant truth.

MRS. EDISON wants women to go back to the home because they "lose prestige in business."

"Deep down in her heart, every woman wants a home," the distinguished lady told her hearers.

That is true, but every home needs a man to support it and protect it.

Between "losing prestige" and washing dishes and clothes for an incompetent male, the intelligent woman decides to relinquish a little prestige.

If every one could find a husband like Thomas A. Edison, the problem would be easy.

LINDBERGH gives the League of Nations transit section detailed suggestions for aviation. Standardization of airways, uniform marking and signals, a comprehensive meteorological and radio reporting system, uniform regulations for clearing are suggested.

THE RECOMMENDATIONS are sound, but the people are too busy to pay attention to recommendations, from no matter how high a source.

Except in California and a few other states, we have not been able to agree on a code of automobile signals.

In the great state of New York, for instance, when a man puts his hand out and wiggles it, you don't know whether he will turn to the left, to the right, stop dead, or back up.

CONAN DOYLE'S family expect messages from him, and they will get messages, many, but they will not come from Conan Doyle.

Mediums, sincere or fraudulent, cannot invent anything from the dead that sounds plausible.

Merely to say "Mamma is very happy," or "Papa sends his love" is not convincing.

Men cannot really imagine a spirit life. Therefore, they cannot invent any reasonable message from a soul separated from its body.

WORK HAS actually started on the Boulder Dam, good news.

Probably, the power and water, in the end, will be owned by private individuals, paying a small sum to the government in proportion to cost, peddling the power and water to the public for all the traffic will bear.

But, at least, the water and the power will be used. That is a start.

LATER, if the people have brains enough to run their own affairs as efficiently as the corporations that exploit them, they will know what to do about Boulder Dam, Muscle Shoals and other properties. Once men did not own even their own bodies or lives. They do not yet own their natural resources. But they will, some day.

IN THE Imperial Hotel at Prague, Czecho-Slovakia, ingenious thieves stole $690,000 worth of jewelry from a Chicago lady. A $290,000 pearl necklace was included.

You could not persuade the lady that she is just as well off without the jewelry as she was with it. As well say to a peacock:

"You don't really need that tail."

Or to a lady dancing in Senegambia's hot sunlight:

"You don't need that nose ring."

SENATOR SWANSON, of Virginia, who accepts the theory that foreign nations should be allowed to tell us what ships we may have, says that rejecting the pact would bring upon us the world's enmity, and we should "lose moral leadership by rejecting that pact."

We should lose more than that, if war found us unprepared.

There are many things more important than moral leadership, and they include airplanes, submarines and fast cruisers.

Senate Fights Secrecy on Treaty

AWAITS VOTE FOR MORE DETAILS

Hale, Foe of Ratification, Set to Make 10,000-Word Speech Denouncing Pact

WASHINGTON, July 9.—(AP.)—Advocates of the McKellar resolution, calling on President Hoover for the international correspondence leading up to negotiation of the London naval treaty, renewed their arguments at the opening of the Senate today while administration leaders pressed for an early vote.

After a bare quorum of 49 senators had answered the rollcall, Senator Black (Dem.), of Alabama, called for adoption of the resolution on the ground it involved a right of the Senate and was not a question of publicity.

CONCERNED OVER DELAY

Treaty proponents were not so much concerned over the document resolution as over the delay it might cause in reaching a vote on the treaty itself.

Senator Hale (Rep.), of Maine, chairman of the Naval Committee, was waiting for a vote on the McKellar proposal with a 10,000-word speech against the treaty. He hoped to make the address before the day was over.

Black declared:

"This question of the informal negotiations transcends in importance the question of the treaty itself. I voted for a favorable report on the treaty in

Chicago Prepares To Welcome Byrd

CHICAGO, July 9.—(INS.)—Holiday flags and bunting will decorate every building in the downtown loop district here Friday when Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd arrives, according to an order of the Building Managers' Association of Chicago.

The Admiral will be escorted at the head of a parade through the downtown district. Plans have been made for 100 airplanes to soar over the parade.

FIGHT OPENS TO END TAG 'FIXING'

Motor Organizations Cite Traffic Hazards Involved When 'Pull' Bars Penalty

With 46 per cent of the offenders against automobile and traffic laws escaping any penalty in Pittsburgh during the last year, the Pittsburgh Motor Club and other organizations have joined in an aggressive campaign to curb the reckless driver and to check the operations of the political "fixer."

It is asserted that failure to properly enforce the law is the direct result of the interference of persons with political influence, who have obtained immunity for careless drivers and those who violate the parking ordinance.

CITE HARVEST OF DEATH

A harvest of death on the highways has followed a long season of lax enforcement of the law, it is declared by officials of the automobile organizations, and the number of casualties is constantly mounting. A survey recently made by the Better Traffic Committee has laid the responsibility for this condition at the door of the reckless driver and the persons who park their cars on crowded thoroughfares where pedestrians and other drivers find their vision obscured by the jam of vehicles.

Two hundred thousand traffic tags were issued to the police last

LEAPS TO DEATH FROM BRIDGE

Dan McCaffrey, 42, well known in Lawrenceville, parked his auto on the Bloomfield Bridge today, stepped from the car and said to his wife:

"I'll be back in a minute. Wait."

As he walked over to the bridge rail, he turned and waved to her, then leaped off the bridge, 150 feet, to the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks.

He died immediately, his body crushed.

His wife, Mrs. Ethel McCaffrey, could not suggest a motive.

McCaffrey lived at 4218 Geneva street, moving there recently from the 4700 block in Liberty avenue. He was active in Lawrenceville politics.

POLICE CARRYING THROAT-SLASHED JIM

McNab, found with his throat slashed, on his way to a hospital after the body of his slain wife was discovered in a roughly-made grave beneath a porch in rear of the house.

Police Moving Self-Slashed Throat Victim

HIDDEN BODY FOUND, MAN ADMITS KILLING

Knocked Her Down Stairs in Fight, Concealed Victim's Remains Under Porch

The body of a murdered woman declared to be the common-law wife of Jim McNab, 54, of 159 Wabash avenue, West End, was found today partially buried under the rear porch of his home.

Police believe she was murdered.

A few minutes later McNab was found lying in his bedroom with his throat slashed. He made this statement, police reported:

"We had an argument and I hit her. She fell down the stairs. I left her there all night and when I found her the next day she was dead.

"That night I buried her under the house."

DEATH CAUSE DECIDED

An autopsy performed by Coroner's Physician J. W. McMeans revealed that the woman had died from a fracture of the bones of the left side of the face and from stab wounds in the neck.

Rushed to the South Side Hospital, McNab gave detectives there a more complete story of the woman's death.

He told of his horror at finding she had died after he had struck her.

When she fell downstairs, he

Doyle's Message To Humanity

A Dialogue With the Late Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, Recorded by George Sylvester Viereck.

(Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.)

SCENE: The library of Conan Doyle. There are volumes in English, French and German, tomes on occultism, para-psychology and para-physics, offshoots of the new science dealing with the things "beyond," the laws of psychology and physics. Like an army, Conan Doyle's own books in the uniform of many tongues are entrenched on his shelves. A door leads from his study to a porch overlooking Sussex for miles.

PRESENT: Conan Doyle, the interviewer, later Lady Doyle and a mechanic.

Viereck: Who is the greatest mentality of our time?

Doyle: Sir Oliver Lodge.

Viereck: Is there anyone in America who is the equal of Sir Oliver Lodge?

Doyle: There are some eminent scientists in America, but no one who possesses the great spiritual insight of Sir Oliver. Hyslop, the most notable investigator of the spiritual world in the United States, died too soon. Nevertheless, there is in America a marked uprising of the spirit which reveals itself in the fact that men like Henry Ford, the most amazing master of material the world has ever known, is interested in metaphysics.

Viereck: Do you believe in reincarnation like Henry Ford?

Doyle: I believe that the soul is born and reborn many times. I am not sure that it ever dons again the human form after it has discarded that garment, but my thoughts incline that way.

Viereck: Ford told me that an inner voice, resembling the spirit mentor of Socrates, guides him in all his decisions.

Doyle: I read with pleasure the news of Henry Ford's spiritual progress. Sooner or later I am sure he will land in our camp.

Viereck: Do you consider Ford a great man?

Doyle: He is a great personality.

Viereck: Why?

Doyle: Because he is uncorrupted by his millions. No man can tell if he is incorruptible until such wealth is thrust upon him.

Viereck: Ford said to me that the object of life is experience. There is, he thinks, no loss in the bookkeeping of the soul because even loss is gain of experience.

Doyle: The aim of life is not experience but spirituality. Experience may help us to obtain spirituality. Again it may

HOLDUP FAILS DOWNTOWN

A young man tried to hold up the Thom McAn shoe store, at 411 Smithfield street, at noon today, and failed. He was captured after a chase over Smithfield street.

He identified himself as Adolph Brocola, 23, of Napoleon street, Beechview.

Brocola and the clerk, Stanley Zebo, 28, of Troy Hill road, were alone in the store. Brocola had bought a pair of shoes and Zebo had handed him his old shoes, wrapped up, when Brocola flashed a revolver and chased the clerk to the back of the store.

A door connects the McAn store with the Penn Hosiery Company. Brocola ran into Smithfield street.

Zebo, Towmash and other employes of the hosiery company gave chase.

Patrolman Harry Cashdollar, directing traffic in Smithfield street, joined the chase and caught Brocola at Diamond and Smithfield street.

Chicago Teachers Still Without Pay

CHICAGO, July 9.—(INS.)—Efforts to raise $6,100,000 in cash to meet the payroll for 13,000 unpaid school teachers continued today with the main hope for relief based on a plan to market $13,000,000 in tax anticipation warrants. The payroll is now two weeks overdue.

Little progress was reported last night after conferences between Board of Education members, bankers and city officials.

Foreman Loses Life Saving Tunnel Crew

NEW YORK, July 9.—(INS.)—A young foreman lost his life here today saving his men in the collapse of a water duct shaftway, 750 feet underground.

Eleven were injured, but 28 escaped.

Michael Kelly, 27, newly promoted "walking boss," was crushed under a half-ton boulder as he shoved and hurried his men out of the collapsing tunnel, being built to pipe water under the East River to Queens.

BLUE LAW FIGHT OPENS IN PHILA.

PHILADELPHIA, July 9.—(AP.)—Several prominent Philadelphians were expected to appear late today before City Council's committee on blue laws to tell why they favor repeal or continuation of the statute of 1794.

Their testimony will be given at the first meeting of the committee to ascertain public sentiment on the question.

About a hundred persons have been invited to attend. Letters have been received from some of them, giving their views.

The committee plans to hold other meetings and the testimony will be presented to the Legislature next January. Mayor Mackey, speaking at the organization meeting of the committee recently, urged repeal of the blue laws.

Queen Marie, Ileana Go to Summer Home

BUCHAREST, Rumania, July 9.—(AP.)—Queen Marie, with Princess Ileana, today left for the summer palace at Sinaia, where they will visit with Queen Helen and the Grand Viovode of Alba Julia, Michael. King Carol and Prince Nicholas accompanied them to the station.

Bowman, Pitt Head, Back, Gains 18 Pounds

Chancellor John G. Bowman appeared on the Pitt campus this morning as unexpectedly as he had left it three months ago. He browsed around the Cathedral of Learning, smiling. He brought back from Europe with him 18 additional pound—weight that his physician had said he needed when he had been ordered to rest.

The Pitt chief executive exclaimed:

"I became restless in Norway. It seemed no more than three people in all that North country speak English, and I'm not very familiar with Norwegian.

"Too, the sun sets there at 11 at night, there's a two-hour twilight and it rises again at one in the morning. No matter what time you go to bed, you go in daylight. So I decided to come back."

Expressing his pleasure at the progress of the Cathedral of Learning, Dr. Bowman said:

"I expect it to go through on schedule and be completed in 1931. It has been going along very nicely. When the buildings for which we have the money, or have been promised, go up around the main building, I believe there will be no set of educational buildings in the world to compare with it.

"All this will be made possible by the original idea of dramatizing the educational, as in the Cathedral of Learning. Without it, other developments will be impossible.

"I don't hesitate to predict that they will be all built, paid for and endowed within a reasonable time."

EATON OFFERS TO BUY STOCK IN STEEL MERGER SUIT

DENIES ACTS HOLD-UP PLAN

Campbell Refuses Proposal, Thinks Stock Worth More; Temporarily on Record

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 9.—(AP)—For reply to a charge that he was holding up construction of a new $12,000,000 sheet steel mill by blocking merger of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company with the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, Cyrus Eaton, Cleveland capitalist offered in court today to buy 100,000 shares of Youngstown Company common stock at $120 a share.

The offer was refused by James A. Campbell, veteran chairman of the Youngstown company.

EATON MAKES OFFER

Harry J. Crawford, of Cleveland, one of the plaintiff's attorneys, made the offer for Eaton and told Campbell that if it was accepted "you can start work tomorrow."

Judge David G. Jenkins "against better judgment," allowed the offer to stand temporarily in the record, although former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, chief attorney for the defense, objected to it as not pertaining to the suit. Crawford declared it would fit into the record later.

The charge that Eaton was holding back development by merger opposition was made by Campbell from the stand yesterday.

AMENDMENT FILED

An amendment to the suit was filed today by the plaintiffs Myron C. Wick, Jr., and the International Shares Corporation, the latter controlled by Eaton, alleging that sale and dissolution of the Youngstown company were not authorized by the holders of shares entitling them to exercise at least two-thirds of the voting power of such proposal.

Other papers filed by the plaintiffs at the same time raised the question of the constitutionality of the new corporation act, under which the defendants, the two steel firms, claim validity of the merger, which was voted by stockholders April 8, 1930.

Crawford finished his cross-examination of Campbell in little more than an hour after court opened, and turned the witness over to Attorney Baker for direct examination. Campbell was placed on the stand by the plaintiffs as a hostile witness, and for that reason was cross-examined first.

Over the objections of counsel, Campbell was allowed to recount his life history.

TELLS OF INLAND DEAL

Campbell explained how negotiations for merger with Inland Steel were dropped.

The significance attached to the failed Inland merger grows out of Baker's charge that the Eaton interests opposed the merger with Bethlehem because they desired a merger with Inland.

Baker asked how H. G. Dalton, of Cleveland, happened to go with Campbell to New York for a second meeting with Grace.

Dalton, the Eaton interests claim in the suit, was not qualified to negotiate for Youngstown Sheet and Tube.

committee. I expect to vote for it in the Senate. I shall vote, however, if a motion is made to that effect, to postpone a vote until the rights of the Senate have been recognized and respected."

AMENABLE TO CONGRESS

The Alabaman contended that the President is not the "custodian of the files in the State Department, also that the secretary of state is responsible to Congress and not to the chief executive.

Senator McKellar (Dem.), of Tennessee, author of the document resolution and an opponent of the treaty, placed in the record a letter from Mrs. William Cumming Story, former president of the Daughters of the American Revolution, complimenting his opposition to the pact.

She wrote that she was sending letters to all senators, urging delay in ratification.

Lampert, Wisconsin Congressman, Hurt

CHICAGO HEIGHTS, Ill., July 9.—(INS.)—Congressman Florian Lampert, of Oshkosh, Wis., was recovering today from injuries received when his automobile collided with a coal truck two miles east of here.

Gifford Pinchot today is at his home in Milford awaiting the arrival of his chiefs-of-staff to plan the fall battle, while the Philadelphia war board is studying a way to "p[ull] go of the bear's tail" as typified by Francis Shunk Brown's appeal to the Supreme Court to throw out the Luzerne County vote because ballots were perforated to prevent fraud.

County Commissioner C. C. McGovern, field marshal on the western front, and former Judge Frank I. Gollmar, Allegheny County chairman of Pinchot's primary campaign, were expected in Milford today for an over-night visit.

Pinchot leaders from Philadelphia and up-state counties are scheduled to visit the former governor later in the week.

Brown and the war board are said to realize now that the throwing out of Luzerne County ballots would not gain the coveted nomination and are preparing to let the case before the Supreme Court die aborning.

PARIS, July 9.—(AP.)—V. Rault, former French prefect and ex-president of the League of Nations commission governing the Saar basin, died here today.

He had played a prominent part in direction of the Saar, to settle the political status of which France and Germany are trying to make arrangements eliminating the necessity of a plebiscite in 1935.

MEARS SELECTS MAIL FLIER

NEW YORK, July 9.—(AP.)—Henry J. Brown, Cleveland airmail flier, signed a contract today to pilot John Henry Mears around the world in a race against time.

Mears said the plane would be flown to Detroit tomorrow for a final check there, then to Hartford for an engine inspection, and that the race to beat the world-girdling record of the dirigible Graf Zeppelin probably would start within 10 days.

Fred Melchior, Junkers' pilot, was first selected for the world flight by Mears, but he withdrew last week.

Brown is 30 years old, married, has two children. He went to the airmail service from the Army, and has more than 5,000 hours in the air.

MT. PLEASANT DOCTOR, NURSE IN SEA CRASH

Two Believed Drowned With 3 Others When German Plane Falls in Baltic

BERLIN, July 9.—(AP.)—Two Americans, Miss Ruth Patricia Northrop, 25, a nurse, and Dr. John L. Burkholder, of Mount Pleasant, Pa., were believed to have been drowned with three other passengers in the capsizing of the German flying boat D-864, which made a forced landing off the coast of Denmark in a rough sea yesterday.

The flying boat left Stettin, Germany, yesterday afternoon in the Kalmar Stockholm Service. A gale came up and crumpled the left wing, forcing the pilot to make an emergency landing in the sea near the Island of Bornholm, Denmark.

THREE SAVED

The pilot, mechanic and one passenger were rescued by the Danish ship Maja, which had taken the plane in tow, but the other five passengers disappeared in the sea when the plane capsized. Efforts to rescue them were made by several other boats. The captain of one said his crew attempted to bring Miss Northrop aboard by hooking into the lifebelt she was wearing. The girdle of the lifebelt, he reported, broke and the woman disappeared.

WIDELY KNOWN DOCTOR

MT. PLEASANT, Pa., July 9.—Dr. John L. Burkholder, 30, was widely known in Westmoreland County, being on the staff of the Frick Memorial Hospital and physician for W. J. Rainey, Inc., He had been touring Europe for two months. Miss Patricia F. Northrop was dietitian at the hospital here for two years. She returned to her home in Philadelphia a year ago.

LEADERS PRESS FOR REMOVAL OF HUSTON

Call Upon Hoover to Force Republican Chairman Out As Campaign Time Nears

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Congressional pressure on President Hoover for the retirement or removal of Claudius Huston as chairman of the Republican National Committee increased today, on the eve of the Republican chieftains' meeting here tomorrow.

A stream of political callers poured through the President's offices, urging action to prevent further party embarrassment and confusion in the face of the oncoming campaign.

Representative Will R. Wood (Rep.), of Indiana, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee and of the Congressional Campaign Committee, on emerging from the White House, said:

"I've been a friend of Chairman Huston's for many years. I consider him a most traduced man, and I think it's a shame that he is in the situation he is. However, there is no use in his trying to vindicate himself at the expense of the Republican party."

Earl S. Kinsley, Republican committeeman from Vermont, who was quoted from his home as saying he had been offered the chairmanship, also was a White House caller. He denied ever making the statements attributed to him and asserted he was not a candidate.

Senators Glenn, (Rep.), of Illinois, and Walcott, (Rep.), of Connecticut, who have been among the Republican "Young Guard" urging Huston's retirement, also saw the President, as did James Francis Burke, former secretary of the national committee.

Huston remained noncommittal, standing on this statement:

"I have nothing to say."

Ohio Closes Bank, Cashier Arrested

LANCASTER, O., July 9.—(AP.)—The Farmers and Merchants Bank at Amanda, eight miles from here, was closed by state bank examiners who told county authorities a shortage of $45,000 had been discovered in the accounts.

Prosecuting Attorney R. S. Cunningham said he had been ordered by bank examiners to arrest Clyde Barr, cashier of the bank, for a quarter of a century, on charges of embezzlement. Barr, authorities said, was in custody shortly after the bank closed, but charges had not been filed.

Hotel Man Killed In Saloon Gun Duel

DETROIT, July 9.—(AP.)—A man identified as Louis Candea, former hotel proprietor, was shot to death in a saloon on West Jefferson avenue in Encorse at 5 a. m. today. The slayer escaped.

John Belford, owner of the place, said that Candea quarreled with an unidentified man and that the other man beat him to the draw. Belford was wounded in the hand.

Madison Man Picked To Lead Optimists

DOYLE'S GARDEN TO BE TOMB

LONDON, July 9.—(AP.)—Sir Arthur Conan Doyle will be buried on Friday in the garden of his home at Crowborough, Sussex, near the outdoor study where the creator of Sherlock Holmes spent many days devising plots of his stories.

Lady Conan Doyle and the family, in choosing the site of the tomb, said they wished the funeral to take place within the grounds of the estate. There will be no church ritual. The burial ceremony will be conducted entirely at the side of the grave.

The ceremony will be open to "any sympathizers who may enter the grounds and attend the funeral."

A memorial service will be held in the Albert Hall, London, on Sunday by two London spiritualist societies.

Many believers hope that at this meeting the spirit of Sir Arthur will communicate with them. Several prominent spiritualists will speak.

WIRE FIRES TROLLEY, 7 HURT

Car Riders in Panic as Light Coil Fails and Flames Sweep About Them

Seven passengers were injured during a panic on a Crosstown-Bedford avenue trolley car today when the trolley wire, burned in two by a light wire which fell across it, sent flames shooting through the car at Bedford avenue and Duff street.

Eugene Walker, 17, Negro, of 4002 Willow street, leaped through a window during the excitement, suffering bruises and lacerations, according to the Duquesne Light Company report.

WIRE FALLS

Two light company workmen were hoisting a wire with timbers at the plant of the Entress Brick Company, 2406 Bedford avenue, according to the report, when the wire fell on the trolley wire, causing a shower of sparks within and outside the car.

Several passengers were hurt clambering off the car. Five, suffering from lacerations and bruises, were treated by a physician and sent home. The two other injured did not require medical attention.

OTHERS HURT

In addition to Walker those reported injured were: T. S. Ricker, 45, of 703 Armandale street; Robert Harris, 38, Negro, of 2833 Wylie avenue; Mrs. Mary Miller, 55, of 2634 Belova street; Walter Flowers, 27, of 1111 Berkshire avenue; George Richardson, 67, Negro, 2617 Wylie avenue; Mrs. Ellen Allen, 50, Negro, 2616 Wylie avenue; Mrs. Carrie Parker, 1518 Sedgwick street.

year and it is recorded that 80 per cent of these were used. The records of the Traffic Court and the city treasurer, however, show that only a small fraction of these violators are penalized. While many tags are ignored, it is pointed out that nearly 40 per cent or more than 60,000 tags are not heard from because political influence has been brought to bear and the offenders escape punishment.

SEES ONLY ONE REMEDY

John M. Rice, president of the Pittsburgh Motor Club, which has submitted a resolution to Council pleading for strict enforcement of the motor laws, said:

"We believe the remedy is in upholding the hands of the police, who seem to be making an earnest effort to bring violators to justice. The first step in supporting the police is to remove the interfering hand of the 'fixer.' When this is done, we can look for more rigid enforcement and fewer accidents."

Police arrested 24 more motorists during the past 24 hours in the drive to enforce traffic laws.

Street Car, Auto Crash, Injuring Girl

Harriet Mossburg, 15, of Cliff street, North Braddock, was in Braddock General Hospital today, suffering from injuries of the back received when an automobile in which she was riding was struck by a street car at Thirteenth street, North Braddock, last night. Her brother, Charles Mossburg, the driver, escaped injury.

John Zakhar, 64, of 264 Seventeenth avenue, Homestead, today was in Homestead Hospital with injuries suffered when struck by an automobile at Eighth and McClure streets, Homestead, last night.

Ohio Police, Firemen Lose Pension Fight

ALLIANCE, O., July 9.—After a three-year fight, Alliance police and firemen are without pension and indemnity protection. City Council, charging that the employes of the two departments had used "sharp-witted lawyers to help them frame the measures, repealed the ordinance.

The action was taken to reduce estimates for the 1931 budget now being drafted.

Society Girl Dies, Thrown from Horse

CHICAGO, July 9.—(AP.)—Miss Helen Blair, 17, daughter of the socially prominent Mr. and Mrs. William McCormick Blair of Lake Bluff, was thrown from a horse and fatally injured on the Blair estate late today. She died at a Lake Forest hospital. Miss Blair had attended Miss Walker's school near Hartford, Conn.

Arthur Conan Doyle's Message to Humanity

not. It may leave us sodden sensualists and gluttons. If you take experience right it makes you a better man. If wrong, you set your face backward on the road of the soul's progress.

Viereck: Ford believes that every living thing has a soul. You told me that the little fairies have no souls.

Doyle: No I think they are like plants or insects. Something between the two. They are not part of the world intelligence.

Viereck: What evidence have you to substantiate your claim that fairies actually exist?

Doyle: The evidence which I have presented in my book, "The Coming of the Fairies," is very strong. I show photographs of the fairies from several different sources.

Viereck: Photographs may be retouched or there may have been another picture on the plate from the previous exposure.

Doyle: I had the negatives examined by the kodak people and other experts to make quite sure there was no fake. I do not forget my scientific training when I cross the threshold of the spirit world. There is no reason why one should lose his common sense in investigating the spirit world.

Viereck: I still cannot quite reconcile myself to the doctrine that the poor fairies, if they exist, have no souls. You yourself speak of a world intelligence. Don't you think of that intelligence as God? Pantheism, which says God is everywhere, seems to be the faith of many enlightened men. I have talked with some of the great personalities of the world—men like Shaw, Einstein and Hauptmann, the great German poet. All these men seem to feel that there is such a thing as a world brain.

Doyle: I am not satisfied with this vague pantheism. I am tired of being fed on words, words, words. The human soul wants concrete individual manifestations of God. I find these manifestations in spiritualism. It is possible that the earth itself may be alive. Perhaps you have seen my story which deals with this subject? But all this is too fantastic, too remote. Spiritualism is nearer and more real.

Viereck: How real?

Doyle: Real enough to form a party controlling one quarter to a half million votes in England. We founded the party in order to end the persecution and the martyrdom of mediums. We addressed the Liberal, the Conservative and the Labor Party in the last election. We received answers from all. The reply from the Liberals was the most satisfactory. If they had carried the country in the last election they would have given us a royal commission to investigate spiritualism and the persecution of mediums. Like all followers of new religions, we must be prepared for persecution. Our people are persecuted in every country including the United States.

Viereck: How did you become a spiritualist? Through some great experience?

Doyle: No. Purely by ratiocination. I was brought up as a Catholic. Subsequently I became a rationalist. I could not imagine a God with a preference for any religious or racial group. I cannot picture to myself an Almighty who confines salvation to a clique. My rationalism was largely the outgrowth of my medical studies. I expressed my rationalist philosophy in the Stark-Munroe letters. That book is largely autobiography. Dissatisfied with rationalism, I studied literature and philosophy. Spiritualism threw a light across my path like that which Paul saw on the road to Damascus. I visited the people who wrote about spiritualism. I studied the case of spiritualism where others dismissed it with a contemptuous gesture. Schrenck-Notzing, the German savant with his para-psychics stops at the half-way house between this world and the next. He, and scientists like him, who confine their investigation to the mechanics of telepathy and spiritual phenomenon are, in a sense, super-materialists. Nevertheless, they open new avenues to thought. My studies, extending over 40 years, have convinced me that independent intelligences exist who call to us from the other side of the wall. The survival of personalities is the basis for all religions but all, with the exception of the reincarnationists and the spiritualists, are silent upon the nature of the survival.

Viereck: Did you have any personal contacts with the spiritual world?

Doyle: When Geley, the French savant and spiritualist, died, I was sitting with a medium in England. Suddenly, I heard the whispered word "Geley." I asked in French, "When you had your accident were the moulds you carried broken?". The answer was "Qui, oui, ils staient casses." Though the medium, a coal merchant, did not know a word of French, the spirit communicated through him in that language. He told me several details. I asked in French: "Have you any message for your wife?" He replied: "Au revoir." This is only one example out of hundreds where I have spoken with those who have changed their vibrations and whom we call "dead."

Viereck: Is it not a pity that when the dead speak to us they have so little to say?

Doyle: The most important thing to say is that they exist at all. But not all messages are trifling. Did you read The Physic Recollections of a Musician, or did you see Is This Wilson? written by Mrs. C. A. Dawson Scott? Both Wilson's style and his idealism are unmistakable in this book.

Viereck: I am afraid I have read neither of these two books. But I have seen an alleged posthumous book by Oscar Wilde, psychic utterances of O. W. by Mrs. Travis Smith.

Doyle: I knew Oscar Wilde when he was living. In that book I recognize poetic and epigrammatic passages which are as characteristic of Wilde as anything that bears his imprint. If I were preparing an anthology of Oscar Wilde's works I would include passages from this post-mundane work. Messages that seem trivial to others are often not trivial to the person addressed. If my son, who died during the war, had come back and postulated some vague, philosophical hypothesis I would not be convinced. But when he reminded me of some match in which I had to wear two right boots, having lost one in the course of the game, a fact unknown to anyone else because of its triviality, I was overwhelmed.

Viereck: Nevertheless, its seems unfortunate that the messages from other worlds never convey to us a single new truth.

Doyle: Your attitude is due to your unfamiliarity with the literature of spiritualism. One of our writers, Vale Owen, has published messages from the other world with calculations too intricate for me which seem to point in the general direction of the Einstein theory.

OIL LEAK DOWNS OCEAN FLIERS HALF-WAY

French Aviators Rescued by Patrol Boat; 600 Pounds Of Air Mail Also Saved

DAKAR, Senegal, July 9.—(AP.)—Jean Mermoz, noted French airman, on the first west-to-east trans-Atlantic air mail flight between South America and Africa, was forced down on the sea today when well over half way across.

He and his companions, Leopold Gimme, radio operator, and Jean D'Abry, navigator, were rescued. The 600 pounds of air mail, which they took aboard on leaving Natal, Brazil, also was saved.

DISCOVERED OIL LEAK

Mermoz, three hours earlier, had discovered an oil leak which apparently was not serious, but two hours before he came down the oil pressure dropped alarmingly. So he sent a wireless message that he was heading toward the dispatch boat Phocee, one of several craft patroling the route in case of emergency.

The Phocee, being informed of Mermoz' trouble, started to the rescue and met the plane. She stood by and took aboard the three men and the mail. The mail was to be transferred to another dispatch boat and carried at full speed to Africa, for relay by plane to Paris.

11 HURT AS BUS HITS TRUCK

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 9—(INS.)—Eleven persons were injured today when a bus of the Colonial Stage Lines crashed head-on into a parked truck and hurtled an embankment six miles south of here.

The bus was en route to Cleveland from Pittsburgh. Witnesses stated that the accident occurred when the bus attempted to make a sharp cut to pass the parked truck.

All of the injured persons were rushed to hospitals here for treatment.

Those injured, none seriously, are: C. E. Martin, South Bend, Ind.; Gary Irby, Farrell, Pa.; James Wardlow, Mrs. Julia Wardlow, and Cleveland Wardlow, of Harbor City, N. J.; E. McFarland, Pittsburgh; M. W. Barrett, Youngstown; H. J. Tratt, William McCamic, John Sadan and E. M. Harrington, all of Cleveland.

Theater Producer, Worried, Kills Self

NEW YORK, July 9.—(AP.)—Lindley Cook, 38, theatrical producer, was found dead last night in the home of his brother-in-law in Rockville Center, with a paper bag containing a chloroform-soaked handkerchief over his head. A police surgeon said he had committed suicide about noon. It is believed that he was despondent over theatrical losses.

His wife, known on the stage under her maiden name, Adele Neff, is a vaudeville actress. She and a 5-year-old daughter survive.

Weather Conditions.

The skies are clear over much the greater portion of the country this morning, and there are no well defined storm centers. Pressure is relatively low over the Rocky Mountain states, and high over the interior of the country. The rainfall during the last 24 hours was light and occurred at scattered places in the form of local thunderstorms. Temperature changes were slight, but towards warmer over the Ohio Valley states.

River Conditions.

The rivers are stationary. Stage at Franklin is 0.5 foot; Lock No. 7, 10.4; Pittsburgh, 10.4; Dam No. 4, 9.5; Dam No. 6, 7.7; Dam No. 9, 8.8, and Dam No. 12, 5.2. The dams are up.

Aviation Bulletin.

Only scattered clouds are reported over the states from Chicago to the Atlantic coast. The ceiling is unlimited everywhere except at Chicago, where it is 3,000 feet. Visibility ranges from three miles to unlimited. Wind, light from the South or Southwest.

Scattered light thundershowers are probable over the states west of Pennsylvania this afternoon and tonight, while over Pennsylvania and eastward fair weather will continue.

said, he rushed to her side and found her unconscious.

He told detectives:

"For five hours I held her unconscious in my arms until she died."

The quarrel leading to her death occurred on the night of June 30, McNab said. He declared it arose over an argument about making a trip to the North Side.

After his wife had died, McNab said, he carried her to her bedroom and left the body lie there until the night of July 2.

REMORSE

Then, he said, he carried the body downstairs and placed it in a hole in the ground beneath the rear porch, covering it with a mattress.

Overcome with remorse, McNab told detectives, he would steal out into the dark each night and keep vigil by his wife's side.

On Monday he decided to end his own life, he said, and slashed his throat and abdomen. Since Monday he had lain in his bedroom without food, water or medical aid.

The discovery of the woman's body was made by a neighbor, Frank Petrone, of 157 Wabash avenue. He notified police, and in a search of the house McNab was discovered lying helpless.

At the hospital today it was said McNab had a good chance to recover.

Neighbors said McNab is a "character" throughout the West End and that he is known as "Old Scotty, the warrior." Friends said he talked continuously of wars in which he had participated.

RECOUNT FUND MANDATORY

The County Commissioners are powerless to withhold funds for the recount board that is checking ballot boxes on fraud charges, County Solicitor W. Heber Dithrich informed the commissioners today.

The commissioners, at a meeting yesterday when an appropriation of $10,000 to match one previously made, was asked, demurred and sought legal advice. They got it this morning.

Dithrich told the commissioners that the act of Assembly under which the board is functioning gives the court power to appoint the board and clerks and fix the compensation. The board is to remain in session as long as ballots are to be counted. Petitions for recounts may be made within four months after the election.

Commissioners thought the work was too expensive and expressed the belief that the total cost might reach $50,000.

Steel Chief Cleared in Customs Case

NEW YORK, July 9.—(AP.)—Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the finance committee of the United States Steel Corporation, was required to pay $1,937 additional duties on wearing apparel he and his wife brought from Europe on the liner Olympic. No fines or penalties were assessed.

Philip Elting, collector of the port, decided the failure to declare the goods was purely accidental.

S. S. ROSENBERG IN DIVORCE SUIT

The libel papers in the divorce action against Attorney Samuel S. Rosenberg apparently were missing from the prothonotary's office today. A clerk said he didn't know where they were.

Rosenberg is being sued by Mrs. Olive R. Rosenberg, of Severn street. The action is listed in the prothonotary's index, but the libel, which would reveal the charge, was not found. Attorney Allen H. Kerr, counsel for Mrs. Rosenberg, said the charge was indignities.

The Rosenberg's have been married seven years and have one child.

Police Use Tear Gas To End German Riots

THREVES, Germany, July 9.—(AP.)—Police armed with tear gas bombs were kept busy all night restoring order here after anti-Separatist rioting, in which the windows of shops and homes were shattered and some of the demonstrants arrested.

Former service men, with long memories, meanwhile seized the opportunity to raid a villa on the outskirts of the town not belonging to a Separatist but owned by a cigar handler who, as a wartime sergeant, was alleged to have been rough with recruits.

Ambridge Student Drowned in Pool

MOUNT GRETNA, Pa., July 9, (AP.)—Anthony Hilkinski, 17, Ambridge, Pa., drowned while swimming in a pool here. A physician said he probably had been seized with an attack of cramps. Hilkinski, a student at Franklin and Marshall Academy, Lancaster, had come here this morning with a group of boys from the school.

Fishing From Plane Results In Big Haul

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., July 9.—(AP.)—The real way to go fishing, take it from Roger Wolfe Kahn, is to fly. He and three chums hopped an amphibian plane, parked it on the surface of Long Island Sound a mile offshore and in two hours had more than 50 fish.

M'DONALD WINS TAX BATTLE

LONDON, July 9.—(AP.)—By a majority of only three votes, the MacDonald government today scraped through a division on the finance bill, which had been regarded as critical.

A liberal amendment to the sidered might cause the downfall of the Laborite government was rejected by 278 votes to 275.

The amendment involved exemption from income taxes on that part of affected companies' profits devoted to re-equipment of factories and replenishment of plant machinery.

2 RELEASED AFTER THEY CONFESS

Assistant Prosecutor Hits System as Sweeney Turns Deaf Ear to Evidence

As three defendants were being discharged by Magistrate John J. Sweeney in South Side Police Station today after two of them had admitted being collectors for a "Numbers" lottery, Assistant District Attorney John F. Haggerty condemned the ease with which number writers escape justice.

Haggerty said part of the blame [illegible] justice.

He said:

"I have tried about half a dozen lottery cases in court, and all defendants were found not guilty."

"MANY PLAYING POOLS"

"I believe that 25 per cent of the members of the juries had lottery tickets in their pockets at the trials and were habitual patrons of the lottery shot.

"I estimate that 33 per cent of the population of Allegheny County is playing the numbers lottery."

Acting Assistant Chief of County Detectives James S. McGinley, in charge of lottery raids for the past six months, declared the cases of the majority of the 200 "number writers" whom he arrested failed to reach court.

THREE FREED

He declared the defendants usually pleaded guilty before magistrates or justices of the peace and escaped with nominal fines.

Of the three defendants arraigned before Magistrate Sweeney today, two of them, Clement Blazewich, 21, of 1922 Merriman street, and Milton Raynovich, 21, of 2710 Carey way, were arrested in automobiles, police testified.

The third defendant, Thomas J. (Gome) Goslin, of 1615 Brownsville road, was arrested when he went to the station to post bond for the others.

Plainclothesmen submitted in evidence pads containing numbers, slips and an envelope containing money, which they testified was found in Blazewich's car at South Nineteenth and Wharton streets.

Sweeney asked Blazewich:

"What about this?"

"I am a pick-up man."

"Who do you work for?"

"Some man over on the Hill. The only name I know him by is Pretzel."

Addressing the four officers who made the arrests, Sweeney said:

"This Pretzel is the man you want to get. You have no evidence this boy was being paid for collecting for Pretzel."

GOSLIN'S AUTO

The officers testified they had pursued Raynovch a mile to Becks Run road, where his car stopped because of a flat tire. They confiscated pads and tickets, they said. Raynovch had no auto owner's card, they said.

They checked on the license number of the car and found it belonged to Goslin, they testified.

Raynovch yesterday admitted working for Goslin, and said Goslin loaned him his car, the officers said.

"Do you work for the New York Clearing House pool?" Sweeney asked Ranovch.

"Yes."

"Do you work for this Goslin?"

"No."

"Ask him why he was in Goslin's car," interjected Plainclothesman Louis Foster.

Sweeney did not put this question, and ordered all three defendants discharged for lack of evidence.

Last week Goslin and six others were fined $100 each on charges of operating a lottery.

Farm Board Experiment Justified Says Coolidge

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., July 9.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

It would certainly be fair and probably wise to defer judgment on the reported actions of the Federal Farm Board until the results are fully matured and they are in a position to reveal what they have done and why they did it. This board is so well supplied with hard-boiled business experience that they are entitled to the presumption of having used the best judgment possible in executing the law under existing conditions. The reported use of public money in a direct attempt to steady the market may turn out to have been justified. It did not prevent a decline in cotton and wheat, but it may have lessened it. Possibly it will make a bad matter worse. Buying to steady the market with the expectation of a loss, however, can scarcely be termed speculation, which is trading with the expectation of a profit.

CALVIN COOLIDGE

But there is one possibility that may turn out to be all-important. If at the very outset of its career the action of the Farm Board demonstrates to the country that even the United States Treasury cannot maintain a fixed price for farm produce, while the lesson may be expensive, it will be worth all it costs. We shall learn through experience that that kind of farm relief will not work.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

Archbishop of York Raps Death Penalty

LONDON, July 9.—(AP.)—The Most Rev. William Temple, archbishop of York, was one of the few witnesses to come before the Royal Commission on Punishments, so far, to favor abolition of the death penalty.

Dr. Temple left the Lambeth Conference of Bishops for an hour, to give his testimony.

Toledo Man Slain In Erie 'Jungle'

ERIE, Pa., July 9.—(AP.)—A man identified as P. C. C. Carr, of Toledo, O., was shot to death in the "jungle" district of Erie. Police said they were told the man, believed about 55, was shot while stooping to pick up a bundle he had dropped. There were no clues to the slayer.

Rejected Suitor Kills Bride, Self

HOUSTON, Texas, July 9.—(AP.)—A honeymoon came to a tragic end as Mrs. Ivadell Loftin, 18, of Orange, Texas, bride of four weeks, was shot to death here by H. M. Alsup, 30, former suitor, at the home of her mother, Mrs. Lelia Alford. Alsup then turned the pistol on himself and sent a bullet into his brain, dying an hour later. An inquest verdict of murder and suicide was returned by Justice of the Peace C. R. Overstreet.

MARINES' CHIEF, NEVILLE, DIES

WASHINGTON, July 9.—(AP.)—Maj. Gen. Wendell C. Neville, 63, a veteran of many hard-fought battles, who rose to the position of commandant of the Marine Corps, is dead.

Heart disease ended the career of the famous soldier late yesterday at the summer home of his daughter, Mrs. John P. W. West, at Edgewater Beach, Maryland. He had been in poor health for several months.

Acting Secretary Jahncke, of the Navy Department, immediately appointed Brig. Gen. Ben H. Fuller acting commandant of the corps. Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler became ranking officer of the marines upon Gen. Neville's death.

Charles Augustus Junior, Lindbergh Baby's Name

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., July 9.—(INS.)—The name, if you please, is Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr.

Suspense over the selection of the name of the son born to Col. and Mrs. Charles Augustus Lindbergh passed today, following official announcement at the home of the child's grandfather, Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, that he would be named for his famous father.

The baby was born June 22, the twenty-fourth birthday of his mother, the former Anne Morrow.

Mrs. Lindbergh was expected to leave shortly with her son to spend the summer at the Morrow summer home at North Haven, Me.

The baby will be the third of his line to bear the name of Charles Augustus, and entitled to be known as Charles Augustus Lindberg III. Until the death of his father, long a congressman from the Sixth Minnesota District, Col. Lindbergh was Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr.

Kelly Urges Anderson For Postmastership

For the good of the service, James B. Anderson, assistant postmaster, should be named to succeed George W. Gosser, retired, said Congressman Clyde Kelly today, discussing Gosser's successor.

"It is Senator David A. Reed's appointment, and I really do not know what he is going to do about it, but I intend to discuss the matter with him at the first opportunity," said Congressman Kelly.

"Mr. Gosser was assistant postmaster when he was elevated to the postmastership and his promotion was received by all as a merited one. It made for good will. Personally I am strongly of the opinion that Mr. Anderson should be appointed to succeed him, thus moving him up in the same manner Mr. Gosser was elevated."

Congressman Kelly said that Senator Reed was to have attended the Braddock celebration today, but is tied up in the Senate because of the treaty situation.

PAUL MELLON GOES TO WORK IN BANK HERE

Treasury Secretary's Son Begins 2 Months' Study In Father's Business

Paul Mellon, a decidedly democratic young man and the illustrious father, Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, today were to discuss banking. The son arrived in Pittsburgh late yesterday and his father came in early today to see the latter's start work at the Mellon National Bank.

The son arrived on Track No. 13 of the Pennsylvania Railroad, he pays little attention to formality. H. grabbed his father by the arm, missing one hand, in New York, saying:

"I missed the Pittsburgher arriving at the Pennsylvania Station in New York just in time to see it pull out so I took the next train. It sometimes happens that I do not sufficiently observe time."

STUDIES BANKING

For the next two months the younger Mellon will study banking, and in September he will go to Cambridge, England, to take a post-graduate course. He craves knowledge and intends to get all of it he can.

"What about the report that your father does not want you to go into the publishing business?"

"There is nothing to that. Whatever my calling it will be a matter of personal decision. I like the publishing business, but have made no decision at all as to what line I shall follow."

After he has breakfasted in England for a year he will decide what he wants to do. He said, thoughtfully:

"I really do not know what the future has in store for me."

Asked if he had any intention of writing a book of engaging in journalism, he said he could not say. He intimated that his father was largely letting him decide his future.

Like his father, he is decidedly reserved, does not hurry and weighs carefully what he has to say.

The only one at the station to meet him was the chauffeur, whom he cordially shook by the hand.

The young student heir to hundreds of millions then entered the car, to be driven home to await the arrival of Secretary Mellon from Washington, with whom he expects to spend much of the summer. Secretary Mellon expects to remain in Pittsburgh much of July and August, dividing his time between his modest home in Woodland road, and Rolling Rock, a delightful spot in the mountains near Ligonier.

Auto Driver Hits Tree While Asleep

WASHINGTON, Pa., July 9.—Falling asleep at the wheel of an automobile, Selig Morov, 22 of 831 North St. Clair street, Pittsburgh, was bruised when the car crashed into a stump.

PITTSBURGHERS AT REALTORS' CONVENTION

Group of 61 From This City Taking Prominent Part In Sessions at Toronto

By M. V. BURGESS
Sun-Telegraph Real Estate Editor

TORONTO, Ont., July 9.—Pittsburgh is playing a prominent part at the twenty-third annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, which opened here today. Sixty-one realtors from the Steel City and a number from Western Pennsylvania are gathered with brokers from all parts of the United States and Canada.

How to improve business is the keynote of the sessions of the convention. Leonard F. Reynolds of Detroit, president of the National association, sounded it in the opening address. He declared that free discussions of business conditions are necessary if remedies are to be applied.

James W. Cree, Jr., president of the Pittsburgh board, has been named a member of the resolutions committee of the states council. I. T. Stevenson, of Pittsburgh, attended the national directors meeting yesterday. One of the most important actions of the directors was to approve the formation of a national conference with representatives from every state to consider ways to co-ordinate national, state and federal taxes. This step was taken in an effort to reduce the tax burden on real estate.

ILLNESS DELAYS FAZIO GRILLING

The scheduled quiz of Philip Fazio, beer racketeer, did not take place today because Fazio convinced District Attorney Andrew T. Park that he was a sick man.

After Attorney William H. Coleman, counsel for Fazio, had convinced Park that his client was ill, Park announced that he would examine Fazio when he recovers.

Fazio, after being acquitted of the killing of William Gregory, barrel murder victim, is reported to have made general charges of paying big sums to politicians for protection of his beer racket.

False Alarm Sounds At Jewelry Store

The sounding of a burglar alarm of a jewelry firm in the Clark Building, Liberty avenue and Seventh street, attracted a large crowd as police and detectives hurried into the building last night. Police, after an investigation, declared the alarm was sounded accidentally.

Joseph Pulitzer's Heirs Divide 8 Million

NEW YORK, July 9.—(AP)—The three sons of the late Joseph Pulitzer, publisher, have received a total of $8,489,004 from their father's estate, an accounting report filed by trustees disclosed today.

Herbert Pulitzer has received $3,659,337. Ralph Pulitzer, $1,886,000 and Joseph Pulitzer, Jr., of St. Louis, $943,222, since October, 1919, the report said.

Managers of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch were paid $63,362 and the New York World managers $160,522. On April 10 the trustees had a balance of $4,507.

Neely Unopposed In W. Va. Primary

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 9.—(AP)—Former United States Senator M. M. Neely yesterday became the unopposed candidate for the Democratic senatorial nomination at the August 5 primary.

George S. Wallace, Huntington attorney, withdrew his candidacy in favor of Neely.

CHECKOFF WON BY MINERS

NEW YORK, July 9.—(AP)—The New York World says the checkoff system of collecting union dues and assessments, for which the anthracite miners have fought for 30 years, will be provided for in the wage agreement now under negotiations between miners and operators here.

It is expected that the arrangement decided upon will call for a union collector in the paymaster's window and the issuing out of two checks, one covering the amount due the union.

Miners and operators have disagreed concerning examination of employment and finally turned to other matters without announcement of any compromise.

The statement issued after the second session of the day made no mention of this question and it was taken for granted that a deadlock had occurred and the whole matter had been held over for consideration later.

Amnesia Victim Recalls Missing Own Wedding

OMAHA, Neb., July 9.—(AP)—One of the first things Virgil C. Goethe, of Jacksonville, Ill., remembered when he recovered from a week-end case of amnesia, was that he had missed his own wedding, set for last Saturday.

He wired reassurances to his prospective bride explaining he had lost his memory as a result of an automobile accident in St. Louis and wandered to Omaha by way of Kansas City.

Senator Grundy Sails for Europe

NEW YORK, July 9.—(AP)—United States Senator Joseph R. Grundy, of Pennsylvania, sailed on the steamship Augustus last night for a vacation in Europe. The Augustus is bound for Gibraltar, Naples and Genoa.

A. M. Schenk, Rich W. Va. Packer, Dies

WHEELING, W. Va., July 9.—Albert M. Schenk, 62, millionaire pork and beef packer, and for many years head of the F. Schenk and Sons Company, died at his Echo Point home this morning following a brief illness. He recently returned from Florida.

Apartments of distinction in all parts of the city are listed in today's Classified Section.

Steel Plants in Pittsburgh And Aliquippa to Benefit; Details Being Withheld

Pittsburgh's capacity to supply the steel needs of this country will be increased by the expenditure of $20,000,000 by the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation according to an announcement made by an official of the company today.

This includes the unexpended balance on appropriations for work already under way and new work recently authorized. Officials would not make public the details of the expenditures beyond the fact that they will be made for improvements to plants in this city and at Aliquippa.

PITTSBURGH BENEFITS

The Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation has concentrated all its development work in this district. With its principal plants in this city and at Aliquippa, all the expenditures for mill improvements have been directly reflected in the prosperity of this district and in employment conditions here.

In the four years from 1925 to 1929 the company's plant account, after making provision for depletion, increased from $101,969,751 to $123,211,682, a net gain of $15,241,931. During this period, however, provisions for depletion amounted to $21,426,833, which indicates that the total expenditures for plant improvements, most of which were in this district, amount to $36,670,764.

LARGE INDEPENDENT

The Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation, second largest independent steel producer in this country, is distinctly a Pittsburgh organization. In addition to the concentration of mill operations in this district, the ownership is in the hands of local interests.

The company was also a pioneer in the revival of transportation on the Ohio and Monongahela Rivers. At present the organization moves coal from the upper Monongahela to Pittsburgh as well as finished products to Memphis, Baton Rouge and New Orleans entirely by river.

DETROIT RECALL VOTE JULY 22

DETROIT, July 9.—(AP.)—The administration of Mayor Charles Bowles has been made the subject of a referendum among Detroit's 430 registered voters, to be held July 22.

The date for the city's first mayoralty recall election was set by City Clerk Richard W. Reading after Circuit Court Judge Robert M. Toms had removed the last legal obstacle to such a vote. His ruling brought to an end a fortnight of litigation during which the mayor and his supporters sought to prevent the election by every legal means.

The mayor's attorneys indicated today that they would not attempt an appeal from this latest adverse ruling.

Haldeman Downed In Record Flight

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., July 9.—(AP.)—Their dream of setting a new world's non-refueling endurance flight record came to temporary grief for George Haldeman and Stuart Chadwick here when they were forced to land their monoplane Thirteen after having been aloft only 15 hours and 42 minutes. Unusually heavy oil consumption was blamed.

Taking off from Jacksonville Beach, Haldeman and Chadwick took along 70 gallons of oil. During the first 15 hours the plane used 40 gallons. They had estimated they would be able to stay up 70 hours.

Actress Divorces Grandson of Bell

RENO, Nev., July 9.—(AP.)—Mrs. Josephine Hutchinson Bell, actress, formerly connected with the Eva Le Gallienne Theater in New York, has been granted a divorce here from Robert Bell, said to be a grandson of the late Alexander Bell, inventor of the telephone.

The papers in the case were sealed, but it is understood the decree was granted on grounds of mental cruelty. They were married August 12, 1924, in Washington, D. C., where Bell's mother lives.

Brother and Sister Held in Slaying

NEWARK, O., July 9.—Willie Folking, 19, and his sister, Eva, 18, were arrested here on a charge of first degree murder in connection with the killing of Lady Bryant, who was shot by her husband, Ester Bryant, at Stadden's Bridge. Willie and his sister, police say, drove the car in which Bryant and his wife rode to the scene of the shooting.

4 Communists Hurt In Havana Riot

HAVANA, July 9.—(AP.)—Four alleged Communists were injured and many others roughly handled by police who broke up a protest meeting at Santa Clara docks over the deportation of 10 Communists.

Police reserves used their nightsticks to disperse the rioters, and after a half hour peace again reigned. But the Santa Clara docks were placed under martial law for the rest of the night.

WARNS AGAINST FAKE RUM PERMITS

Alcohol Supervisor Wynne Tells Druggists Here of Counterfeit Prescriptions

A warning to [illegible] druggists here [illegible] guard against counterfeit prescriptions for medicinal whisky was sounded by Col. Samuel W. Wynne, supervisor of alcohol permits for the Pennsylvania New Jersey-Delaware area on his first visit today to Pittsburgh. Upon a [illegible] chief assistant in Pittsburgh, Mr. Tonkay, [illegible] of the alcohol permit [illegible] prescription [illegible] Philadelphia. [illegible] these are [illegible] daily made [illegible] original [illegible] the water [illegible] prescriptions.

Several [illegible] yesterday in Pittsburgh [illegible] investigation to be pressed. He said they were [illegible] prescriptions [illegible] in this area.

Col. Wynne came here for a conference with Mr. Tonkay who was chief inspector of the permissive department under Administrator J. H. Pennington.

James M. Young of the Treasury Department and Wendell Bates of the Department of Justice are here for a conference with Col. Wynne and Administrator Pennington who is in charge of enforcement in Pennsylvania New Jersey and Delaware. At the meeting it will be decided what office headquarters will be required in Pittsburgh.

CHECK ON PERMITS

WASHINGTON, July 9 (AP).—The Department of Justice will keep a close check on the issuance of permits for the legal use of industrial alcohol it was indicated today when amended regulations were issued by Attorney General Mitchell and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

Copies of applications for permits and hearings pertaining to revocations must be submitted to prohibition administrators by the Treasury district permit supervisors.

Officials said this would bring about a double check and should reduce diversions to the minimum. The amended regulations, which only in minor details differ from those in effect July 1 when the Prohibition Bureau was transferred to the Justice Department, will be void September 1. Prior to that time the Treasury and Justice departments will prepare entirely new regulations for legal alcohol usages.

Dr. J. M. Doran, supervisor of alcohol control, reiterated that the diversion of industrial alchol has been reduced to 5 per cent, and that the chief source of bootleg supply is corn sugar alcohol.

Pittsburgh Company Gets Hotel Option

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 9.—(AP.)—Stockholders of the Lookout Mountain Hotel Company voted unanimously to grant the Pennsylvania Surety Company of Pittsburgh a 90-day option on the property. The hotel was completed three years ago at a cost of about $1,250,000.

The Pittsburgh interests agreed to assume bonds outstanding amounting to about $750,000 and give $35,000 for the option, spokesmen for the stockholders announced.

Taxi Driver Returns Purse, Gets $250

NEW YORK, July 9.—(AP.)—Harry Selvridge, honest taxi driver is in $250. Miss Caroline Hall, on the way to catch a boat for a cruise around the world, left in his cab a purse containing $2,000 and $20,000 worth of jewels.

Harry broke the speed laws to return them to her on the boat and got a reward.

Price War Sends Gas Down to 8 Cents

SAN FRANCISCO, July 9 (AP).—Wide gasoline price ranges from 8 to 14 cents a gallon on the Pacific coast today. Rumors indicated the price slashing was a fight to the finish with the extermination of weaker retailers as a possibility.

Tacoma motorists were buying gasoline at 8 cents, at Los Angeles it sold at 10 cents, Seattle at 11 to 13 cents, with similar prices here.

Too Fat, Escaping Prisoner Gets Stuck in Bars

BUCKHANNON, W. Va., July 9 (AP).—Lou Shipman, jailed as a thief, had forgotten his figure isn't as slim and boyish as it used to be.

Sheriff H. A. Zickefoose, making his rounds of the Upshur County Jail, found an embarrassed Shipman swathed in blankets, trying to look as if he didn't know he was caught fast in the window bars through which he had attempted to escape.

The bars had to be pried apart before he could be freed.

GEORGE MOORE, BANKER, DIES

George C. Moore, 52, vice president of the Farmers Deposit National Bank, died suddenly in his home in the Schenley Apartments today. He had not complained of being ill although he had had several teeth extracted a week ago.

He was one of the trustees of the estate of the late Hart Given, millionaire banker of Pittsburgh.

Mr. Moore was also vice president and treasurer of the Reliance Life Insurance Company of Pittsburgh. As a clerk he was first employed by the Farmers Bank 35 years ago. In 1915 he was named assistant cashier and four years later, vice president. He was a member of six clubs: Duquesne, P. A. A., Union, University, Keystone and Longue Vue Country Club. Mr. Moore was born in Lawrenceville.

Mr. Moore leaves his wife, Mrs. Edna G. Moore, and a sister, Mrs. May Fuller.

Woman Fined $50 Following Dry Raid

Charged with operating a disorderly house in Steuben street, Mrs. Bessie Jarnic, 38, and her son, Walter, 17, were fined $50 each, arraigned before Magistrate Thomas D. Jones in Morals Court today. Plainclothesmen John Williams and Patrick Sully visited the place Saturday night, where they reported finding a small quantity of moonshine.

Drillers Battling To Get City Streets

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 9 (AP).—Oklahoma City today faced a legal fight to prevent some of its streets and alleys becoming blocked with rows of oil derricks. Property owners desirous of drilling have filed suit to regain title to sections of two streets and an alley conveyed to the city in 1906. They allege that, in lack of improvements, the city has forfeited title.

DOUBT STATE'S LOSS OF SEAT IN HOUSE

Congressmen Confident of Holding 36 When Final Census Return Is Made

WASHINGTON, July 9 (AP.)—Until complete official census returns are received from Pennsylvania, doubt will exist in the minds of Census Bureau authorities and members of Congress as to the Keystone State delegation's numerical strength in the House of Representatives.

Despite the complete population count of California reported to be 5,642,282, representing an increase of 64.6 per cent in 10 years, the apparent assurance that the Golden Bear state will have its congressional representation augmented by six or eight seats, relieves Pennsylvanians in Washington, refused to give credence to a forecast that she will lose one of her 36 legislators.

LISTED LOSING ONE

The forecast was based on the census apportionment bill passed by the Seventieth Congress. In a report on apportionment prepared by Chairman Prem of the Census Committee Pennsylvania was listed as a probable loser of one representative on an estimated 1930 population of 10,905,000 with the membership of the House continued at 435.

The House in enacting the apportionment bill, accepted the arbitrary figure of 280,780 as the population of each congressional district. Many Pennsylvania representatives believe today the state would have a population in excess of 10,095,000, but admitted that the rural sections probably would show a depopulation.

CAMPBELL CONFIDENT

Representative Campbell, of the Thirty-sixth District, pointed out that the estimated population of his district, which is wholly in Allegheny County and parts in Pittsburgh, indicated an increased population of more than 60,000. He believed the same ratio would prevail in other urban Pennsylvania districts.

If this shifting of population should continue and the state's total population should not show a decrease, it was believed Pennsylvania would not suffer a reduced representation.

When the Census Committee made its report to the House it showed the following probable losses in representation based on estimated 1930 population: Alabama, Louisiana, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Nebraska, New York, North Dakota, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Vermont and Virginia, one each; Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky and Mississippi, two each; Missouri, three.

BREAKS PAROLE, FREE ON BAIL

Charles E. Parks, 26, of Columbus, O., former retail shoe merchant in Ambridge, was sentenced by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker to serve six months in the Beaver County jail, for violating a parole of four years and eight months granted him February 21, 1929, when he pleaded guilty of misuse of the mails. Pending an appeal to the Circuit Court he was released on $2,500 bond.

Because of failure to make monthly payments to creditors, through Probation Officer George O. O'Brien, and also provide for his wife and two children, he was taken into court by O'Brien.

Subsequent to the probation his wife, Mrs. Cecelia Parks, was convicted in the Beaver County Court for embezzlement from employers, and is serving a one to two years term in the Woman Industrial Reformatory at Muncie, Pa.

Parks had pleaded guilty of using the mails in sending fraudulent financial statements to concerns from whom he purchased merchandise.

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor.

Gov. John S. Fisher and Congressman Clyde Kelly will speak over KDKA at 9 o'clock tonight during the Battle of Braddock Field banquet in the William Penn Hotel.

Death has been tapping the treasure hidden for the ghosts at midnight in the graveyard of Saint Saens symphonic poem, Danse Macabre, which will be played by the Mountaineers over WJAS at 7:30 p. m.

The Mountaineers, WJAS male chorus, will also sing the music of the studios of NAAB.

NEW STATION FOR KDKA

A new 400,000 watt radio station with the power of the new supertower to be operated by Station KDKA in Saxonburg, Pa., is now proposed by KDKA. The new station would be erected at a cost of $175,000 and would be used for experimental purposes and for regular broadcasts.

Another development in radio today was an application made by Robert M. Thompson to the Federal Radio Commission to construct a new station in Pittsburgh to operate on 1380 kilocycles and 500 watts power. The station would cost $70,000 to build and would be used for experimental purposes.

Nineteenth row observations in a downtown movie emporium—Carl Freedie dum Gerald Dave Broudy's drummer has a Graham McNamee profile and Bernie Armstrong would easily pass an announcer's test we guess.

HONEST INJUN

When a South Hills wind blew out a quarter-inch plate glass door at KQV Paul Miller started an investigation.

"Who was announcing at the time?" queried Paul.

"I was, but honest, I didn't do it," ejaculated the clever Ted Kay, who by stature must have the smallest pair of lungs of any announcer in Pittsburgh.

We have DISCOVERED that Jor Cuoco, the boy who plays a bagpipe for the signature song "The Campbells Are Coming," is not a Scotchman but a native of Porto Rico.

Bill Farren, the friendly voice doing "Sports Reporter" service for KDKA at night, is almost as rapid-fire as Floyd Gibbons—and almost as highly paid. He gets a dollar a minute for this broadcast.

The Kingfish dropped a few fathoms in our esteem last night when we learned he was just plain George Stevens.

TODAY'S TID BIT

Talcum powder rubbed on the finger tips is a practice followed by a few radio pianists in this city. It produces a lighter touch and also protects the artists from making mistakes on a polished keyboard.

ADDING TO HUMAN LIFE and HAPPINESS

After years of research science has demonstrated that the most effective method of correcting ailments is to administer directly into the Blood Stream the proper constituents necessary to incite the Leucocytes to do their intended work.

SERUM TREATMENTS

The Quickest, Safest, Surest Road to Health
One Serum Is Sufficient in Many Cases

We are successfully treating Rheumatism, Neuritis, Skin Disorders, Asthma, Bronchitis, Stomach Trouble, Anemia, Kidney Trouble, Nervous Disorders, High Blood Pressure and Impure Blood, Boils, and Pimples.

Examination now may prevent years of suffering. An ailment checked before it becomes chronic is often easily overcome. Visit the laboratory and learn the truth.

Very many ailments go uncured because the underlying cause is never discovered or even looked for. Successful treatment of any disease follows only after careful and scientific examination.

Watch Your Blood Pressure

When you feel yourself slipping, gradually failing to keep your place in the swift stream of modern life, take warning.

Watch carefully the heart, the lungs, the kidneys and digestion.

Seek first a careful, thorough and scientific examination—to be followed by the specially chosen serum suitable to your case.

Our physicians and our laboratories are always at your disposal. Our patients are satisfied.

Laboratory Examination, Blood or Secretion, Free.

Our Physicians Make No Charge for Consultation or Advice.

Old Sea Captain Trembles at Autos

NEW YORK, July 9.—(AP)—Capt. J. W. Mackenzie, retired sea captain, has blue water fever every time he crosses a New York street. He thinks it is safer far out in the Atlantic than dodging automobiles. The captain long ran passenger boats to Bermuda.

Do I look like an Enthusiast? I AM!

Listerine usually removes loose dandruff in 3 days

DOWN at the office the men under me say I'm a kill-joy. I seldom get enthusiastic about anything. But I want to tell you about my experience getting rid of dandruff. I have always had a good head of hair, and when I first began to be troubled by dandruff, I felt pretty worried. It's a humiliating thing at best. You feel guilty with those telltale flakes on your coat collar. Sort of ashamed to meet people. It's bad business.

Of course, the first thing I did was to go to my barber. "Nothing to it," he said. "I'll have you over that in a couple of weeks." You have probably heard that line yourself. Well, I let him wreak his vengeance on my scalp and hair with a lot of funny treatments that were a nuisance. Net result: just as much dandruff, if not more. Net loss: $12.

Then somebody said, "See a specialist."

Well, what that fellow did to my scalp was worse than the great war itself. He thumped it. He beat it. He photographed it. He rubbed it. He anointed it. He baked it. He dried it. He fanned it. Net cost: $25. And give him some credit—he did get rid of the dandruff—but only for a little while.

Then one morning my wife said to me, "Everett," she said, "why don't you try Listerine? A lot of the girls at the club have tried it and they say it gets rid of ordinary loose dandruff in no time."

Well, sir, I tried it. Just doused it on full strength, as they say in their ads, and massaged the scalp with the finger tips. And, by George, after the first treatment dandruff began to disappear. Right away my scalp began to feel like a million dollars. After another treatment, I couldn't find any dandruff at all, and my scalp was just as cool and healthy as a baby's. None of that old itching and burning. Net cost: 50¢. What's more, dandruff hasn't returned. Can you blame me for being enthusiastic about Listerine?

Enthusiastic comments like the above are the rule rather than the exception.

You can understand Listerine's success against dandruff when you realize that dandruff is a germ disease, and full strength Listerine kills germs in 15 seconds. Even the Staphylococcus Aureus (pus) and Bacillus Typhosus (typhoid) yield to it in counts ranging to 200,000,000.

Listerine first dislodges and dissolves the tiny scales which are the outward evidence of dandruff, then it soothes, cools, and heals the troubled scalp. The flesh tingles and glows with new health and invigoration.

If you have any evidence of this humiliating and dangerous condition, begin with Listerine at once. Remember that it is entirely safe, and douse it on the scalp full strength, then massage vigorously with the finger tips. Keep the treatment up as a part of the regular soap and water shampoo, or independent of it, until dandruff is under control. Lambert Pharmacal Co., St. Louis, Missouri, U. S. A.

LITTLE TALES FROM HOLLYWOOD CONCERING STARS OF MOVIES

Hollywood Vacations Take Picture Players to Rest and Play

HOLLYWOOD, July 9.

Vacation time, during lulls in major productions, means travel to motion picture stars who have been kept close to the Hollywood grindstone for most of the year. Marie Dressler, climaxing a sensational season with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, has been touring Europe. Marion Davies who is taking the first rest in two years of active production.

William Haines is going [illegible] xico City for his vacation and Norma Shearer is planning a ocean jaunt to Honolulu. Greta Garbo is exploring Yosemite National Park and Buster Keaton has a trip to England mapped out for his first spare month after finishing his new picture.

Ramon Novarro bought a fast roadster and is motoring all over the country with no particular destination in sight. Reginald Denny is working on his log cabin high in the Sierra Mountains and Wallace Beery is building a new plane for vacation flights.

PICTURE RETITLED

"Wings of Adventure" is announced by Tiffany as the release title for So This Is Mexico, recently completed and featuring Rex Lease, Armida and Chief Coca. The story by Harry Fraser is concerned with the adventures and romance encountered by an aviator and his mechanic when engine trouble forces them down in strange territory.

Armida

Virginia Sale sister of the famous Chic has never done a straight role in all her experience in vaudeville on the legitimate stage and on the screen. She has always played characters and impersonations and these have always been in the spirit of high comedy. Miss Sale has just been signed for the feminine comic lead in "His Error."

Lloyd Hughes has been signed to play opposite Alice White in Columbia's "Sweethearts on Parade," which is being produced under the direction of Marshall Neilan. Hughes is well known in the cinema world having launched his career at the termination of the world war.

BUZZELL IN SHORTS

Eddie Buzzell musical comedy star, has been signed by Columbia to make a series of single reel features unlike anything previously undertaken. Buzzell is a Broadway favorite and counts seven musical comedies in which he was starred. A year ago J. L. Warner induced him to enter the motion picture field and he was given the title role in "Little Johnny Jones."

Eddie Buzzell

Mack Sennett's imagination has been intrigued by the possibilities of television. He visualizes such embarrassing moments in the future as when a lady unattired is called on the phone by her fiance. The comedy king has ordered a two-reel comedy from just such situations. It has just been completed under the title Hello Television.

ANOTHER BETTY

Betty Compton recently of Fifty Million Frenchmen makes her talking and singing picture debut in a Vitaphone Varieties two-reel musical comedy entitled "The Legacy." In the support are John Hundley, Jack White, the Trado Twins, Charles Seiter, Eddie Davis and 12 dancing girls. Miss Compton has been signed by Warner Bros. for feature pictures.

Betty Compton

Maybe It's Love, Warner Bros. production featuring Joan Bennett, Joe E. Brown, James Hall and the All-American football team, presents a new dance known as the All-American. This is a modern ballroom routine in fast tempo.

Girl Stowaway, 3, Found Aboard Haiti Liner

NEW YORK, July 9.—(AP)—One of the youngest stowaways on record was handed over to immigration authorities at Ellis Island in the person of 3-year-old Raimente Dorge of Port Au Prince, Haiti.

Officers of the Iner Commerce said she was discovered in the cabin of her aunt, Miss Hilda Schutt, of West New York, N. J. Miss Schutt said the child had secreted herself in the cabin when she came aboard with her mother to bid her aunt farewell. Fondness for her aunt was said to be the reason why she hid herself away to make the journey. She will be returned to Haiti.

'THE BIG HOUSE' HITS ATTENDANCE MARKS IN MANY CITIES

NEW YORK, July 9.—The phenomenal success in the Astor Theater, in New York City, of "The Big House," a Metropolitan-Goldwyn-Mayer cosmopolitan production, is being duplicated in every city throughout the country where it has opened. At the Astor, the theater has been filled to capacity at every performance with a number of standees.

In Chicago "The Big House" opened in the McVickers Theater with the greatest day's business in the history of the house, the receipts exceeding those of the former record-breaker, "The Broadway Melody." Ever since "The Big House" has attracted capacity business at the McVickers.

In Detroit "The Big House" is now in its fourth week in the United Artists Theater which is considered one of the most remarkable tributes ever paid a picture in view of the intense heat that has prevailed in Detroit and the fact that other theaters there recently have not been any too prosperous.

In Los Angeles where "The Big House" opened in the Criterion Theater, it broke the record established there by Greta Garbo in "Anna Christie" and is playing to absolute capacity at every performance.

In Atlanta, Ga., in the Capitol Theater "The Big House" is doing the best business of any picture in months, while in Portland, Ore., it is playing its third week, a phenomenal record in a city of that size. In Omaha, it is a sensational success, playing to the biggest business chalked up there in months.

Motion picture critics in every one of the cities in which "The Big House" has opened, acclaim it as the outstanding success of the year, and compare it as dramatic entertainment with "The Big Parade."

Loretta Young, in the dual role of crook and society lass, is featured in "Road to Paradise" opening Thursday in the Stanley.

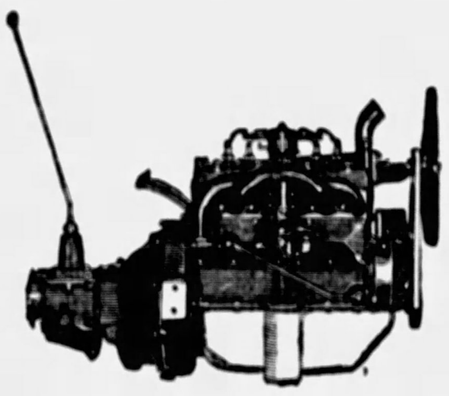
THE VALUE of SOUND DESIGN

New Ford engine gives outstanding acceleration, speed and power without sacrificing reliability or economy



THE GOOD PERFORMANCE of the Ford car, so apparent on every highway, is due largely to the sound mechanical design of the engine.

It has outstanding acceleration, speed and power, yet that is only part of its value to you. Greater still is the fact that it brings you all these features without sacrificing either reliability or economy.

That is the reason the Ford car has given such satisfactory service to millions of motorists all over the world and has been chosen by so many large companies that keep accurate cost figures. In every detail of construction it has been carefully planned and made for the work it has to do.

The design of the compression chamber is an important factor in the efficiency of the Ford engine. It is built to allow free passage of gases through the valves and to thoroughly mix the fuel by producing turbulence within the cylinders during compression. The spark thus flashes quickly through the whole fuel charge, resulting in quicker and more effective engine performance.

Other factors are the direct gravity gasoline feed, the specially designed carburetor, the new hot-spot manifold, aluminum pistons, chrome silicon alloy valves of larger diameter, statically and dynamically balanced crankshaft and flywheel, simplicity of the electrical, cooling, lubrication, and fuel systems and accuracy in manufacturing.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

Logic

You tried to mold me to a drab design,
You claimed my ways would never, never do;
I had my choice—the taverns and their wine
Or, on the other hand, the gift of you.

I weighed the matter very carefully—
The first had been a haven all my youth—
And I thought you meant so very much to me
I really couldn't turn about in truth.

Suppose you'd change me to a model lad,
And clipped my wings and trained me properly,
I'm certain you'd have been a trifle sad
When you had found what the result would be;

Why my allure would quickly disappear
The moment you were sure of me, my dear!
—Don Wahn.

Is My Face Red?

Izzy Elinson, of the Bronx (N. Y.) Elinsons, offers the probable reason why a certain Broadway columnist didn't play the Palace. The booking agent informed him that he was to do 15 minutes' time in his act and gave him a week to prepare the routine. The columnist submitted his act, and after much coughing and aheming asked the agent what he thought of it.

The booking man looked at his watch and replied:

"You are supposed to do a 15-minute act and your chatter consumes but five minutes!"

"I know," calmly answered the paragrapher. "The other 10 minutes will be contributions from the audience!"

Merciless Truth

Dan Malloy, the actor, who says jobs are scarce, stooped on the street the other day to pick up a dime which turned out to be a manhole cover, it looked so big to him.

Beg Poddon

It happened in one of the late places the other night. During a tense moment of the floor revue as the girls paraded in a few beads, a man struck his woman companion a terrific wallop on the face.

The dishes clattered to the floor, tables and chairs upset, the woman picked herself up, took her departure, with the man following her.

A lad at the next table proceeded to defend her.

"Here, here," cautioned an attache, "don't butt in. There's nothing wrong. She's just his wife."

Puns Upon a Time

Belle Bellhart can make up a sentence containing the word "diadem" like this: "People who touch bad likker diadem site quicker."

Greetings!

La Guiaran, who is now doing penance on Long Island and the other gay place operators will be happy, one feels certain, over this darling paragraph. The king is dead, Russell Ryder, long live the king, Bert Friedlob.

Master Friedlob, 28, of that ducky little town, Chicago, now has Ryder's throne of Broadway's Biggest Spender. One night last week he left $1,750 in one hot spot, and his tips in three other asylums that night totaled as much. And so we apoint ourself a committee of one to kiss the newcomer on his brow in the name of Broadway, which needs him badly.

And in spite of the Manager-Ticket Spec Agreement, Friedlob paid $225 for a pair of front pews at "Vanities" Batdee eve'g.

In fewer words, Chicago tops us again, darn it!

Newspaperman Stuff

Henceforth the New York Times will not accept passes for any event, except those for the sport editor (2) and the critic. The Times sports bureau usually gets 15 or more passes, but at the Sharkey-Smelly fight someone in the executive offices was overlooked and he complained bitterly to Maj. Adler, of the newspaper.

Maj. Adler then issued a notice that the rag would not accept more than the customary pair of free tickets to any theater or sports event, with the exception of the pair for L. Wiley. All baseball pass books have been returned and, as a result, there is a miniature war on in the otherwise respectable offices of the Times, with everybody suspecting the other as the author of the letter which started all the fuss.

Oop!

Sometimes pot-shots serve as boomerangs, as Rosy Cheeks Hellinger will tell you. Our conferere, who is now acting in vaudeville between columns, was among Argentinita's heaviest hammerers, but it appears he Can't Take It himself.

You probably recall our cunning joke about his act—viz, that he complained to a Brooklyn manager about following a monkey act and the manager agreed with him, saying:

"The audience might think it is an encore."

Mr. Aitch, who looks like that (without his makeup on), has this to say in rebuttal:

"Mr. Winchell opened shows and that's why he never followed monkies!"

Look! Look! He doesn't know how to spell monkeys!

It Is a Small World

"So it would seem," reports The American Sketch and Tatler, "that the artist friend from New York had it wrong when she insists that the little New England town gossips because it is too small to be in touch with the affairs of the big world in which she dwells. Whether from New York, Boston or Gopher Prairie not only are Judy O'Grady and the Colonel's Lady sisters under the skin, but the Colonel himself and Pat O'Grady are as closely related as the celebrated Cain and Abel. If all the world did not delight in gossip, Walter Winchell would lose his audience."

Gag

George Jessel told it to Jack Oakie, Gus Edwards and other listeners in one of the chop houses last night. It concerns the suddenly prosperous Ginsburgs who decided to move out of the Delancey street sector up to Pok Hevenyer.

The renting agent showed them a handsome apartment.

"This one will cost you only $6,000 a year," he said.

"But," butted Mrs. Ginzburg, "we maybe will stay fur fife hor sees years, couldn't it be chipper?"

"It makes no difference," said the renting agent, "the price doesn't vary."

"Maybe," chirped Mrs. G., "it doesn't vary you but it varies my husband and me!"

Greet Summer in Printed Chiffon

Pattern 1979

Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS.

Dainty—cleverly detailed—and decidedly flattering! Wise fashionables will add this adorable frock to their summer wardrobe because of its cleverly designed cape collar and unusual skirt treatment. The tiny tucks afford ample fullness for grace and swing. So easy to make, too, as you will surely omit the sleeves until later in the season.

Pattern 1979 is charming made of any sheer fabric . . . georgette, chiffon, voile, dimity, batiste, lawn, etc. A print or a solid color especially the pastels, may be chosen with equally good results.

May be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 requires 3⅝ yards of 39-inch material.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins carefully wrapped, or stamps, for each pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE wanted.

Our BOOK of PATTERNS for adults and children including transfer patterns, is FIFTEEN CENTS. Book with pattern, 25c. Address all mail and orders to Sun-Telegraph, Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth street, New York City.

1.—Enclose 15 cents in coins.
2.—Write clearly NUMBERS of patterns and SIZE wanted.
3.—Write or print your NAME and ADDRESS plainly.
4.—If you want SUN-TELEGRAPH Style Book send 10c extra.

Slovaks Holding Kennywood Picnic

Forty thousand Slovaks from Western Pennsylvania were expected to attend the seventh annual Slovak Catholic day at Kennywood Park today. Special cars were run on many trains to accommodate the throngs.

The principal speaker was to be the Rt. Rev. Hugh C. Boyle, bishop of the Pittsburgh diocese. The Rev. M. J. Yesko, of Brownsville, is general chairman of the outing.

Falcons to Enlarge Home on South Side

Instead of building a new national home in Pittsburgh, the Polish Falcons Alliance of America will remodel its present home at South Eighteenth street and Carey way. Dr. T. A. Starzynski, an official of the national organization, returned yesterday from the convention in Toledo.

The organization plans to spend $250,000 for its home here. This will be used for remodeling and enlarging the building on the South Side.

Britain's Jobless Increase 748,218

LONDON, July 9.—(AP.)—The secretary of the Ministry of Labor announced that the total number of unemployed in Great Britain on June 30 reached 1,890,600. This was 75,253 more than the week before and 748,218 more than a year ago.

U. S. APPROVES YOUGH BRIDGE

The proposed bridge to be constructed across the Youghiogheny River at Boston, as planned by the county engineering department, met with approval at a hearing conducted by Col. Jarvis J. Bain, United States engineer, in McKeesport. A. M. Stevenson, secretary and treasurer of the Youghiogheny River Improvement Association, was present, and after hearing the application of the county commissioners, said there would be no objections.

C. R. Coval, chief engineer of bridges for the county, said the bridge would be of the cantilever type with deck girder approaches, two sidewalks and a 30-foot roadway. Both piers will rest on the shores. Coval said this would be the first bridge the county is to construct for the state highway department, under the act effective June 1. Under this act the state has taken over 69 bridges, four of which are across navigable streams.

MY LINENS? WHY, I USE RINSO FOR ALL MY WASH. IT SOAKS EVERYTHING BRIGHT AS NEW. I DON'T NEED TO SCRUB A BIT THINK OF THAT!
I'M GOING TO TRY RINSO

(Millions use Rinso. Thousands write us letters like this.)

"Use it for dishes, too!" says Mrs. E. C. Vey, 8 Ivory Pl.

"I use Rinso because its thick, lasting suds loosen dirt without help. I don't need a washboard or boiler. Rinso alone gets my clothes the whitest white you ever saw. And I use it for dishes and all cleaning, too!"

MRS. E. C. VEY,
8 Ivory Place, N. S., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Suds that last, in tub or washer

Cup for cup, Rinso gives twice as much suds as lightweight, puffed-up soaps. Creamy, lasting suds. Safe for the finest cottons and linens.

Great in washers, too; the makers of 38 famous washing machines recommend it. Better class laundries use it. Wonderful for the wash, the dishes and all cleaning. Get the BIG package.

COAL BENEFIT SEEN IN NEW RAIL RATES

Revision Made by I. C. C. Recognizes Distance as Big Factor in Schedules

Recognition that distance should be a primary factor in fixing freight rates has been given by the Interstate Commerce Commission, which yesterday ordered a general revision of classified freight rate schedules in the northeastern quarter of the United States and in western trunk line territory.

LEEWAY GIVEN

While considerable leeway still will be allowed in establishing new rates the general tone of the order indicated no very wide variations from a mileage schedule will be permitted.

The new adjusted rates are expected to add to the revenue of the railroads and to remove serious inequalities in the existing freight rate structure.

The recognition of this new principle of freight rate making may have a far-reaching effect on this city's industrial development although at times it is impossible to determine whether the advantages of the rates to be changed will outweigh the disadvantages according to local shippers.

EFFECT FAR-REACHING

Recognition of the importance of mileage in rate structures which seems to have been adopted as a policy by the commission may have an important influence in the lake cargo coal case which is now pending. If mileage is considered in this case Pittsburgh coal producers would be materially helped.

Virtually every railroad junction point and terminal in Pennsylvania was discussed in the report of the commission's investigation.

The investigation was initiated in May 1924 upon petition of a joint committee representing both carriers and shippers. Hearings were held intermittently. Briefs were filed by such Pennsylvania organizations as the Monongahela Association, Pittsburgh, Butler, Erie, Harrisburg, Beaver Falls, Reading and Philadelphia chambers of commerce and individual shippers. The transcript of the testimony totaled 12,452 pages supplemented by 1,073 exhibits.

DENY HERSHEY DIVORCE PLEA

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 9.—(AP.)—In a dispatch carried by the Associated Press it was erroneously stated that a divorce had been granted Paul R. Hershey, of Hershey, who had alleged that his wife, Mrs. Edna M. Hershey, had misrepresented her age prior to their wedding.

This was contrary to fact, the master in the proceedings having recommended that no divorce be granted because the evidence presented was insufficient to support the allegations of the husband.

Counsel for Hershey has filed exceptions and the case will be argued in Dauphin County Court October 1.

The Associated Press is glad to make this correction.

B. & O. Railroader's Legs Crushed, Dies

Frank P. DeTina, 62, of 323 Johnston avenue, was fatally crushed in the Glenwood yards of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad today when a car under which he was crawling, inspecting the wheels, was bumped by a shifting engine, crushing his legs. He died in Mercy Hospital following amputation of his legs, according to the coroner's report.

'Profane' Golf Kept Far From Church

JERSEY CITY, July 9.—(AP.)—Archdeacon J. A. McCleary, rector of St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, thinks that golf, at least the variety of it played on miniature courses, induces profanity. He expressed his views so effectively that a permit for a miniature course near the church was refused.

Montana Woman Lost 19 Pounds of Fat In 4 Weeks

Here's a letter written October 21, 1929, by Mrs. Fred Barringer, of Lewistown, Montana, that ought to be read by every overweight woman in America.

"When stout women can lose fat and at the same time gain in vitality and charm and vivaciousness, in health, vitality and youthful appearance that sparkle with good health, they have solved the problem of reducing. That is what I have done. I have lost 19 pounds of fat, my complexion is clear, my eyes bright and I feel like a girl again.

"I started taking them every morning as directed as I was very much overweight and wanted to reduce.

"I had tried so many diets that would not stay with me. I decided to give Kruschen Salts a trial. The day I started to take them I weighed 200 lbs. and at present, which has been but four weeks, I weigh 181 lbs. And I must say I feel better. Formerly, after breakfast, I would feel sleepy and tired, but since taking Kruschen Salts I have the energy of a child. Food I have also eliminated my desire to great extent.

"I have recommended Kruschen Salts to many friends who have taken it with splendid results. I feel that no one can help but benefit by taking Kruschen Salts.

"As all large people, both men and women, who want to reduce in an easy way, give Kruschen Salts a fair trial. I am sure it will convince any one.

"A bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts four weeks costs but $1.25 at all Mack & Liggett's Drug Stores, or any drug store in America."

150,000 VACATIONISTS CAN'T BE WRONG

Again Wildwood and Wildwood Crest, the twin resorts of the New Jersey coast (35 miles to Atlantic City), prove the claim as New Jersey's most popular resorts. More than 150,000 happy pleasure seekers were here July Fourth week-end—a vacation equal in size to Bridgeport, Conn., or Grand Rapids, Mich.

The railroads brought 12,000 visitors, there were 7,000 white top automobiles, were here to swell the count, one-third as many crossed the famous Delaware River Bridge during the three peak days.

VITALITY!

"SURE! I can finish that today"

A strong, healthy body and mind always respond to the occasion. Employers appreciate and recognize unfailing freshness—always ready—cheerfully ready to carry on—minus that "tired feeling."

DON'T let a weakened body hold you back. Prolonged, it may result in so-called premature old age. Today's happiness and friends may be gone tomorrow. Has it ever been made clear to you that a strong, healthy body depends upon the right number of rich, red blood-cells?

Thousands of people have a low blood count—to this may be attributed skin troubles, "run-down" systems and even more serious ailments.

Healthy blood should contain about 5,000,000 red corpuscles to every cubic millimeter—those tiny workers which give blood its color and are carriers of nourishment to every part of the body. Rich, red blood is the body's protector against infection and disease. It is dangerous to let the blood count remain below normal.

If you tire easily—lack pep—if your skin is not clear—if your appetite is "gone"—you owe it to yourself and friends to try S.S.S.

When you get your red blood-cells back up to normal, that sluggish, let-down feeling, lack of appetite, skin troubles disappear. You should get hungry again and sleep soundly; firm flesh should take the place of that which was once flabby. You should feel strong. Your nerves become steady.

S.S.S. helps Nature build rich, red blood. It improves the processes by which the body is nourished.

For more than 100 years S.S.S. has been helping people regain and retain their strength and charm. Thousand of users have testified to its benefits in unsolicited letters of gratitude. Many have found it beneficial to take a few bottles at least once a year to keep their blood in good condition.

S.S.S. is made from strictly fresh vegetable drugs and is easily assimilated. All drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

Real Estate

American business men within the next five years will be living in suburbs 100 miles from their offices and will commute back and forth to their homes by means of air transit, according to a statement of Jacob L. Crane, Jr., Chicago city planner, in an address before a division of the convention of National Real Estate Boards, it is stated in a dispatch from Toronto, Canada, where the realtors are in session.

Crane's assertion bore out predictions that have been made by Pittsburgh real estate operators who composed a goodly proportion of his audience. He declared that outlying suburban development is bound to come and that it will result in opening of vast amounts of interesting and attractive land.

The dispatch added that Crane took occasion to warn subdividers against the development of land subdivisions where no definite demand had been demonstrated for them.

Pittsburgh banks have at least $18,500,000 available for mortgage loans, according to data compiled by the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board. This does not include several large banking institutions which are known to have large funds available, but which did not care to commit themselves definitely on a fixed figure. All of the lending banks are loaning only on the better grades of real estate.

Application was made yesterday for a permit by the Stanley-Davis-Clark Corporation for extensive alterations to the stage of the Grand Theater in Fifth avenue. The estimated cost of the work for which the permit is asked is $30,000. However, many improvements are under way, including lavish decorations of the interior of the foyer and auditorium of the historic playhouse.

Howard B. Hathaway reports that the Brentwood Land Company sold for Charles H. Bracken to T. J. McGovern six acres facing Saw Mill Run boulevard in Brentwood Borough.

The Prudential Insurance Company of America, during the first six months of 1930, placed real estate mortgage loans in the amount of $84,911,633, according to its officials in charge of mortgages. Of these the Prudential accepted 8,384 dwelling loans for $46,208,205, and 392 apartment loans for $7,720,600, affording living accommodations for 12,825 families.

PENNSYLVANIAN ADDS 25 POUNDS IN SIX WEEKS

Konjola, the New and Different Medicine, Proves Right Remedy In Stubborn Case.

Medicines, like men, are known for their deeds, not for promises and claims that are made for them. Konjola stands upon a bedrock foundation of successes and accomplishments. Scientifically compounded of 32 ingredients, 22 of which are the juices of roots and herbs of a medicinal value long known to science, this great compound has made an unparalleled record in the relief of ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. When given a fair trial, in most cases over a period of from six to eight weeks, it is rare indeed that this master medicine does not bring about the relief for which sufferers seek.

The Konjola Man at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, is prepared to tell you more about this justly famous compound. See him today and get the facts, true and verified. Mr. Levi L. Wise, 936 Fayette Street, Washington, near Pittsburgh, has an interesting experience to relate. Here is what he recently reported to the Konjola Man:

"I cannot praise Konjola too highly. It is a wonderful medicine. I had been suffering with stomach and liver trouble for a year or more. I tried many medicines and treatments but could not get any results. Gas formed and I bloated after each meal until there were times when I could scarcely get my breath. I had spots before my eyes and sometimes went temporarily blind. This was a terrible feeling.

"I read of the wonderful results people were getting as they appeared in the local papers. I have taken six bottles of Konjola and I have gained twenty-five pounds. The gas and bloating have disappeared and I have no trouble with my eyes. I sleep well at night, have a good appetite and feel stronger generally. My color has greatly improved and I really could not be in better health than I am today."

Mr. Levi's case is typical of thousands. Konjola's record has made this master medicine and tonic the most talked-of in America. Free from alcohol or nerve-deadening drugs, Konjola is safe and sure.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily, explaining the merits of this new and different medicine. FREE SAMPLES GIVEN by the Konjola Man. Konjola is also sold by all Dow Drug Stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

Convicts Start Terrific Fight for Freedom

CHAPTER XX

Thanksgiving morning.

Every seat in the prison chapel filled. The sunlight streaming through the barred windows, falls across gray figures of shaved men huddled on the hard, wooden benches, worn smooth by them and creatures like them.

The prisoners unconscious of the bitter irony of the songs which litingly depict the freedom and happiness of heaven and life, sing loudly, glad to release their long corked voices. The prison chaplain, sincere and bromidic, raises his soft hand after the first number and says, sing-song:

"And now to send aloft our gratitude on this glorious day of Thanksgiving, let us sing 'Ring Out the Bells of Heaven.' Everybody rise."

There was tumultuous scraping of feet and a creaking of benches as the hundreds of prisoners came erect. The organ boomed out the introduction. Then came the words and notes from 3,000 throats. Butch's giant voice rising above the rest in the thundering anthem of a saved soul.

"Glory! Glory!" How the Angels sing."

His face immobile, his gaze dead direct ahead, Butch improvised:

"Big day today! We get pig with our beans."

Then, when he came back to the next legitimate stanza, he shouted so loud that the chaplain looked at him in terror.

"OPEN THE GATES! OPEN THE GATES!
"OPEN THE GATES and let the King of Glory in!"

The song was finished. Butch sank back, a warped smile on his warped face and said:

"That's a hot number! Open the gates! Open the gates and let the passoners out."

Morgan Ordered Aside

His wink traveled down the line, from Dopey to the Hawk, from the Hawk to Joe, from Joe to Olsen. Morgan, who was sitting on the left of Butch, was watching him narrowly out of the end of his eyes. Butch every now and then nudged his right-hand neighbor, Dopey, and both looked at the clock. It was 11:31.

"At noon," whispered Butch hoarsely, "we'll have something to be thankful for."

"We will bow our heads in prayer," from the chaplain.

"We will pray hard—for freedom," intoned Butch.

There was a general movement throughout the chapel as the men leaned forward. Some made gestures of sincere devotion; others appeared to lampoon, still others disdained to close their eyes or bend their seamed necks.

"Our Father who art in heaven—"

Butch whispered out of the corner of his mouth:

"Wait for the click o' the clock—that'll be—NOON!"

Dopey nodded and passed the word along.

The chaplain ended his prayer. There was a shuffle, a movement of feet, bodies readjusting themselves, then a dead silence. The electric clock snapped, noon! Simultaneously the bells rang merrily in the chapel tower. The prison choir sang another Thanksgiving hymn and the men scrambled to their feet and started out the chapel door, file formation.

At that moment Wallace, the hated Wallace, walked by. He stopped before Butch and Morgan.

"Come here, Morgan," he ordered. "Come with me. I want to see you in my office."

Excitement Starts

As Morgan followed him, puzzled beyond imagination, he saw Butch's face lighten up in an understanding way, and he nodded his head and whispered to Dopey, indicating Morgan. Morgan vehemently shook his head, and walked on after Wallace.

Wallace led Morgan right through to the warden's office. The warden was talking to Pop Riker, the lovable old guard.

"You say Kent told you they had guns?" Morgan heard the warden ask. Pop Riker nodded.

"Here's Morgan, sir," said Wallace.

"Morgan," began Warden Adams, in a kindly tone, "I hope you are not in on this break. We don't know yet just who is—but we think it's Butch's gang. Do you know whether they have any guns?"

Morgan looked into the warden's eyes with a steady, unflinching stare.

"Sir," he began slowly, "I don't know what kind of a man you think I am. But whatever you think, I'm no squealer. I have much to be thankful for—including that I know nothing about this, sir, and would tell you nothing if I did, sir."

"Come clean, you low-lived—" began Wallace.

"Just a moment, captain," said the warden sternly. "This man is a prisoner, but he has certain rights." He turned to Morgan. "I admire you for your spirit and your code of honor—if you consider it your code of honor. I am making you no promises about opening the gates, nor am I promising you any time off. I do consider it a duty to those men you call your friends and to yourself to save trouble here. That's why I called for you. We know something's in the air. That is all."

Morgan felt the cold perspiration on his forehead. He heard a commotion in the prison yard. The warden and Wallace ran to the window.

"My God," cried the warden, "they've knocked down Deegan at gate and taken his gun from him! Quick, the alarm!"

Morgan could see outside, too. Led by Butch, the men, more than thirty of them, had rushed the gate. The big bunch of holiday flowers, by which Joe had maneuvered to get it open, was scattered about on the stone flooring.

Take Arsenal

Butch and his gang, yelling like Apaches and waving knives and pistols, were half way across the yard when the whole prison trembled with the roar of the siren.

Almost at the same time came the deadly rat-tat-tat-tat of the machine gun. Morgan saw the concrete of the wall specked by the bullets which were fired over the men's heads.

The warden was phoning to the turrets. The words sounded foreign to his gentle voice.

"Shoot to kill," he cried.

"Rat-tat-tat-tat!" crisped the guns, and lead sprayed not only the walls now, but the ground.

The churchbells still chimed on. No one had ordered them stopped. And in the Big House everything runs by orders—and God help the poor fool who sets himself against them.

Butch and his men turned back. A half dozen guards, armed with clubs, ran into the courtyard, but they were overwhelmingly stampeded back toward the cellhouse with the convicts.

Wallace, nudging Morgan in the ribs with his gun, had left the warden's office. Pop Riker, armed with a bludgeon, followed. The three gained the prison yard just as the convicts swept into it. They were caught in the crowd, flying before the machine guns that spat and spattered, and carried into the cellhouse.

As they milled into the corridor, the booming voice of Butch clarioned:

"Clean out the arsenal!"

A dozen men darted through the arsenal door, which had been thrown open at the beginning of hostilities. The guard was overpowered and the men passed out the rifles and ammunition. Wallace, meantime, had been disarmed, and Pop Riker had been knocked down.

"Tie the screws together!" shouted Butch, a ferocious scowl on his face, as he towered above the mob.

Pandemonium

"Into the cellhouse!" shrieked Butch. Driving the guards before them, the convicts crushed and crowded through. Just as the great steel doors clanged shut, the machine guns went into high. An enfilade swept along the side of the prison opposite the Warden's office, where the guns had been hurriedly mounted. There was a crashing of glass. Solid corners of concrete flew into dust, steel struck steel and bullets ricochetted in the cellhouse. Cries of pain screamed from the wounded and dying.

"Chuck the screws in the hole!" commanded Butch, who was chasing about here and there, posting his armed men at the windows, grated with bars and crossbars welded into cement.

Olsen, a gun in each hand, backed Wallace and the guards to the dungeon door and forced them inside. He stood sentry without, not closing the door.

There was pandemonium in the cellhouse. Those who had run in at the first alarm and who had acted no part in the riot now were under fire. They dived beneath bunks and huddled in corners. Butch's voice could be heard everywhere.

"Every man with a gat get to the windows! Those who don't want to fight get the hell out of the way. We'll show them tough cellhands what tough means."

Butch was getting things organized. The terrific fire of the machine guns continued to sweep across the prison and bit by bit the glass of the barred windows was shattered and the walls opposite the windows were indented with the deadly slugs. Morgan was caught between two windows on a tier just above Butch and his lieutenants.

THE OFFICE WIFE

By FAITH BALDWIN

CHAPTER XXIX

Anne had been frank with the new boss, McPherson.

"I'm engaged to be married. Will that make a difference?" she asked when he interviewed her.

McPherson looked at her in vexation. "Of course it will. That's the trouble with you women, you're always getting married," he grumbled, and added, as if to himself, "Just when I thought I had somebody who'd yank me out of the tangles six incompetent women have got me into!"

She said, smiling faintly, "But it won't be for a year yet, perhaps more."

"Can you promise me that?"

"Yes, Mr. McPherson."

She had known him for some time. A clever man, a keen one. She had even met him. "My secretary, Miss Murdock," Eaton had said proudly, as if he were introducing his competitor to a phenomenon.

Well, McPherson told her, "you've got me where you want me. I must have some one at once. Some one who understands this game. And you're the only possible person so far. I know how efficient you are. I know all about your work. I was ready to give you a life job if we got along together. However, a year. Lots of things can happen in a year," he added hopefully. "Not that I wish your young man any hard luck but if he breaks his neck or runs away with another girl I wouldn't shed any tears."

So Anne went to work. She liked the position. It was much the same in a way as her work with Eaton. But McPherson was a very different chief. He treated her as if she were an intelligent boy. There was no consciousness of her sex in his attitude. Half the time he called her "Murdock."

Eaton Tries to Forget

Sometimes he swore, not at her but at life in general, when things were going badly. Often he praised her in his blunt, forthright manner, and he stood on no formality whatever. He treated her as if she had been in his employ for many years.

Anne liked him, but she was unhappy. After all, she told herself, it had been the man and not the job. For all the excitement was gone, all the thrill, all the feeling that she was a part of the work, that she counted. All the joy had departed. It was simply a good job that she tried to do well.

That was the autumn in which Linda Eaton procured her divorce and sailed immediately for Europe. The papers announced the conclusion of her suit and her departure and that was all. The incident was closed.

Once during that winter Anne saw Lawrence Eaton. He had heard of her new position. For weeks he fought against an overwhelming desire to see her. Of course, had it not been for the fact of her engagement, the moment he was free he would have gone to her—but she no longer was for him.

He told himself that it would be sheer madness to attempt to see her. Better to forget her. He had tried to in a hundred futile ways.

Sees Anne

On this occasion his appointment with McPherson was not of his own seeking. He came to the office, therefore, schooled to the encounter, yet it was with a sense of absolute shock that he walked in and saw Anne sitting at the typewriter. She was alone in the big room and as he came in she lifted her hands from the keys, dropped them in her lap and drew a deep breath of weariness.

Standing in the doorway, Eaton experienced a tremendous surge of emotion. She was just as he had seen her so many times; just as she was in his dreams and in his heart, since she had left him—little and lovely, the sunlight on her hair, the small face a trifle thinner and more colorless than he remembered it, the slim, round figure, the simple, smart frock.

"Anne!" he said and his voice shook.

She had not heard him come in, so many miles had she been from the office, from the work just completed. Now she looked up and saw him, and he watched the color flood her face and throat and die away.

But her verbal recognition of his presence seemed perfectly composed. "Mr. Eaton, I'll find Mr. McPherson," she said, and rose.

Eaton came nearer and held out his hand. "Aren't you going to shake hands with me?" he asked. "Haven't you forgiven my stupidity, my second blunder?"

Congratulates Her

She laid her hand on his. Why she wondered, in terror and agony, had this encounter been forced upon her? It was so hard, so terribly hard. And she had been trying to forget, to cut him out of her mind and heart, and to turn that mind and heart to Ted.

He said, releasing her hand abruptly, because he no longer to hold it, "I heard that you were here. I wondered—I thought, of course, that you and O'Hara—"

She answered briefly: "We're not to be married for some time."

"I see. He's a fine chap," Eaton admitted, and hated Ted O'Hara as he had hated no other living person. "I don't suppose it's in the book of etiquette to congratulate the fiancee, but I do."

"Thank you," Anne told him, smiling. He looked at her and if her eyes had not been so blind with terror she must have seen that which was naked in his own.

"Have you forgiven me?" he asked again.

Anne nodded mutely and stepped back a pace, twisted one hand in the other. If McPherson didn't come in, if Eaton didn't go, she'd scream, burst into tears, run away, escape somehow.

But McPherson arrived in time. As his tall shadow darkened the doorway, Eaton said low, hurriedly:

"Anne, I hope you're happy; I want you to be."

"Oh, I am!" she assured him and smiled brilliantly. What was it to him if she were happy or miserable? If he had cared for her, he had recovered soon enough. All his caring had been based on one appeal only, an appeal she had once tried to invite and to make use of, and which had almost destroyed her and him. Happy? She was less happy than ever, now that she had seen him again.

She gathered up her papers and left the men together. Eaton stared after her and McPherson spoke to him twice before he answered. She'd said she was happy. Well, what was it to her how he felt?

By HELEN FOLLETT

A pumice stone will remove hairs from the legs, but there is no reason for using it since it acts the same as a razor and is more likely to irritate the skin. Depilatories make a quick, clean job of it. Facial fuzzers can be removed by means of the electric needle which, when properly manipulated, leaves no scars. The hairs do not return.

When posing for a photograph the lips can be touched with rouge, and the eyelashes and brows blackened with mascara, but no coloring should be applied to the cheeks. In a picture, carmine produces a shadow. Artificial roses will make the face look thin and gaunt, the expression will be wan and haggard. Brown eye shadows applied to the upper lids will make the eyes look larger.

Young daughters should be discouraged from wearing high heels, which are responsible for weak and wobbling ankles. A moderately high heel does no harm; the spike that is like a stilt is a menace not only to the ankles, but to the framework of the body and all the inner organs. People who howl down high heels are not fanatics; they are hygienists.

Ill-fitting shoes and hurty feet set the nervous system to jangling and howling. This is the season to give the little dogs a holiday by putting them in broad, low-heeled sport shoes, relieving the strain on ankles and muscles of the legs caused by high heels. Massaging the feet with cold cream, then bathing with cold water, will relieve burning and smarting. Witch hazel rubs are refreshing.

When ankles are large because of thick bone formations, there's not much hope of finding a remedy. When too much fat has settled, it is a good idea to wear rubber anklets. Rubber prevents evaporation of perspiration and reduces by a sweating-out process. The anklets can be worn at night.

The diet has something to do with oily skin, pimples and blackheads. The less fat taken into the system, the better. Drinking six glasses of water a day will often put the complexion in a better state of humor, stop the excessive shine, inspire the texture to take on a finer quality. Rich gravies are bad. The diet should be well balanced with plenty of fruits and vegetables included. All the eliminating organs should function normally. The skin, kidneys, intestines and lungs throw off wastes.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Should People Wed Without A Settled Future?

Here's a subject that's good for a battle over any dinner table. I bet dad doesn't turn on the radio while this is in progress.

Should a young couple marry without a settled future?

It's Mildred's problem. It's also the problem of thousands of love-lorn young ladies and penniless young gentlemen.

Ben's the first fellow in earth but he has no job, no savings, no prospects. Mildred can work—is working. And she and Ben can afford to marry if she'll continue working.

But suppose she does. Won't that wreck all possible ambition in Ben? Or won't it result in a slatternly, uncomfortable home from which any man would flee in disgust?

Any way she turns the future looks pretty dark to little Milly. So she's turning to us in despair.

"Dear Sally:

"I'm asking for some of your good advice, and I hope you'll have time to give me a little. I'm just up a stump myself.

"I have been going with a boy for two years now. He is everything that a girl could ever want except for one important thing. He hasn't a steady job and he hasn't been able yet to save anything toward getting our future home.

"I really do love Ben, and he is a prince in every other way but that. But much as I love him and appreciate his good points, I wonder sometimes if he will ever get anywhere. And I wonder if I'm being fair to Ben when I think of marrying him under the circumstances. I've heard so much about love flying out the window when poverty comes in at the door that sometimes I feel afraid that if I did marry him I'd be putting such a burden on him or on myself that it might spoil our marriage.

"Or do you think I could continue after marriage? Does it ever work out satisfactorily to have the wife continue working? Don't you think it is better for her to be able to stay at home? The married girls I know who don't work feel that no working wife is treating her husband right, as she cannot of course spend much time cooking or looking out for his comfort. What do you think about it?

"I know that if I married Ben now I would have to keep on working. Ben says positively that he doesn't want me to work, but my parents aren't financially able to help us till we could get on our feet and neither are his, so either I'd have to work or we would be terribly poor. Do you think our love could stand the strain of that?

"I can truthfully say that I do love him and often I feel like going ahead and getting married and trusting to luck to pull us through. Then Ben says I can't marry you when I have nothing to offer you, and I begin to get doubts again. What can I do? I wonder sometimes how long we are going to wait hopelessly with never a prospect in sight, and I wonder if the waiting won't kill our love anyway. He has honestly tried hard to find work but he hasn't succeeded so far.

"What do you think? Please help me. Should we make the plunge or are the odds too heavy against happiness?"

MILDRED

Are the odds too great?

No, if you have the character to buck them, Milly. The business of marriage depends far more on character than it does on circumstances.

Thousands of young people have married in poverty, and made good. Other thousands have married in riches and failed.

It depends on your own individual and united devotion and gumption.

From a brief survey Ben looks fairly long on devotion but short on gumption. It seems hardly reasonable to believe that a husky young man can't find a job in two years—if he really wants to find one.

Are you quite sure that this Ben of yours isn't just a drifting dreamer with a wishbone where his backbone ought to be?

If he is your chances of happiness with him are probably nil.

Living and working side by side through poverty and hardship can be a glorious, gallant adventure, Mildred. But only if both of you do your part.

Only if both of you have the will to work and to climb, to bear with trouble and to laugh it off.

So be sure that the Boy Friend actually does have the get-up-and-get-em to make a place for himself in the world.

And if he does the rest depends on you, Mildred. It depends on how much grit and judgment and gallantness and resourcefulness there is in you.

How much courage you have.

The working wife carries a double load. If she's cheerful and efficient and healthy, she can manage a home, before the children come, just as well as her domestic sister. Indeed, the working wife often makes the brighter, more stimulating comrade. So don't take your girl friends' advice too seriously. They may be making alibis for their own laziness by seeming to warn you against possible danger.

That's what I think, Mildred. And now—how about it, gang? You've watched these modern marriages where both the team hold jobs? Perhaps you're part of such a team? Does it work? Does the working wife destroy her husband's ambition? Does she necessarily neglect her home?

Cosmetic Art Makes Beauty Competion Keener, Says Fay King

By FAY KING

THERE WAS A TIME when the pretty girl in the neighborhood had no competition.

When "THE pretty one" was mentioned everyone knew who was meant.

That was in the day when every girl was supposed to be natural. Only those shone whom nature had blessed with perfect features, flawless complexion and real rosy cheeks.

Today all girls can be pretty.

No one is condemned now for resorting to artifice to be attractive. Rouge, powder and brightening one's hair is okay!

Those were sorry days for many when so few had natural good looks. But today all the boys are Barrymores and all the girls are Garbos.

The only difficulty is making up your mind.

Charm and good looks are merely a matter of tact and good taste.

Madge and Dicky Revive Argument About Revolver

Until Mother Graham was safely behind her bedroom door I did not speak to Dicky. Indeed I lagged far behind my husband and his irate mother, breathing freely only when I heard the decisive click of her door. Then I ran to Dicky and clutched his sleeve impetuously.

"Thank you so much," I said. "But I feel like a hypocrite letting you take all the blame for——"

"Keep on feeling that way," he said, his eyes smiling down at me. "It'll be good for you, as my old headmaster used to say when he was proposing something especially disagreeable for the boys. And I love the role of abused and misunderstood husband, shouldering blame which does not belong to me. So see to it that your conscience doesn't lead you to spill any beans to my august mother about your really being responsible for the early visit to the basement, or for the Christmas scheme behind it. A Texas steer is going to have nothing on her when you tell her about the plan, especially his eyes danced, the prize fight ring. But——"

"Dicky," I protested, "you know it isn't; you mustn't let your mother think you're——"

"She'll think the worst, anyway," he said ruefully. "When I think what I've let myself in for! But don't you care, sweetheart. I'm sold on your scheme. It's the bulliest plan ever. I'll admit I had chilblains last night when you first sprung it, but your selling talk was so swell"—he grinned at me—"that I'm converted. And, though I may emerge from conflict bleeding from every vein, I assure you that my pate will be unbowed, and that I shall return with my shield, not on it. The only anachronism will be that I shall be returning from my mother instead of approaching her. How are those for classical allusions?"

"Pretty bad, but mighty welcome," I told him when I could stop laughing. "Have you time to listen to the plans I made while I was downstairs?"

For answer he caught me to him—we were alone in the hall—and rubbed his cheek against mine.

"That depends," he said. "Do I have to shave before breakfast? If I don't I can give you five minutes or so," the last loftily.

I tried to look judicial and pretended to debate the question, then looked up at him.

"For this once," I said, then caught his arm and rushed him into his room.

"Hurry with your dressing," I said, "for I want to tell you all about my plans first. Then right after breakfast I can talk to my father and your mother."

"Better take my doughty mater first," he warned, "even if you do have to disregard such a trifle as your father being the owner of the house you purpose to remodel."

His lips twisted into a wry grin, and I surmised that his mother's ungracious captiousness tried him sorely. I had opened my lips to tell him that my father had no foolish sensitiveness, but I closed them quickly, aghast at what would have sounded like banal boasting, and substituted a casual, "yes, I mean to talk to Mother first," then frantically searched for something which would change the trend of our conversation. The sight of Dicky's revolver, which he was taking from his pocket gave me an opportunity, at which I snatched.

"Is that loaded?" I asked, although I well knew the answer.

He looked up in astonishment from the inspection he always gives the weapon even after so negligible an event as his response to Katie's causeless hysteria.

"What's buzzing inside the well-known bean?" he asked. "You know it's always loaded."

He stepped to a panel of the wall just beside the head of his bed and pulled open the door to a recess just large enough to contain the weapon. My father and he had contrived the small wall safes for their revolvers when Junior began to toddle around the house and so meticulous had been their caution we were all certain that the small boy of the house did not know of the existence of the weapons.

I hesitated, for I knew of old Dicky's reaction to suggestions from me as to the conduct of what he deems his peculiarly personal affairs. But an unreasoning little foreboding had suddenly raised its head at the sight of the weapon.

I wish you'd unload it before you put it away," I said.

He already had put the revolver in the safe, but he left the tiny door open as he quickly turned toward me.

"Are you going to begin all that again?" he asked, and his tone was distinctly unpleasant, while his eyebrows were drawn into a grim frown. "I thought we settled that question once and for all years ago."

Sweating Process

Reducing by the sweating process isn't so good because it weakens muscles as well as adipose tissue. After the Turkish bath there should be a cold spray or an ice rub to bring a reaction to the blood streams and to tone the muscles. Sweating is all right when there is plenty of exercise and also many cold-water baths.

Household Hints

Daily cleaning of sink, wash bowl and faucets with a soapy cloth, then a good rinse and polish with a dry cloth will keep them in a shiny condition.

When copper-colored hair is to be brightened use the henna pack to which peroxide has been added. To two tablespoonfuls of the pure powdered Egyptian henna add enough boiling water to form a thick paste. Pour in two teaspoonsful of peroxide. Apply when the hair is dry and in need of a shampoo.

Green soap is often recommended for shampoos, and we don't know why. It is a thick gummy substance, of the color of vaseline. If it is used as a cleaning agent it should be dissolved in alcohol, in that form it can be more easily rinsed out of the hair strands. The chances are it is no better than pure castile, a mild brand soap that takes hold of the dirt and which can be easily removed by means of a bath spray. There are many commercial products that are satisfactory.

∴ The Marry-Go-Round ∴

BY HELEN ROWLAND

Mrs. Solomon Says—

Go to, my Daughter. Wherefore do fools and wisecrackers make sport of matrimony and sing the praises of single blessedness?

Wherefore do they mock the bridegroom with their ha-has, saying, "He walketh the plank blindfolded. He taketh the plunge and soon shall be SUNK?"

For verily, verily, in the school of Experience marriage is the Primary Class. And he that hath never matriculated herein, is still in the kindergarten and a babe in the way of wisdom.

Behold, marriage is the disciplinarian, which tameth the wild beast in a man and the wild-cat in a woman.

It is the steam-roller which deflateth the ego, flatteneth out the opinionated and maketh smooth the ways of the rough-neck.

It is the file which blunteth the edge of the cynic's wit and removeth the sharp corners of the shrewish disposition.

It is the flatiron, which leveleth out the wrinkles in the temper, the seams in the character and the knots in the will of the headstrong.

Lo, marriage reduces the superiority complex in a man, even as an electric vibrator reduceth the waistline.

It puncturetth the vanity in a coquettish woman, and maketh it to lie down and behave, even as a fresh marcel.

For, in all his days, a man seareth NO woman's true opinion of himself, until he hath married her. And a woman cannot see herself through the eyes of men, until she hath been wedded to at least one of them.

Go to, All the ways of a bachelor are more SET than a gigolo's hair; and the habits of a confirmed spinster are as unalterable as the menu of a Sunday table d'hote and as hardened as a racketeer's conscience.

But they, who have passed under the steam-roller of marriage and through the first-test of domesticity are become PLIABLE as a last year's felt slipper and flexible as the divorce laws in Reno.

For marriage broadeneth the spirit as travel broadeneth the mind and removeth the self-complacency as a dentist removeth a bad tooth.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Insulin Has Lessened Fear of Diabetes

Today we do not fear diabetes as we used to do. By the discovery of insulin and its application to the disease, we know how to keep the disease in check. Insulin is not, of course, a cure for the disease, but it does enable the body to care for sugar as it could not otherwise do.

DR. COPELAND

Diabetes is of two kinds. In one there is too much sugar present in the urine. In the other no sugar is present, but the quantity of urine passed is enormous.

In this latter type of the disease, sometimes as much as several quarts or even gallons of urine may be passed in a day. The normal quantity is about one quart in 24 hours.

It is natural that so much water extracted from the system should create a great thirst, and thirst is one of the first symptoms of this disease. To be thirsty every ten minutes and at night is a suspicious symptom. Steady loss of flesh is noticed in diabetes, and indigestion is an early symptom. The first thing to do is to have an examination of the urine to ascertain if the trouble is present.

The presence of sugar in the urine shows that the system cannot handle sugar as it should. That is the beginning of real trouble.

Besides indigestion, loss of flesh and thirst, the skin is not clear. Boils and pimples are apt to appear. Repeated boils are indications of a run-down condition. Terrible itching of the skin is another sure sign of diabetes. The nerves are affected. There may be severe cramps in the calves of the legs, or neuralgia. One may have headache.

As the disease progresses the loss of flesh continues. The strength and vigor diminishes. Where the diabetes is of long standing the eyes become inflamed and troublesome. Sometimes a cataract develops, a form known as "diabetes cataract."

Much has been accomplished by dieting. It is a good thing, however, to reduce the sugar carrying foods. The first care should be to eat less starches and sugar than it has been the practice to take.

Because you have diabetes is no reason why you should not live a normal and busy life, with due care to diet, moderation in all things, and care of the body.

Answers to Health Queries

J. D. R. Q.—What do you advise for hemiplegia?

A. Massage and electricity applied to the affected muscles are both helpful. The cause must be removed.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Thursday, July 10

A generally adverse and hazardous state of affairs is predicted from the portentous planetary configurations. With so many forces operating with hostile and malevolent intent it may be wise to plan to do as little as possible constructively, devoting the energies to "holding the fort" and fortifying the affairs and position in all vulnerable points. Employment is in jeopardy, as well as business and all personal matters, which should be managed with discretion.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared to meet a year calling for all their reserve forces and good management, as they may be beset by many conditions of opposition, frustration and hostility. This applies to employment, business and personal affairs, an unfavorable status which will not be mollified by rash, quarrelsome or impulsive demeanor. Resolution, calmness and restraint may be a fortifying factor in tiding over a hazardous period.

A child born on this day may need the most careful and intelligent training and wise counsel to assist it to overcome many adverse circumstances in life.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Tradition White Gown for The First Marriage Only

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1—I am a widow and have resumed my maiden name. I am going to be married and would like to be married in white, like a bride. Would it be proper?

2—I have no mother or father, and would like to know how to have my invitations printed?

3—I am going to have the wedding in a hall. Would it be proper to inclose a reception card for each member of the family, so they can present them, as usually a lot of people attend weddings at halls who are not invited?

S. A. P.

1—No. For her second marriage it is not correct or acceptable that a bride wear the traditional white bridal gown or bridal veil, or orange blossoms.

2—The best form suggests that you have your invitations sent in the name of a near relative—a married sister and her husband, a married brother and his wife, an uncle and aunt. If this is not possible, it would be best form for you to write notes of invitation to your wedding and then send the announcements afterward in the names of yourself and your fiance.

3—Yes. It is perfectly correct to send cards of admission.

Addressing Graduation Announcements

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. When addressing graduation announcements, should one send them to the parents of schoolmates, or to the friends themselves?

2. Should there be any writing on the inside envelope?

MARY.

1. To both, if this is convenient. Even if you have to send only one, and address it like this:

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur George Wills
Miss Mary Wills
3 Athome Place
Chester
Ohio.

2. Yes. The names of the recipients are written on the inside envelope:

Mr. and Mrs. Wills
Miss Wills.

Or, if you wish, the full names, as on the envelope.

An Action That Characterizes One of Ill-Breeding

DEAR MRS. BECKMAN:

1. A says it is permissible, when in a restaurant, to wipe off each piece of silver with the napkin, but that in a private home this would be improper.

2. B says wiping off the silver with a napkin is improper at any time and that if it is not clean enough to be used, the waiter should be asked to bring clean silver.

What do you think? A. F.

1. I cannot agree with A. For I cannot imagine a really well-bred person wiping the silver pieces with his or her napkin. This action certainly looks about as terrible as anything that one can do—awkward, socially inept, suspicious, everything that suggests ill breeding. It is the kind of action which, when we see on the stage, characterizes at once the person who commits it as of this class. Of course doing this in a home would be—I can't think of too strong a word, but certainly if we did this it would be nothing short of a miracle if we were invited again to that home!

2. B has a perfect social point of view about this, and congratulations to him or her for the suggestion of a self-respecting alternative!

The Wedding Invitation That Requires an Answer

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. Will you please tell me how to accept an invitation to a wedding to be held at a church?

2. What kind of dress would be appropriate to wear?

The wedding is to be held in the evening at 7:30. D. F.

1. If the invitation is only for the church ceremony, it is not necessary to acknowledge it. If, however, you received also an invitation to the reception following, you do write an acknowledgment. Like this:

Miss Dorothy Graham
accepts with pleasure
Mr. and Mrs. (Bride's Parents) kind invitation for Tuesday, the tenth of September, at 8 o'clock.

2. If the wedding is formal, you wear formal evening dress.

BOLT FIRES OIL, GAS WELL

TITUSVILLE, Pa., July 9.—Lightning struck a 6,000-barrel tank of crude oil at the Crew Levick refinery in the East End, setting the oil afire. The tank is some distance from the refinery, so the main plant was not in peril.

Titusville firemen, aided by refinery employes, checked the blaze.

WIDOW SLAIN, MINER HELD

WAYNESBURG, Pa., July 9.—Robert Fabbri, 42, Mather miner, was held without bail on a charge of murder when arraigned on a charge of fatally shooting Mrs. Cecelia Guidi, 42, of Mather, at her home last night. Fabbri is said by police to have confessed.

Mrs. Guidi, left a widow by the Mather mine blast of May, 1928, was shot, police say, in the front yard of the home in which she and her three sons have lived since the death of the husband.

Fabbri, a boarder at the Guidi home, was believed jealous of Mrs. Guidi.

Mill Worker Sought On Killing Charge

YORKVILLE, O., July 9.—Sheriff William Yost, of Jefferson County, is seeking Tony Gandio, 31, Yorkville millworker, charged with the murder of Salvatora Guglieno, 38, who was shot to death as he entered his home here.

Short Haul Rates Declared Burden at Hearing

INDUSTRIAL TOWNS OPPOSE BLUE LAW

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

Miss Sue Laird, the Homestead girl, holds the woman's back-stroke swimming championship. Furthermore, she returned from the last Olympic meet in Europe after having helped the U. S. girls' team to win the relay swim.

She enrolled at Temple College. And she flunked that college's swimming test.

Miss Laird flunked because the instructor didn't like her stroke. But perseverance, if you're looking for a new slogan, wins, and Miss Laird is going back to Temple in September as a sophomore—and captain of the swimming team.

Jud Greer is catcher of dogs in Washington, Pa. You may remember him as the young hunter who shot at an iron deer on Senator Crow's estate, near Uniontown, in the belief that the iron deer was not iron.

Now comes his Boswell, Charles A. Earley, with another paragraph of Greeriana. On the Fourth of July they held dog races at the Arden Downs track, near Washington. Everybody knows by now that the dogs chase a mechanical, electric rabbit.

But such a rabbit, for a one-day program, was too expensive to consider. What better, then, than to have Dog Catcher Greer, who usually chases the dogs, this time himself chased?

It was arranged. Mr. Greer, by means of a two-by-four plank, strapped an artificial rabbit to his motorcycle and took to the track before an admiring audience.

At a given signal he chugged his motorcycle past the starting box, from which the racers were to be released.

All went well for a matter of a few yards. Then something went wrong with the Greer machine and the dogs went racing past, ignoring him, motorcycle and rabbit.

We never tell the truth when somebody asks where we spent our vacation. Boast that you spent a week in Mingo Junction and your inquirer will immediately exclaim that he knows "a fella down there by the name o' Joe Glick," or something. Rather than submit to a lengthy report on the life of Joe Glick, we say we spent our vacation in a hospital having our appendix removed in the interests of the unemployed, so just to help them out we gave up our appendix.

Dr. Kahl, the etymologist at Carnegie Institute, always apologizes profusely for forgetting the names of his friends. And you can believe the doctor, for once, in introducing his brother's wife, he forgot her last name.

Jim Malone may have his political regrets that he was beaten for Mayor, but that is all. Financially, they say, Mr. Malone has made, at six months of selling insurance, more than a Mayor draws in six years.

Will Rogers Says:

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., July 9.—The Senate is trying to get all the communications that passed between Ambassador Dawes and President Hoover before the disarmament conference met. When they open 'em all up they will be found to contain nothing but Dawes asking for more smoking tobacco.

Every city kicked on its census returns, claiming they didn't count the suburbs. Well, the whole United States just published theirs, 122 million. Now I guess we will claim America was short-counted. We should have taken in Mexico and Canada.

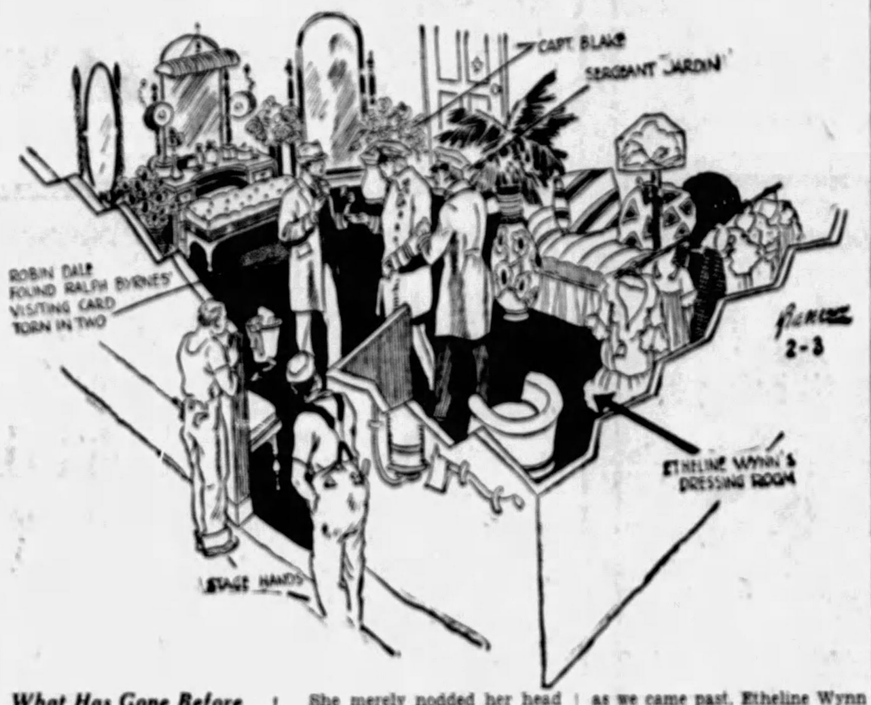
Yours,

WILL.

Master Mysteries

By ARTHUR HOERL

His Last Performance



CAPT. BLAKE
SERGEANT JARDIN
ROBIN DALE FOUND RALPH BYRNES' VISITING CARD TORN IN TWO ETHELINE WYNN'S DRESSING ROOM
STAGE HANDS

What Has Gone Before

Alvin Merle, famous Broadway stage star, is mysteriously murdered in his dressing room after an evening performance. Robin Dale, reporter, finds Capt. Blake and Sergt. Jardin, of the Homicide Squad, at work on the case. Michael, stage-door keeper, and Murray Clyde, the stage manager, are questioned. All the testimony shows that no one entered or left the dressing room during the period Merle was killed. A single window in the room is iron-barred. A mysterious face suddenly appears at the window.

Now Go on With the Story

CHAPTER III

All those in the dressing room had hurried into the corridor by the time Captain Blake came into the theater again holding an indignant woman by the arm. It took only a glance for Robin Dale to recognize her—Parmela Gregory! She had been Merle's leading lady throughout the entire run of "Paramour."

"What's the meaning of this? Lugging me in here like a criminal!" This was prefaced by short exclamations of indignation from Parmela Gregory.

"What were you looking in through that window for?" demanded Captain Blake.

"Is that such a crime? The policeman would not permit me to enter the theater—I saw Alvin's dressing room still lighted up and it was a natural thing to look in. I can't understand what all this commotion is."

"Alvin Merle has been murdered!"

Parmela Gregory swayed for an instant and then her hand went out and gripped the edge of a small table in the corridor. She gazed at Captain Blake as though she did not believe him; then her eyes turned toward Clyde and he nodded his head a preceptible bit.

"Why did you return to the theater, Miss Gregory? I believe you are Miss Gregory?" Blake demanded before she had time to recover from the effects of the tragic fact.

She merely nodded her head at first, thus answering the latter question only. She either could not or would not make any verbal explanation.

"I'm sure she also became a little anxious waiting for Mr. Merle at Ricci's," suggested Robin Dale in a calm voice that he kept particularly low in tone.

Everyone except Capt. Blake turned toward the owner of this unexpected voice. Blake kept his eye on Parmela and saw from the physical reaction that Dale had hit the mark.

"Miss Gregory was the second lady?" Blake addressed his remark to Murray Clyde. The latter assented and then shrugged his shoulders with the air of a man who had done the best he could.

"You were in the habit of dining out with Mr. Merle?" The captain was questioning Parmela again.

"I was!" She spoke quite brazenly now, as though she had gotten a hold on herself. "I loved Merle and he loved me! He was going to get a divorce so we could marry . . ." she started to sob . . . "Alvin—Alvin . . ." and she started toward the dressing room, grief taking sudden possession of her.

Capt. Blake stood in her way. He held out his arm and stayed her.

"I wouldn't go in there, Miss Gregory," he said. He motioned to Clyde to take care of Parmela.

"May I take her home now, sir?"

"We'll want to question you further tomorrow." Clyde nodded and led the weeping Parmela from the theater. Blake stood for a long moment, his eyes narrowed. He turned suddenly to Jardin.

"Try Mrs. Merle again—she may have arrived home."

After a few minutes Jardin returned.

"Not home yet. The maid has no idea where she went or when she'll be home."

"Captain, have you tried the theater?" Dale asked.

"Wasn't a chance to catch her there."

"No telling what you might learn. You know her theater is right next door."

Capt. Blake stiffened.

"Gad! That never entered my mind. Of course! I saw the sign as we came past, Etheline Wynn in something-or-other . . . but her stage name didn't occur to me then."

They went out into the alley. It was as though suddenly the same thought came to all three, Blake, Jardin and Dale, when they saw that the stage entrance to the adjoining theater, Etheline Wynn's, was in the same alley as that to the Christine Theater! Her's was further back in the darker part of the alley. There were men at work on scenery, so the door keeper was still on hand. To Capt. Blake's first question he gave a simple answer which struck them with strange force.

"Miss Wynn left the theater about eleven fifteen with a gentleman."

Jardin's eyes glistened, he was a sleuth on a trail, a trail which seemed to be leading somewhere.

"Who was he?"

"I dunno," the doorman said. "He's been around reg'lar, but I was never introduced to him."

"Rather unfortunate, isn't it, sergeant?" Dale grinned.

"Between doormen and newspapermen a poor copper leads a miserable life."

This passed between Dale and Jardin while the captain ordered the doorman to take them to Miss Wynn's dressing room. It was quite elaborately furnished. Etheline Wynn was a star in her own right, very popular on Broadway. There was a profusion of flowers in vases, set in every conceivable place about the small room. Capt. Blake went to the dressing table and made a minute inspection of things lying on it. Jardin screwed up his eyes as if considering deeply his own plan of attack. Dale walked casually to an ornamented waste basket and rummaged about in it until he found two halves of a card.

He smiled with satisfaction and held the two pieces joined together for Capt. Blake to see.

"Look what I found!"

When Blake read the names his eyes widened perceptibly.

"Ralph Byrnes!"

It was a name well known in the White Light district. One of the biggest gamblers on the street.

"Isn't that a cute thing for a big shot like Byrnes to say. Read it. 'With oodles of love.' Sweet, isn't it?" Dale laughed.

"We'll want to talk to Mr. Byrnes and Etheline Wynn at the office first thing in the morning, Sergeant!" When Capt. Blake finished he led the way out of the room.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

Pop, Peanuts for Parks Await 'Nipper' Byrne

Visitors to North and South Parks are suffering from the lack of "peanuts, popcorn, candy and pop," all because of the absence of a concessionaire, according to County Commissioner C. C. McGovern. At a meeting yesterday, he said:

"What about the concessions in the county parks. There are no refreshments available and the people are complaining. Something should be done before the season is over."

Paul B. Riis, director of the county park bureau, explained that George (Nipper) Byrne, who has a contract with the county for the concessions, is absent from the city. Riis said he had heard from Byrne, who is in Chicago.

Riis told McGovern that the county received a 10 per cent "cut" which totals from $100 to $300 a season from the profits of the refreshment stands.

Concerning the season, Riis reminded McGovern that "we still have August and September."

McGovern asked:

"When is Byrne coming back?"

Riis replied:

"Any time, now."

'SHORT HAUL' RATES CALLED BURDEN

Service Board Told New Rail Schedule Here Unfair; Switching Area Too Small

Increases in short haul freight rates are placing an absolutely unwarranted burden on the Pittsburgh district, F. A. Ogden, traffic manager for the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation, testified before the Public Service Commission today.

The new rate schedules are not affecting other districts to the same extent as Pittsburgh, since switching areas, in which low rates prevail, are far larger at other large producing centers, he stated, on examination by William W. Collin, Jr., counsel for seven of the complaining shippers.

PRESENTS EXHIBITS

Ogden presented exhibits showing that Pittsburgh has a switching area of only 20 square miles. Cleveland's district covers 100 square miles, Philadelphia 125 square miles, Cincinnati 150 square miles, Detroit 180 square miles and Chicago 600 square miles. The increased rates do not apply in switching districts.

At the opening of the hearing, Public Service Commissioner S. Ray Shelby ruled that the burden of proof rests with the railroads. Complaints charging that the new rates which went into effect on May 20 are unfair have been filed by 49 shippers.

Called as the first witness was R. M. Collyer, of New York, chairman of the Traffic Executives' Association of the Eastern Railroads. Guernsey Orcutt, assistant general commissioner for the Pennsylvania Railroad, questioned Collyer.

SHOW COPIES OF ORDER

Collyer admitted exhibits showing the orders made by the Interstate Commerce Commission resulting in the change of freight rates.

Sitting with Commissioner Shelby for the hearing were Commissioner Charles H. Young, of the Public Service Commission; Examiner H. C. Paul, of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and Paul Fickensher, chief of the rate section of the Public Service Commission.

The railroads named in the complaints are the Pennsylvania, the Baltimore and Ohio and the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie.

WILD-CAT BEER PLANTS RAIDED

Dry agents and constables today raided a large wildcat brewery in a garage at the rear of 62 Boundary street.

They reported confiscating four 300-gallon vats of beer mash, two 200-gallon vats of beer and a 300-gallon vat of beer.

The raided the building at 84 Boundary street and reported seizing 28 30-gallon barrels of beer mash and 100 pounds of corn sugar.

The agents made no arrests.

Deserted by Wife Is Granted Divorce

A statement of his wife to him that she was living in Colorado with another party was the principal testimony upon which Judge George V. Moore has granted a divorce to Dr. James A. Fordyce, dentist, of 6201 Penn avenue.

Dr. Fordyce testified that when he returned to his office January 28, 1928, his wife, Harriet R. Fordyce, was gone. He said he did not learn until two weeks later that she had gone to Colorado. The Fordyces were married in 1912 and had lived together for 16 years.

Drum Corps to Hold Meet at McKeesport

A drum and bugle corps competition, expected to attract about 30 of the leading corps of this section, will be staged Friday, August 29, in McKeesport, under the auspices of Burt Foster Post, No. 361, American Legion, according to plans being made by a special committee of the McKeesport organization. Winning corps will share in cash prizes totaling $1,075. A street parade will precede the drum and bugle competition.

CAR (ARROW) VIOLATING "STOP SIGN," BLOCKING TRAFFIC

An offense pointed out by one of the 500 citizen traffic safety observors at Washington street and Bigelow boulevard. This driver should have stopped at the sign, not overrun it and then block outbound traffic until he could turn into the street.

SNAKE DRIVERS PERIL TRAFFIC

That many careless motorists ignore traffic signals was the conclusion drawn today by the Better Traffic Committee, following the report of a traffic safety observer stationed at Bigelow boulevard and Washington place.

The observer noted that one motorist coming down Washington place drove through the traffic sign and blocked outbound vehicles on the boulevard.

Far greater, however, was the number of "snake drivers" who cut across the line denoting the middle of the boulevard, encroaching on the space of cars going in the opposite direction.

The traffic safety observers, of whom there are 500 aiding the Better Traffic Committee, report violations for the purpose of sending tactful letters of remonstrance to the offenders.

Pair Badly Burned When Acid Spills

LATROBE, Pa., July 9.—H. E. Hagan, 21, of Ligonier and Edward Jones, 20, of Latrobe, were severely burned about the hands and feet when the bottom fell from a five-gallon jug of muriatic acid they were attempting to lift at the Latrobe plant of the Bell Telephone Company.

Injured in Auto Crash, $20,000 Asked

John Nara and his wife, Regina Nara, of Uniontown, met with disaster when they drove to Pittsburgh last May 31, and as a result have filed suit in Common Pleas Court against M. Schoenfeld, of Pittsburgh for $20,000 damages. They say the defendant's automobile crashed into their car at Congress street and Wylie avenue, demolishing it, and injuring them both badly. Nara says he was able to get but $25 for his machine after the wreck.

BRADDOCK'S VOTE 8-1 FOR REPEAL

Workers Register Demand For Sunday Recreation in 5 Boroughs, 4 Townships

Results of the poll in Homestead and McKees Rocks and the townships of Mifflin, Mt. Lebanon, Stowe, Scott and Robinson will be published tomorrow. Results in third class cities will follow on Friday and Wilkinsburg on Saturday. Final results will be published Sunday.

The overwhelming demand of the larger industrial communities to level the barriers against Sunday recreation is voiced by Braddock, leading a sectional group of boroughs and townships yielding a substantial response in the Blue Law poll of Allegheny County by the Sun-Telegraph.

The assembled ballots from the boroughs of Braddock, Rankin, Swissvale, Wilmerding and Forest Hills, and the townships of North and South Fayette, Versailles and North Versailles, give a 6-to-1 majority favoring repeal over enforcement of the Blue Law. Braddock votes 8 to 1 for repeal. The divisions are:

	Enforcement.	Modification.	Repeal.
Braddock	86	52	678
Rankin	29	23	306
Swissvale	69	51	403
Wilmerding	53	22	190
Forest Hills	15	13	78
N. Fayette	25	9	97
S. Fayette	12	11	125
Versailles	30	10	113
N. Versailles	22	11	121
Totals	341	202	2111

The 2,654 ballots in the poll from these subdivisions represent nearly 25 per cent of the total vote, 11,239, cast in them at the May primary.

The grand totals in the poll of the county to date include 61,881 ballots, giving a ratio of 4.9 votes for repeal to 1 vote for enforcement. The divisions are:

	Men.	Women.	Total.
Enforcement	3,474	4,217	9,691
Modification	2,196	1,656	4,852
Repeal	33,083	14,255	47,338

Woman Finds Man's Body in Cellar

When Mrs. Tresa Ibets went to the cellar of her home, rear of 210 Chestnut street, to do a washing, she found the body of a man, she reported to police. The body is believed that of Louis Kern, 65, whose address is not known. He is said to have been sleeping in cellars of the district. Death was attributed to a cerebral hemorrhage. The body was removed to the morgue.

Hundreds See Man Rescued by Guard

Three hundreds bathers at No. 5 pool in the Allegheny River, near Highland Park, saw H. P. Forepaugh, a guard, rescue Frank Ouleano, of 5567 Apple avenue, from drowning in the stream late yesterday. Ouleano was in the middle of the river when he was seized by cramps and his screams brought Forepaugh to his aid. After being revived, Ouleano was able to go home.

Millions Available Here For Building Projects

Pittsburgh has $18,000,000 available for sound building projects, especially for home building of a non-speculative character, according to a report read by Herbert U. Nelson, executive secretary of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, at the national convention in session in Toronto.

Nelson was the first speaker when the convention was called to order in the Canadian city. The fact Pittsburgh had ample funds for building of homes was revealed by a survey made of 46 widely scattered cities. The survey was made because the association felt resumption of building as asked by President Hoover had been delayed due to reluctance on the part of the public to ask for construction loans.

Documentary evidence from individual banks and mortgage houses support the survey, it was said. The survey revealed $843,712,000 can be loaned at once in these 46 cities for non-speculative building. Chicago reported the highest sum available, $300,000,000.

Three score Pittsburgh realtors are attending the convention. J. R. Brady, executive secretary of the local board, and J. W. Cree, Jr., president, head the delegation.

1 SHOT IN ROAD HOLDUP

County detectives and Emsworth police today were investigating the reported holdup of Frank Ward's barbecue stand in Camp Horne road early today, in which Jack McCall, 30, of Cleveland, a diner, was shot. He was taken to Suburban General Hospital, Bellevue, suffering a bullet wound in the left side.

Two of the alleged holdup men, who told police they were Thomas Daugherty, 25, of 333 Thirty-sixth street, and Edward J. Sullivan, 33, of 3520 Butler street, were captured. A third was being sought.

Ward told Emsworth and Ben Avon police that after he closed his place for the night at 1 a. m., four persons drove to his home, nearby, and asked to be served. The quartet who were later questioned by police said they were A. C. Hedges, of 3303 Fifth avenue; Rose Anderson, 23, of 957 Western avenue; Mrs. Gertrude Point, 28, of 909 Herron avenue, and McCall.

Ward told police he and his brother, William Ward, and Hedges overpowered and held Daugherty and Sullivan until Motorcycle Patrolmen William T. Pollock of Emsworth, and William Berg of Ben Avon police arrived and who took the prisoners to the Emsworth lockup.

Ward said he was robbed of a small amount of change.

The Camera Question Box

Today's question:—Why are you glad you live in Coraopolis?

Miss Arras

MISS MARGUERITE ARRAS, book-keeper, Coraopolis—Well, I've always lived here and know a lot of people. I like the place and think it one of the nicest of the boroughs around here.

Max Snyder

MAX SNYDER, salesman and shop manager, Coraopolis—Coraopolis has a lot of advantages. It has good industries, is near Pittsburgh, is sufficiently far away from the dirt of the city, and has all the best qualities of a small town. There are good places around here for outings and it's easy to get acquainted with people.

Miss Gerwig

MISS KATHERINE GERWIG, saleswoman, Coraopolis—Business is here. Then, too, Coraopolis is a nice residential town and one of the prettiest around here. The people are congenial and friendly, too.

Ray Ridgeway

RAY RIDGEWAY, bank teller, Coraopolis—I'm glad I live here—it's a mighty good place. It has everything to offer that any other community has and I would not live any place else.

Miss Devenzio

MISS ELIZABETH DEVENZIO, clerk, Coraopolis—I've always lived here and I wouldn't move out unless it was absolutely necessary. The tennis is good and the swimming pools are convenient and attractive. I like the town a lot.

Miss Boli

MISS BRADAMONT BOLI, clerk, Coraopolis—It seems to be more desirable as a residential section than Pittsburgh itself and is a much prettier place. It's convenient to the city, too, so that you can get back and forth easily

A home owner invites the respect of the community. You will see many splendid values in homes advertised in the Classified Ads. Turn to them now.

KNIGHTS, C. D. A. HOLD OUTING

Members of 62 councils and courts of the Pittsburgh District, Knights of Columbus and Catholic Daughters of America, staged their annual outing at Kennywood Park yesterday. An elaborate program of sports and entertainment continued throughout the day and dancing featured the evening session.

Pittsburgh Business Group Backs Pact

Civic bodies throughout the county today were being notified that the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, through its committee on national legislation, had adopted a resolution recommending that the London naval treaty of 1930, now pending in the United States Senate, be approved. All chambers of commerce and boards of trade in the county were urged to take similar action. Copies of the resolution were sent to the United States senators from Pennsylvania and to the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Victim of Officers' Bullet Badly Hurt

Rudy Smith, 16, a Negro, of 2536 Wylie avenue, shot through the body by a policeman at Hooper and Ivanhoe streets, was in a serious condition in Mercy Hospital today. Patrolman Leo Banaszah, of Center Avenue Station, reported he saw three boys pushing an automobile, and when he ordered them to stop they ran. Smith, sitting in the front seat of the car, was hit by the bullet.

AD CLUB MAKES FIVE AWARDS

Four men and one woman received recognition for merit in advertising surveys and analysis yesterday at the weekly meeting of the Pittsburgh Advertising Club in the William Penn Hotel.

Cathryn Dauster, Charles E. Yost, Jr., and Robert Quaid and M. S. Berry were presented awards by Robert E. Grove, chairman of the prize committee, for meritorious work done as students of the University of Pittsburgh advertising course during the past year. Berry was given an alumni award medal also.

Phillip Ruprecht, of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, was given the advanced award the second time in as many years for his work in preparing a promotion and advertising campaign thesis on the Westinghouse Radio Salutes to Industry.

The prize committee, besides Grove, included F. A. Weston, advertising manager for Kaufmann's, and W. C. White, advertising manager for the Aluminum Company of America. J. C. McQuiston, of Westinghouse, was the speaker.

UNVEIL STATUE OF WASHINGTON

The name of a man who lost instead of won his battle is on the tongue of tens of thousands of people today.

For Gen. Edward Braddock, slain near Tassey's Hollow, now Braddock and Rankin, will be given the second day of a triumphal celebration with leaders of the land paying tribute on the one hundred and seventy-fifth anniversary of the famous battle between the British and Colonial troops, and the Indian and French.

MELLON PARTICIPATES

Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon joined in the spirit of the celebration early this afternoon. He was escorted to Braddock by George A. Todd, mittee. Accompanied by his son, Paul W. Mellon, he assured interviewers he had mapped out a busy day.

In the interium, the steamer William Clyde, with a gaily decorated barge attached, left the Monongahela wharf at 9:15 for Braddock, following the route by eye at least, which Gen. Braddock had taken 175 years ago, arriving at Braddock at 1 p. m. Among those aboard were Judge R. Walton Moore, of Virginia; Congressman Clyde Kelly, Congressman W. H. Temple, of Washington, Pa.; Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, Prothonotary John Vogt, Controller Robert Woodside, numerous other city and county officials and invited guests to the number of 300. The Braddock Male Chorus sang and light refreshments were served.

Secretary Mellon made the principal address at the unveiling of the statue to George Washington, the young engineer, who was with Gen. Braddock. Following this there was a parade through Braddock, Rankin, Swissvale and adjoining boroughs.

HOLD DINNER TONIGHT

A dinner will be held tonight in the William Penn Hotel, at which celebrities will attend. Secretary Mellon will be one of the speakers. After sunset tonight, the picturesque dramatization of the growth of Braddock, the pageant of the periods through which it passed, the re-enactment of the battle of Braddock's Field, will be repeated in Tassey's Hollow.

An estimated throng of 40,000, covering the hillsides around the Hollow's natural amphitheater, saw the pageant last night. They watched its 1,500 actors move in pantomime and recreate the scenes and lives of the past. As many more may view it tonight.

AIRPLANE STUNTS

Prior to the opening of the pageant last night, a squadron of Army planes moved over the district. Following in their wake were stunt ships that thrilled those who formed the seemingly endless procession bound for the pageant.

The pageant itself was in 12 episodes. Dancing girls symbolized the beginning of the world, the seasons, the growth of life, the growth of men. Indians from the Seneca tribe in Northern New York, men dressed in the uniforms of the old Colonial and British troops, Gen. Washington, Braddock, Lafayette, the principal characters and incidents of American history moved in and out through the thread of the historical tale.

Michael Robert Wright, of the British embassy, and Maj. Georges Thenault, of the French embassy, were to make brief addresses at the dedication of the monument this afternoon. Celebrities at the dinner in the William Penn Hotel tonight will include Gov. John S. Fisher, Senator David A. Reed, Senator Millard E. Tydings, of Maryland, and other political figures.

The pageant was directed by Joseph Lawler and John T. Hall.

State police from the Greensburg barracks, detectives from Pittsburgh and borough officers from the district handled the throng. A great area set aside for public parking was efficiently handled by a corps of volunteer workers.

Sixty thousand postage stamps, commemorating the "Battle of Braddock Field," were placed on sale at the Braddock postoffice today.

TRAFFIC STUDY FOR POLICE

Pittsburgh patrolmen and traffic officers will initiate a program of traffic education at roll call in the city's 16 police stations and in the traffic bureau headquarters in the City-County Building. Instruction cards are to be issued each week to the 1,400 officers and patrolmen regarding some specific provision of the state vehicle code or city traffic ordinance. The first cards will be delivered tomorrow, detailing provisions of the state code in regard to through traffic streets.

Frank L. Duggan, general chairman of the Better Traffic Committee, sponsors of the traffic education, will explain the program to the 162 traffic officers who report at the City-County Building tomorrow. On successive Thursdays other members of the committee will explain to the group the provisions of the weekly card. Material for the cards is being developed by Traffic Inspector Jacob Dorsey and Ben Marshall, assistant superintendent of police.

Injured by Auto, Sues for $15,000

That the automobile trip of Carl H. Odette and family, of White Plains, N. Y., was marred in Pittsburgh was revealed in a suit for $15,000 damages on file today in Common Pleas Court. The action was brought by Edward Woods, who claims that while crossing the street at Hamilton and Lang avenues the Odette car, driven by Helen Odette, daughter of the owner, knocked him down, fracturing his skull and bruising his body. Woods claims the brakes on the Odette car were defective.

'MOTHER' JONES LAUDS JOHN D.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., July 9.—(INS)—John D. Rockefeller, Sr., who says he will live to be 100, today started on his ninety-second year. He closed the celebration of his ninety-first birthday last night with a dinner at which his guests were Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. David Milton and Abby Rockefeller Milton, his great-grandchild.

Messages from all parts of the world were received by Mr. Rockefeller on his birthday. One which he was said to value highly came from Mother Jones, who years ago battled the Rockefeller interests on behalf of laborers. Mother Jones wired best wishes from her sickbed in Maryland. She returned the good wishes sent to her when she was 100 by the man of wealth. Her message said:

"Congratulations on the arrival of your ninety-first anniversary. Thank God we have some men in the world yet as good as you. We never needed them more than we do today. Most sincere wishes that you may be blessed with many more."

Seek Owners of Two 300-Gallon Stills

Prohibition agents today were seeking the owner of two 300-gallon stills which they said they seized in a building at 118 Flavel street, last night. An odor of mash emanating from the place resulted in the raid, agents said.

Sam Calluca, 32, of 1232 Liverpool street, was arrested when a 100-gallon still, 34 barrels of mash and 1,600 pounds of corn sugar were found in his home, according to agents.

COUNTY SEEKS BRIDGE SAFETY

County Commissioner C. C. McGovern has asked his colleagues to investigate the strength of railings on county bridges and roads. Discussing the question at a meeting yesterday, he said:

"There has been one serious mishap on Liberty Bridge and numerous accidents on county roads as a result of automobiles running into railings.

"A section of Liberty Bridge railing gave way with the impact of an automobile. We should hold a hearing and determine the proper measures to safeguard the people."

Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong concured with McGovern's suggestion to hold a hearing in August.

BUS LINES JOIN IN ERIE ROUTE

Permission to extend bus service between Pittsburgh and Erie over the Perry Highway is asked in applications for certificates of public convenience filed before Special Examiner W. E. Best, of the Public Service Commission, here yesterday. The Pittsburgh, Harmony, Butler & New Castle Railway Company, which now runs two buses a day between Pittsburgh and Zelienople, asked permission for general service and to extend their line to Portersville, nine miles north of Zelienople.

The Welch Transportation Company, with bus lines between towns in the northwestern part of the state, asked to operate a line between Portersville and Meadville, by way of Mercer, Sandy Lake and Cochranton.

Hurt Getting Off Trolley, Sues Driver

John Barlock, of Coraopolis, was made defendant in a $10,000 damage suit on file in Common Pleas Court today as the result of his automobile striking James Wallace on June 21, last, at Chartiers avenue and Linden street, West End. Wallace says he was crossing the street to board a trolley car stopped at the corner when Barlock's car swerved onto the left side of the highway. Wallace was knocked down and became unconscious. His head, face and legs were injured, he avers.

Montour Heights Country Club Popular With Society Golfers

Golf is certainly proving to be the leading outdoor summer sport. The lovely Montour Heights Country Club attracts society folks from Sewickley and Pittsburgh, and nearly every day women play on the spacious links. The white clubhouse, with its huge stone chimneys and porches gaily decked with green wicker porch furniture brightly upholstered in green and yellow cretonne, provides a colorful background for the players.

Sports Frocks

Yesterday I saw Gertrude Tetlow there. She looked cool and she was wearing a sports frock of brown and [illegible] flowered crepe and around her head she wore a silver [illegible]. Elizabeth Miller, a debutante of this season, was there, wearing a [illegible] with a green [illegible] and she was getting a lot of fun out of golfing. Miss Louise Gardiner wore a sheer and white printed frock.

I saw Adele and Marianna Lippincott arrive, attired [illegible]. Adele was wearing a white crepe sports frock and her sister chose yellow crepe with a white hat. With them was Martha Leggate wearing an orchid wool skirt with an orchid sweater and a chic [illegible] of orchid. Catherine Boyd had chosen a plaid and white sleeveless linen frock and Mrs. Hugh Davis, who was playing, wore a green and white piqué frock. Helen Clark, wearing blue crepe with a pleated skirt and a cape collar, wore a hat of white straw with a blue ribbon band, and with her was her sister Louise who wore blue and white printed crepe frock with a flared cape collar and a wide-brimmed black straw hat.

Alice Gumbinger arrived wearing a small blue tweed skirt with a lighter blue jersey blouse having a [illegible] back. Elizabeth Cornelius was sitting on the porch of the clubhouse wearing a yellow and white printed frock with a white bandeau around her head. Mrs. Horace Thomas, Jr., I saw wearing a yellow and black wool suit with a yellow jersey blouse and a white felt hat. With her was her small son, Horace Thomas, III, and her small daughter, Mary Allen Thomas, who wore a frock of blue and white dimity. Martha Smith, with her small sister, Ann, was there, and she wore a frock of white shantung with a small jacket of blue shantung. Ann wore blue and rose print.

Tweed Popular

Lindsay Boyd, who was also playing, wore a yellow and white broadcloth frock, sleeveless, of course. Mrs. S. K. Colby of Sewickley, wore a two-piece yellow crepe frock with a novelty gold leather belt and an eggshell straw hat. With her was Miss Rachel McCormick who wore a rose coin dotted crepe frock with a pleated skirt.

Mrs. Hal F. Booth of Coraopolis Heights had chosen a knitted purple skirt with an orchid sweater and a hat of purple felt. As she left the clubhouse I noticed she wore a smart jacket of purple crepe.

And travelers again come to my attention. Robert F. Arrott and C. F. Arrott, Jr., and Mrs. Birney K. McMeechen of Sewickley are all in Gotham and are guests at the Roosevelt Hotel there.

Travel Notes

The junior James William Bennings, of Montreal and British Columbia, who have been guests of Mrs. Bennings's mother, and father, the George Phelps Roses, of Thorn street, Sewickley, are leaving for Montreal today.

Leaving today for Blue Hill are Anna W. Nevin and her sister, Marie Nevin, of Chestnut road, Edgeworth, where they will be the guests of Mrs. Ethelbert Nevin at her summer home. And Mrs. Frederick A. Russell will spend several weeks with Mrs. Nevin, too.

In Nantucket, Mass., for several weeks are Mrs. Alexander Stuart Hunter, of Fifth avenue, and her daughter, Miss Laetitia Hunter. They are guests at the White Elephant Inn, where they will be joined today by the Alexander Hays Hunters, son and daughter-in-law of Mrs. Hunter.

Did you know that Mrs. J. Reuban Rose, of Meadow lane, Sewickley, accompanied by her daughters, Ruby and Dorothy, and Mary Anderson Standish, daughter of the Thomas A. Standishes, left last week for a trip to Colorado? They will be there for several weeks. Mrs. John Harper is visiting Virginia Forsyth at the summer home of her aunt, Mrs. Charles G. Zug, at Point Pleasant, N. J. Mr. Harper motored to Point Pleasant last week, but has returned home. You'll remember Mrs. Harper as the former Anna Margaret Snow.

A motor trip through New England has attracted Maria Leiper and Helen Boyd, a classmate at Vassar. They visited in Nantucket, Mass., for several days. Returning from a northern trip the end of this week are Mr. and Mrs. William Kidder, III, whose [illegible] was an event of last [illegible].

[illegible] Mawr, N. J., for the [illegible] are the Frederick H. Atwoods of Fifth avenue. Mrs. William Thaw, III, whose daughter, Virginia, you will remember made her bow to Pittsburgh society in the home of her grandmother, Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., of Sewickley, has returned to her home in Southampton after visiting in Gotham for some time.

Last evening Elizabeth Arbuthnot, daughter of the junior Charles Arbuthnots of Fifth avenue, left for Gotham, and will go from there to Watch Hill, R. I., where she will be the guest of Mrs. Harry Darlington at her summer home. Later in the season Elizabeth plans to go to the Eaton ranch in Wyoming.

Mildred G. Eliot, who sailed on May 28 as a delegate to the Overseas Women's convention, returns home Tuesday.

Mrs. W. H. Mulvihill and Billie Mulvihill are in Atlantic City at Chalfonte-Haddon Hall.

Several informal entertainments have been given during this week in honor of Mrs. Elizabeth Neale, of Englewood, N. J., her daughter, Mrs. Frederick Thatcher, also of Englewood, and the latter's daughter, Elizabeth Thatcher. Mrs. Neale is the guest of her son and daughter-in-law, the John Neales, of Blackburn Farm, Sewickley Heights, and the Thatchers are visiting the James Elwyn Browns, of Beaver road. They were entertained on Thursday by Miss Coral Quay, of Old Edgeworth, at a luncheon in the Allegheny Country Club. Mrs. Thatcher will visit in Kittanning before returning to Englewood on Friday.

D. A. R. Head Honored at Luncheon

Especially beautiful appointments marked the luncheon given yesterday by Mrs. William H. Hamilton at the Hotel Schenley. A large center silver urn was filled with pink roses and baby's breath and four small silver vases, matching the urn, held rosebuds. The luncheon was given in honor of Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart, national president of the Daughters of the American Revolution, who is in Pittsburgh for the Braddock celebration.

Other guests, all of whom are prominent in the D. A. R., included Miss Margaret B. Barnett, Mrs. Adam M. Wyant, Mrs. Clyde Kelly and Mrs. Thomas W. Phillips, all of Washington; Mrs. John Brown Heron, Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., Mrs. William Maclay Hall, Mrs. Mortimer Miller, Mrs. J. Blaine Snow, Miss Julia Morgan Harding, Mrs. Edward B. Scull, Mrs. Charles A. Finley, Mrs. Joseph W. Marsh and Mrs. Henry Clay McEldowney, who is Mrs. Hamilton's successor as regent of the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Daughters.

Chatting for a few minutes before the luncheon, Mrs. Hobart spoke of the scholarship work which is one of the outstanding activities of the organization and in which it expended $30,000 last year. A new scholarship has been presented to the 4-H Club (heart, hands, home and happiness), an organization of farm boys and girls which was formed under the supervision of the Department of Agriculture.

CHIC VELVET TOQUES HEADED FOR LATE SUMMER POPULARITY

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, July 9.—Just to show you we are not hot-headed we are going to wear quite a lot of velvet hats during the late summer and autumn. Some houses are even showing velvet hats for summer wear and seem to have found purchasers, especially in brimmed models of light colors. It looks like little draped velvet toques, too, this autumn and the inimitable Agnes is already showing several such models, very chic and devastatingly becoming to the youthful face. Black combined with subtle colors should be well to the fore in the millinery march.

GREEN CONTINUES to be much seen here, especially in the evening. There is such a happy and refreshing air about a green evening frock. The sketch shown here today is of a formal evening gown by Worth in pastel green crepe georgette. It is elaborately trimmed with a flower design in pin tucking and bordered at the skirt with matching panne velvet. The bow at the back and lowest point of the V-shaped decolletage is also of the velvet. Green suede gloves are worn with this dress.

THE HAT IS from Agnes who offers it in black velvet with almond green grosgrain ribbon. The further side of the close-fitting toque, as indicated in the drawing, is slightly draped. Little tabs of the ribbon give width to the sides and help to lessen the severity of the silhoutte. This is an early autumn model that it is believed will prove very popular.

ELOPERS LEAVE CABIN HOME

DENVER, July 9.—(AP.)—A Denver rodeo performer and polo player, Charles E. Foster, and his bride, the former Edith E. Lippincott, wealthy Philadelphia society woman, who eloped and married three months ago in Arizona, have settled down to housekeeping in Denver.

The newlyweds, until a short time ago, lived in a tiny mountain cabin near here. Their decision to move to Denver was reached after they had obtained the blessings of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lippincott. Their present home is in a small cottage near the polo stables of Lawrence C. Phipps, Jr.

The bride's mother visited here for a few days last week and then returned to her Eastern home.

Term Foul Rule Illegal.

PANTHERS WORK IN MINES AND MILLS.

ON NEARLY EVERY bathing beach this summer, as is usually the case during the college vacation period, you'll find a prominent football star or two trying to earn a few honest dollars doing lifeguard duty. That's the favorite occupation of many of gridiron luminaries who have not yet completed their university courses. They find the work agreeable and believe that its athletic and outdoor features tend to give them a good start toward football fitness before beginning real training in September.

Eddie Baker.

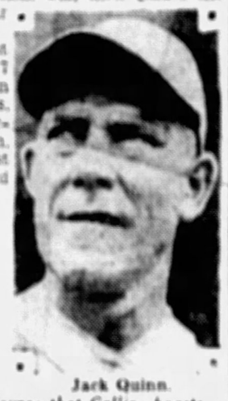
But there is one front rank grid coach who disagrees with them on the latter view. He is Dr. J. B. Sutherland, of the University of Pittsburgh, and as a result of Joe's ideas on the subject the pigskin specialists now serving at the various beaches do not include any members of the Panther squad. Sutherland frowns on lifeguard work for his players during the summer months. He thinks swimming gives them an over-development of certain muscles which tends to slow them up for football in the fall.

THE PITT COACH prefers to see his men doing some sort of hard manual toil and in view of that attitude when he returns from Scotland the latter part of this month he probably will be pleased to learn of the summer activities of the boys who are to play leading parts in Pitt's football affairs for 1930. Practically all of them have scorned soft jobs and gone in for strenuous stuff.

Capt. Eddie Baker is doing some coal mining at Nanticoke, and Bill Walinchus is engaged in the same kind of work at Mahanoy City. Warren Heller is toiling in the mills at Sterlton. Jim Tully and John Lurk are working in a lumber yard at Wheeling. Others are employed in factories and mills and at painting and ordinary day labor. In fact, the only one reported resting is Ralph Daugherty, who just recently left a hospital after an operation for appendicitis. There are no idlers on the Panther squad, and it will be a well-toughened bunch of gridders that reports to Sutherland when the annual call to practice is sounded.

LUCK MAY BE turning for the surviving spitballers in the big show, temporarily at least. All four of them won their games the last time out, the first occasion this year when they have come through together.

The count for the season is still against them, however. They have won only 17 games while losing 26. Only old Jack Quinn is able to show more victories than defeats. He has won eight games and lost five. Burleigh Grimes has won five and lost seven. Clarence Mitchell has won two and lost four, and Urban Faber has won two and lost 10.



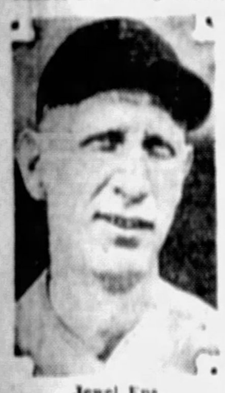
Jack Quinn.

NEW EVIDENCE THAT there is at least one real pitcher on the wobbly staff of the Phillies was produced yesterday when Phil Collins bowled over the Giants and almost shut them out. A hurler with a record of nine games won and only two lost with a club like the Phils behind him and before their schedule is half played, must have been doing considerable chucking. Those are the figures that Collins boasts up to date, and they cause a fan to wonder what he would have accomplished with the support of a winning club.*

AND THAT COLLINS has not made his record by picking soft spots is shown by the fact that he has beaten every other club in the National League. He has defeated the Robins and Giants twice each and the Cubs, Pirates, Cardinals, Reds and Braves once each. Only the Pirates and Braves have downed him.

Collins is not a spring chicken, being near the 30 mark. He was with the Phillies last year, but that was not his first appearance in the big show, as the Cubs had him in 1923 only to let him get away. Bill Killefer, who was managing the Bruins at the time, kept Floyd Wheeler for 1924 and dropped Collins.

JEWEL ENS probably is sighing for one or two more pitchers like Remy Kremer. Even if he had only one other flinger of the same caliber as the big Californian, the Pirate leader might be able to get somewhere in spite of the crippled condition of his club.



Jewel Ens.

Kremer's victory over the Cardinals yesterday stood out as prominently as did that of Rube Walberg, who, in shutting out the Yankees, administered the first blank of the season to the only club in either league that had not been whitewashed previously.

KREMER HAS BEATEN the Redbirds three times this year, and has been the main factor in the Pirates' achievement of taking seven out of 10 games from Gabby Street's team, the only club except Cincinnati ever which they hold an edge. Remy now has 11 victories to his credit, practically one-third of the number scored by the Bucs. Only one pitcher in either big league has won more games than Frenchy, that hurler being Ted Lyons, of the White Sox, who registered his twelfth win yesterday. The only others who have won 11 are Lefty Grove, George Earnshaw and Wesley Ferrell. Grove has lost three games, Kremer and Earnshaw five each, Lyons eight and Ferrell nine.*

NOT ONLY DO many friends of boxing object to the new no-foul edict of the New York commission because it opens the way for unclean fighting by removing the penalty, but they challenge it also on the ground that it is illegal.

They say that even though a boxer signs a contract including a clause in which he waives the right to claim a foul, as Champion Sammy Mandell and challenger Al Singer have done for their lightweight title fight one week from tomorrow night, he could go into court later and have the commission's ruling knocked out.

KAUFFMANN BACK

Yesterday the qualifying round for the national public links championship was staged under the direction of Kenneth Withrow, of the U. S. G. A., public links section, on the Schenley Park layout. Carl Lunden, A. Szwedko, Mike Galido, and the defending national champion, Carl F. Kauffmann, will represent Pittsburgh in the big event at Jacksonville, Fla., next month. If Kauffmann is able to come through in the Southern competition, he will be one of the few men in the history of the game

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: STONEWALL JACKSON WAS KILLED BY HIS OWN MEN—Thomas Jonathan (Stonewall) Jackson's tragic death by his own troops, and by his own orders, came about in the following manner: He had given orders to shoot any soldier approaching from the opposite direction to the place where they were encamped. But at the end of a victorious day he was returning from a personal reconnoitering of the hostile camp when the Confederates mistook him for a Federal and shot him fatally in accordance with his own orders. He died May 10, 1863.

LIFERS MEET REICK NINE

By TOM BIRKS.

The Commercial and Industrial League swings into action this evening with two big games. Reliance Life, the first-half champion, will clash with the Reick-McJunkin nine at Sullivan Field. George Miller's classy club copped the first half by beating B. & O. in the final game, and it must be said that the Insurance boys are popular champions.

Good pitching and heavy hitting won the title for the Miller aggregation, and Mr. Scott feels that the boys will cop the second half. Some of the other clubs, however, are ready for the Insurance brigade, and some bitter battles are expected.

B.-O.. DRAVO CLASH

Baltimore and Ohio, runner-up in the first-half fight, meets Dravo at Dravo Park. The Stritzinger aggregation gave Reliance a scare in the first game of the second half, so B. & O. must be on the alert.

DeMor and Observatory Civics, two of the finest light first-class teams in the city, will swing into action this evening for the first-half title of the Steel City League. This is going to be a battle of pitchers. In Discola and McConnel, Managers DeMor and Meeder feel that they have the best young hurlers on the sandlots. These boys are scheduled to oppose each other. The game will be played at Pleasant Valley.

Only one game will be staged in the City League. J. L. Thomas travels to W. O. W. to hook up with Jedinaks' hard-hitting outfit. This game should attract a big crowd.

HOMERS FEATURE

Next week the two sections of the Steel City League will resume operations for the second-half title. The playoffs have kept the schedule back one week.

Goodman Lives In State at Interlachen

MINNEAPOLIS, July 9.—(AP.)—Johnny Goodman, Omaha's midget master of the links, had to hitch-hike to Peebie Beach last fall, where he eliminated Bobby Jones from the National amateur in an early round and won wide notice.

But not this year. Now he travels pretentiously and brings his hotel right along. In a house on wheels, Goodman, with two Nebraska friends, has set up housekeeping just off Interlachen, where tomorrow he will make his bid for the National open crown.

MISS ORCUTT WINS MEDAL

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 9.—(AP.)—Maureen's chances of winning the first New York State Women's championship took a jump here yesterday when the Englewood, N. J., Miss, playing from the Lido Country Club took medalist honors in the 18-hole qualifying round. Miss Orcutt finished within three strokes of men's par with a 75 to top the field of 99 players, every one of whom turned in a card to set some sort of tourney record.

After Miss Orcutt's 75 came an 81 hung into the records by Miss Helen Hicks, of Inwood Country Club in second place. With these two stars setting the pace, the championship flight qualifying scores mounted to 109 with but one tally between 91 and 100. Miss Glenna Collett had an 88 for a fifth place tie, with two others.

Sir Walter Wins Circuit Feature

CLEVELAND, July 9.—(AP.)—Sir Walter, owned jointly by W. N. Reynolds, of Winston-Salem, N. C., and Henry Knight, of Columbus, won the $3,000 Edwards stakes feature of yesterday's Grand Circuit program and in doing so twice broke the record for the stake.

JONES PRIME OPEN CHOICE

MINNEAPOLIS, July 9.—(AP.)—America's big parade of golfing greats went through their final rehearsals for the national open championship at old Interlachen today as the world of golfdom doubtfully wondered if it included a shotmaker capable of stopping the triumphant march of the one and only Bobby Jones.

Ever since Bobby first trooped out of Atlanta bent for conquest almost a decade ago, he has been a threat to win the most coveted of all American golf crowns. But this time fresh from his brilliant foreign victories, he stands out as the most prohibitive favorite ever to compete for any golfing diadem, however large or small.

It was Jones against the field as never before.

Hope springs eternal, however, and it was high in the hearts of many of Bobby's 146 rivals, who will fight against him on the 72-hole medal battle which opens tomorrow. Some believed the champion would crack under the physical and mental strain of the past month; others like Walter Hagen, Horton Smith, Johnny Farrell, George Von Elm, Gene Sarazen, Tommy Armour, Jimmy Johnston, MacDonald Smith, Leo Diegel, Bill Mehlhorn and Cyril Tolley, Great Britain's sole representative, were ready to match his card. They all have turned in good practice rounds and have reputations for campaigning brilliantly.

As the contestants came out for their final practice round today, they had a record to shoot at already as produced from their field. Yesterday in defiance to a scorching sun, Henry Ciuci, of Stratford, Conn., and Whiffy Cox, of Brooklyn, toured the course with a pair of 69s, three under par. They equaled the course record and topped by one stroke the best practice rounds turned in by Jones, Von Elm and a few others.

LEGION FINAL CARDED

The Phillies Club of Squirrel Hill and the Irene Kaufmann Settlement team of the Hill meet in the final game of the elimination series in District 35 of the American Legion junior baseball series at Malone Field at 3:30 p. m. tomorrow.

ST. LOUIS, July 9.—The gruelling series between the Pirates and Cardinals is scheduled to close this afternoon and the members of both clubs will not be sorry, regardless of whom the winner will be in the "rubber" battle of the five-game set.

The sweltering heat that prevailed in the past three days has left the athletes in a somewhat stale condition, so the finale is welcomed by everybody concerned. To date, each club has won two games of the set.

MEINE TO PITCH

Heinie Meine, a native son, is slated to oppose the boys of his home town in the last clash. Manager Street, of the opposing club, is expected to counter with Sylvester Johnson, a Swedish boy of mush pitching skill.

Remy Kremer today was recuperating from his task of yesterday, when he pitched the Buccos to a 10-to-5 triumph over the Cards. It was Kremer's eleventh victory of the season. Frenchy was the master of the situation. Despite the intense heat, he made a strong finish. Many of the players of both clubs appeared to be ready to quit when the last putout was recorded. The heat of the diamond was said to be well above the 100 mark.

The Buccos seemed to have won the game in the fourth round, when Flint Rhem threw to third base when nobody was at the station aside from Manager Jewel Ens, of the Pirates. The bases were jammed, two were out, and the score was tied when the fleet Rolly Hemsley hit a weak tap between Sparky Adams and Rhem. The big pitcher was able to get his hands on the ball as little Sparky darted past him. Perhaps Flint thought the form shooting by him was that of Shortstop Gelbert. The Redbird pitcher made a juggling stop of the ball and then surprised everybody by throwing to third base, with Adams out beyond the pitcher on the first-base side.

ALL HANDS SCORE

Manager Ens, naturally, made no effort to stop the ball and everybody on the sacks scored, Hemsley, credited with an infield hit on the tap, reached third and Rolly scored a moment later on a wild pitch by Rhem.

Flint had so much stuff on the ball the Pirates were unable to do

Nick Altrock Says:

BOSTON, July 9.—When we arrived here the Boston Red Sox were still yelping at the way the umpires have been jobbing them. I have always been brought up never to say a good word for an umpire and I don't intend to change now. Some of them would look better with a tin cup in their hand instead of an indicator. Right or wrong they are always right.

Nick Altrock

Next to the non-refillable bottle, the umpire's non-reversible decision is the country's biggest joke. But what else could you expect from guys who carry whisk brooms for pocket flasks?

Winnai Undergoes Blood Transfusion

ALTOONA, Pa., July 9.—(AP.)—Fred Winnai, automobile race driver, who was severely burned when his car caught fire during the Flag Day race here, June 14, underwent a blood transfusion here yesterday.

A sister, Josephine, who has been with him since the accident, gave the blood. Officials of the speedway offered to undergo the transfusion, but the sister's blood was deemed sufficient. Winnai's condition was reported as fair following the operation, and hospital attaches said he would likely recover.

Coggeshall Victor In Mid-West Play

DES MOINES, Ia., July 9.—(AP.)—Seeded stars in the Missouri Valley tennis tournament yesterday showed the galleries why they were especially selected, as luckless opponents went down to defeat with many upsets being recorded.

In the men's singles, Harris Coggeshall, Des Moines flash, provided the feature play by brushing through two other local players, T. W. Bailey and Louis Beckerman, 6-3, 6-0 and 6-1, 6-1 respectively, to reach the third round.

KING TUT WINS

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 9.—(AP.)—King Tut, Minneapolis lightweight, won the judges' decision over Bruce Flowers, New Rochelle, N. Y., Negro, in their 10-round fight last night.

MARANVILLE'S PLAY KEEPS BRAVES IN RACE

RABBIT STARS IN WIN OVER ROBINS

Associated Press.

One reason why the Boston Braves are still in the thick of the National League battle is to be found in 150-odd pounds of unadulterated shortstop bearing the imposing name of Walter James Vincent Maranville otherwise known as Rabbit. This little baseball ancient who has spent 18 of his 37 summers playing major league ball is having one of the best seasons of his long career.

When he was one of the main cogs of Boston's amazing team of 1914 his batting average was only .246 and his mark for his 18 major league years is .262 but this season he is hitting above the .300 mark and is fielding right along with the league's best. When the Braves stepped out yesterday to trounce the league leading Brooklyn Robins, 4 to 1, Maranville merely made two of Boston's nine hits, scored once, handled eight fielding chances without an assist and started three of Boston's four double plays.

ZACHARY HURLS WELL

The shortstop had some assistance in stopping the Robins and leaving them only a half-game ahead of the idle Chicago Cubs. Tom Zachary, who was considered too old for the American League this season, pitched a great game, shutting out the Robins except for Johnny Frederick's homer, while Wally Berger came through with his twenty-fourth circuit blow of the year, gaining a tie with Hack Wilson and Chuck Klein for the National League lead.

Completing the National League's day, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia made it a bad day for the first division. The Phillies, with Phil Collins on the mound, humbled the New York Giants, 6 to 1, pounding three pitchers for 14 hits while Phil held the Giants to 10 thoroughly scattered hits. The Pirates kept the St. Louis Cardinals a game and a half back of the third-place Giants by slamming out a 10-to-5 victory.

Washington continued to lead the American League parade with its ninth straight victory. The Senators, already in first place by several percentage points, beat out the Boston Red Sox, 6 to 5, and finally gained a tie with the A's for the top where games are concerned. The world's champions lost a half-game by dividing their double-header with the New York Yankees.

MARBERRY VICTOR

Fred Marberry won his fifth game in Washington's streak of 17 victories in 18 games and made it 16 Senator pitchers to go the route in that time.

George Walberg proved his sore arm something of a myth against the Yankees in the first game, holding them to three hits for a 4 to 0 triumph. Red Ruffing kept pace with him for the last eight and one-third innings after the Athletics had driven Henry Johnson to cover. The second contest was something of a slugging match with George Pipgras outlasting four Athletic hurlers for a 9 to 4 victory.

Chicago's White Sox rose a notch in the American League standing, going from seventh place to sixth as Ted Lyons gave them a 3 to 2 victory over Detroit, while the St. Louis Browns were taking a 12 to 6 beating at the hands of the Cleveland Indians.

Lyons not only pitched effectively against Detroit, but drove in two of the runs with a triple in the second inning.

The Indians showed a considerable recovery from their slump by hammering three Brownie pitchers for 14 hits.

Golf Pro Cards 60, Cards World Mark

INDIANAPOLIS, July 9.—(AP.)—Herman Uebele, professional at the Pleasant Run Golf Club here, today claimed a new world record for 18 holes on the difficult Pleasant Run course, boasting a score of 60, and a record of one eagle, 11 birdies and an even par on the other six holes.

Although a score of 55 was once made by George Duncan on a short Swiss course, Uebele's score, made late yesterday, was believed to be a world record for a links spread out over 6,044 yards. The score was 13 under par. Uebele played in a foursome.

Uebele, shooting with machine-like precision, took 29 strokes on the outward nine and took two more on the incoming trip. His card and par for the course:

Par out	4	4	5	4	3	5	3	4	4	—36
Uebele	3	4	4	3	2	4	3	3	3	—29
Par in	4	3	5	3	5	4	4	4	5	—37—73

FLOOD RELEASED

HARRISBURG, July 9.—The local team of the N. Y.-Penna. League yesterday released Outfielder Ray Flood, 1929 league leading home run hitter.

LOCAL PUBLIC LINKS TEAM

CARL LUNDEN

CARL F. KAUFFMANN

Kauffmann, National public links golf champion for the last three years, yesterday qualified at Schenley Park among the four players who will represent Pittsburgh in this year's titular play at Jacksonville, Fla., August 5-9. He shot a 137.

A. SZWEDKO

Szwedko pressed Lunden for the medal honors with rounds of 69-67-136.

LEADERS TIED IN AMATEUR

who was able to cop a major title four years in succession. The two alternates to the team are Pat McDonough, former city champion, and F. C. Johnson.

Although Carl Lunden topped the field in the 36-hole round yesterday, having 70-64—134, Szwedko ranked second, 69-67—136, the biggest item of interest was the spectacular comeback of Kauffmann in deadlocking with Mike Galido for the last place on the team, each of them registering 137. It certainly appeared that Carl wasn't going to get the chance to defend his crown when he came through with a high 72 yesterday morning, and he admitted his shots weren't working as well as he would have liked them to—but he went out in the afternoon and burned up the municipal course for a beautiful 65, which while it wasn't the low score for any single round for the day, it certainly proved that the national champion has left in him every ounce of the nerve and skill that has brought him so many honors and proclaims him a worthy king. During the morning a gallery of more than 1,000 followed Carl, and some of them didn't help with their disorderliness.

Lunden played the best golf of the day, there is no question about that. His 70 of the morning was topped by six strokes in the afternoon, the 64 giving him a grand total of 136. A. Szwedko was two strokes behind Carl, who was on last year's team, having consistent scores of 69-67.

GALIDO RALLIES

Mike Galido had somewhat the same experience as Kauffmann, he scoring a 71 in the morning, but returning with a 66 in the afternoon.

In making the alternate places on the team, Pat McDonough, 68-70, and F. C. Johnson, 68-70, were just one stroke outside the fold. Francis Lally had a lot of hard luck on top of his 65 in the morning when he took 74 in the afternoon.

The saddest case of all was that of Bob Graham—who almost was not given the opportunity of trying to qualify, and when he did play, he was so excited and worked up that his game was visibly impaired. Starting long after the regular group had teed off, and playing hurriedly, Graham took 74 for his first round—he settled down a bit and tried to make the grade on the home stretch, but it was too much for him and he needed 69. Graham, who recently set a new course record at Schenley with his 66, certainly was nettled, and had good reason for not scoring as well as he usually does. He was a member of last year's team, and is one of the longest drivers in the district.

TO LEAVE JULY 30

The Pittsburgh team will entrain for Jacksonville on the night of July 30, leaving on the Pennsylvania at 10:30 that evening, and going directly to Washington, D. C. After a four-hour layover in the capital the team will procede via the Atlantic Coast line to Jacksonville.

Richard C. Long, of the Oakmont Country Club, will captain a team of 20 private club golf stars, against an all-star team of municipal linksmen on July 22, starting at 2 o'clock, according to Director Witherow. This exhibition all-star match will be utilized, as usual, for the purpose of defraying the Pittsburgh team's expenses to the National tournament. It is expected several thousand persons will attend the affair, which promises to be even better than heretofore. This idea was originally worked out successfully by John Jay Burke, former U. S. G. A., public links executive committeeman. Yesterday's summary:

THE LOWDOWN ON THE BUGS

By THE BENCHWARMER.

ST. LOUIS, July 9.—Well folks, if somebody would start an outlaw league in Iceland a lot of Pirates would jump to it toot sweet after this series in St. Louis. I don't know how the St. Louis players stand it, but I guess after they lose eight or 10 pounds on the hot diamond they go home and drink a lot of heim gemacht to put the weight back on. They say the home brew industry here is working overtime since the heat wave struck town.

Larry says the last two innings of his game was the longest two innings he ever knew. He was gettin' weaker all the time but Larry likes to pitch complete ball games and I don't think you could have got him out of those with a derrick as long as we had a lead.

HITS FLUKEY

More than half the hits they got off Larry was kinda flukey. Once a high fly fell in the short outfield and it was a bit costly. Gus Suhr was raisin' the dickens about it, but Larry jes smiled and told Gus that he'd get out of the jam and he did.

Ray Kremer looked like the coolest man on the field yesterday as he won his eleventh game. He had to work harder than any man on the diamond but Frenchy jes kept goin' as cool as if he was trimmin' one of the gang in a bridge game. He's havin' quite a year for a club that's been in the second division so long.

COMMY TAKES DIVE

Commy took one of them head first dives of his in the ninth inning and I wish you could have seen him when he got up. He was takin' a big lead off second and the only way he could get back was to dive on his stomach. His shirt was wet and when he got up he had enough mud on him for a mud bath.

Kayoes Feature Irwin Ring Show

IRWIN, Pa., July 9.—Two knockouts were scored in the amateur boxing show staged here last night by the Irwin Community A. C. and Post 781, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Lloyd Clemens, North Braddock A. C., knocked out Wayne Eaton, Irwin, in the first round, and Gerald Kleman, Jeannette A. C., stopped Ray Barker, West Newton A. C., in two rounds. The summary:

118-pound class—Gerald Kleman, Jeannette, knocked out Ray Barker, West Newton, two rounds.

135-pound class — Windsor Davis, Jeannette, defeated Jimmy Wash, Jeannette, three rounds, decision; Tony Frante, Homewood Progressive Club, defeated Sonny Boy Evans, West Newton, three rounds, decision.

147-pound class — Dave Davis, Irwin, defeated Red Bender, West Newton, three rounds, decision.

Rosenbloom May Relinquish Crown

NEW YORK, July 9.—(INS.)—Maxie Rosenbloom, newly-crowned world light-heavyweight champion, intends to ask the New York Boxing Commission to permit him to relinquish the title, it was reported today. Rosenbloom planned to take this step because he said he could not sign for fights while champion as readily as when merely a contender.

He plans to give up the title and fight as a heavyweight, the New York commission having refused him permission to fight heavyweights while holding the light-heavyweight title.

MAJORS HOLD JOINT CONFAB TODAY

CHICAGO, July 9.—(AP.)—American and National League club owners or representatives will meet in a special joint session today to discuss the draft rule and other questions concerning their relations with minor leagues.

The meeting, the first such session to be held in mid-season, will hear the report of a committee appointed last December to suggest means of improving the present draft method, as well as to present means of improving relations with the minor groups, which have not been satisfactory.

Members of the committee are Judge Emil Fuchs, Boston; William L. Veeck, Chicago, and Sam Dreyfuss, Pittsburgh, representing the National League, and Col. E. G. Rupert, New York; Frank J. Navin, Detroit; Clark Griffith, Washington, and L. C. McEvoy, St. Louis, of the American League. President E. S. Barnard, of the American League, and John A. Heydler, National League head, are ex-officio members of the group.

SHIELDS, MURPHY WIN

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 9.—(AP.)—Frank Shields of New York City and Dick Murphy of Utica had little trouble gaining the quarter finals of the New York state tennis tournament yesterday. Shields defeated Jack McDiarmid of the University of Texas 6-1, 6-3, while Murphy disposed of Ted Saxon, of Hamilton (Bermuda), 6-4, 6-2.

Over 7,500 cigar factories are registered by the U. S. Government. Over 7,400 of these hand-roll cigars, producing 50 percent of the output. Every hand-rolled cigar—made by American Cigar Co. or anyone else—is subject to the possible danger of "spit-tipping." Certified Cremo is absolutely free from spit-tipping—No Cremo is made by hand.

Every leaf of the choicest, finest tobacco entering the clean, sunny Certified Cremo factories is scientifically treated by methods recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture. And its purity is safeguarded along every step of the way by amazing inventions that bind, roll, wrap and tip the cigars!

MYERS CHAMPION

Anthony Myers ... road, Etna, was the big winner in the tournament, by having returned a fine score of 36-36-66 to top a field of more than 300 entrants, the cream of the entry list which totaled just two shy of 1,000.

John Bang ... 712 McClure street, Swissvale, won second prize, having turned in 34-33-67.

The third prize winner was George M. Brannigan, Jr., 18 of Washington avenue, Turtle Creek, who returned a fine score of 35-33—68. Brannigan is the son of the well-known soccer official and is a fine golfer. He has played in the tournament since its inception three years ago.

TO HOLD BANQUET

Now that the playoff for fourth place has been decided, the golf tournament ruling will make arrangements for the annual banquet, at which time the contestants will be awarded their prizes. The Ellsworth-Clearfield High team walked off with the high and preparatory school trophy, while the Schenley Park caddie team won the club caddie championship plaque.

Myers is certainly a lucky chap. He will receive the William Randolph Hearst trophy, a set of steel-shafted matched irons, and a solid gold medal when the banquet is held—and all prize winners and officials in the tournament are expected to be present.

EVENT SUCCESS

Ring wins the Hagen steel-shafted driver and a gold medal and Brannigan will be awarded a mashie and a silver medal for his prowess.

The tournament was a big success in every respect and the contestants conducted themselves admirably. Today the Schenley course is in just as fine shape as it was before the invasion of the juniors—and John Kauffmann has it in its best condition in years.

Godfrey Wins Over Simms in Second

CLEVELAND, July 9.—(AP.)—George Godfrey, giant Negro heavyweight, of Lieperville, Pa., won by a technical knockout in the second round of a scheduled 12-round bout over Frankie Simms, of Cleveland, last night.

Godfrey knocked Simms down twice in the first round and once in the second, when Simms' seconds threw in the towel.

JOHNNY WILLIS STAR YOUNG BOXER

By HARRY KECK

Sports Editor

Johnny Willis of Erie, elongated Negro featherweight boxer, who meets Midget Mike O'Dowd of Lorain, is a veteran who is highly respected for his boxing skill and punch in the 10-round main bout at Hickey Park Millvale tomorrow night. He is only 20 years old and started his career as an amateur in Philadelphia three years ago. He won 30 bouts and lost only three as an amateur before he turned professional a year and a half ago.

In 25 professional fights Willis has finished on the short end only three times: against Joey Costa at Allentown, Pa., and against Howard Mayberry and Johnny Dunn at Erie. He has beaten Mayberry in a return bout.

Willis, who recently made his debut in these parts by decisively defeating Johnny Chiodo of Johnstown at the Meyers Bowl, hopes to upset the dope and add the cagy O'Dowd to his string of victims and then challenge Dunn to a return bout and also Jackie Rodgers. Johnny is 5 feet 9 inches tall and his best weight is the featherweight limit of 126 pounds.

Between Rounds

Eddie Overgaard, of Youngstown, matchmaker of Windy Summit and other boards reports that Youngstown is all steamed up over the coming of Primo Carnera for an exhibition bout there Friday night, and one of the largest ticket attendances at the box office of the town is in prospect. The show will be held at Idora Park, where a lot of famous fistmen have shown their wares. Incidentally, Eddie reports Jeannette native Eight Ball McClintock aged arbitrator and ex-ump.

A benefit boxing show will be held in Chicago tonight to raise funds to pay for an operation to restore the sight of Malcolm Campbell, Negro former middle weight boxer. Tuffy Griffiths, Larry Johnson, Earl Mantles and Bud Taylor are among those who will donate their services.

A lot of fans will make the trip to Washington, Pa., tomorrow night to see two of their local boys, Harold Dutch Brubaker, Pittsburgh Coraopolis, and Al Mickey Mendel, Jones, Beaver, Ohio, who Ray Thomas tangle at Dan Rubo's tomorrow at Indianapolis, two of the North side.

Babe Hunt boxes Al Friedman at Kansas City, Mo., tonight. Nick Testo meets Floyd Hybert in the New York Velodrome. Eddie Hunt, who once fought Jackie Rodgers at the Meyers Bowl, engages Pete De Grasse at Mitchell Field, L. I., and Cecil Payne opposes Mickey Greaves at Cincinnati.

Matchmaker Jules Buck, of the Meyers Bowl, is at work on the preliminary card for his return battle between Willie Davies and Black Bill next Monday night.

DERBY VICTOR SETS RECORD

Diamond Crown, winning the first derby elimination race at New Kensington last night, set a new track record for the five-sixteenths mile distance. The winner sped over the course in 32 seconds flat.

Diamond Crown was but slightly regarded in the betting, and paid off at the rate of $31.40 for $2. The second elimination race will be staged tonight.

At Bridgeville tonight, Lightning Flash, crack speedster, will face some of the new arrivals at the track when he goes to the post in the feature race. Included in the field will be Victoria Meadows, Hittin' On High and Super Power.

INJUNCTION PROTESTED

GREENSBURG, Pa., July 9.—(AP.)—Judge C. D. Copeland yesterday took under advisement a motion of state police to dissolve an injunction restraining them from interfering with the operation of dog races at New Kensington. The court issued a preliminary injunction on June 26 and final hearing was held yesterday.

Counsel for the New Kensington Kennel Club moved at the opening of the hearing that the injunction be continued. Counsel for the state police averred that the injunction papers were drawn improperly and claimed no notice was given the defendant and that the bill was defective.

Races at the track will continue until the court has decided the case.

Pigeons to Be Sent To Coast Tomorrow

The first act in the longest pigeon race ever attempted will be staged tomorrow by the North Side Combine when many fine birds will be shipped to Portland, Ore., from which point a 3,000-mile race will be started.

Pigeons competing in a 500-mile race also will be shipped tomorrow, and on Saturday birds will be sent out for a 200-mile event.

The races are open to all members of the North Side Center. There is no entry fee.

JIM MAC MURDO — MIKE GETTO

Getto and Mac Murdo look over some of the queer quirks of the new football rules in the guide just issued. Getto, who was an all-America tackle at Pitt and now is assistant coach at the University of Kansas, is back at Pitt taking a summer course, while Mac Murdo, a Panther hope for next fall, is doing manual labor at the Stadium to keep fit.

TENNIS ENTRY LISTS CLOSE TODAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Last opportunity for entry into the Sun-Telegraph revival of the Pittsburgh public parks tennis championships awaits local municipal racqueteers this afternoon and evening. Promptly at midnight tonight the list closes. Names of contestants will be received until that hour either by special delivery mail or by personal delivery of entry blanks upon the desk of the Tournament Editor on the fifth floor of the Sun-Telegraph Building.

Receipt of a score of late entries yesterday boosted the tournament roster to 121, with notification that today's last-minute rush will result in a combined total of approximately 150 aspirants from six parks for the Sun-Telegraph men's and women's singles challenge trophies and the right to represent Pittsburgh in the national public parks championships at Washington, D. C., the week of August 18.

SCHENLEY LEADS

The bulk of competition will be centered in Schenley Park, where the entrance host now amounts to 46 men and 10 women, but surprisingly large arrays will square off in Highland, Olympia and Riverview Parks.

Players are reminded once more that they must be prepared to display to committeemen in charge at the various lots their municipal courts tennis permits as issued by the Pittsburgh Bureau of Parks. These permits are absolute prerequisites for play and unless the contestant is able to display one bearing his name, he will be automatically defaulted.

Enthusiasm for the impending tourney runs high throughout Steel City parks. Everywhere racqueteers are practicing diligently with view to copping honors and one of the 28 valuable awards awaiting victors and runners-up in the various branches of the mélée.

STARS PRACTICING

Some fast tennis is being revived off in workouts preliminary to the event and, with such luminaries as Irving Goodman, Frank Brooks, Jack Redmond, the Beilstein brothers, Jack Herrmann, Alex Blumberger and numerous others of like ability slated to contend for laurels, it stands to reason that the actual competitive jousting will be of exceptionally high order.

New entries follow:

Bruce Boggs, Schenley; T. S. Wallace, Highland; William L. Esser, West Mifflin; Gabriella T. Esser, West Mifflin; Blair V. McMillin, Penn; William Cruikshanks, Schenley; S. J. Milton, Schenley; Edwards Lehr, Olympia; Roger W. Scanlon, Olympia; Virginia A. Martin, Schenley; Ernest M. Mason, Schenley; Daniel B. Cholka, Schenley; Florence Schreiner, Schenley; Robert Kloss, Riverview; Howard Kloss, Riverview; Joseph J. Atmas, II, Schenley; Arthur Graham, Highland; R. W. Boone, Schenley; James A. Mannhardt, Penn; Jack Redmond, Highland.

Fight Results

At New York, Pete Nebo defeated Bo Tyrra, 10 rounds. Vincent Astor defeated Gene Gallo, 8 rounds. Mario Fia defeated Frank Pinnello, 8 rounds.

At Cleveland, George Godfrey won by a technical knockout over Frankie Simms, 2 rounds.

At Milwaukee, King Tut defeated Bruce Flowers, 10 rounds.

At Indianapolis, Tommy Ortis defeated Spug Myers, 10 rounds.

mouth with him, but his wizard throw had the effect of getting him out of the ball game. He made way for a pinch hitter in the home half of the inning.

George Grantham practically put the hot-weather fight on the ice in the seventh when with two out and Fred Brickell on first he drove the rocket over the right-field bleachers for a homer.

Brickell was star of the game with four hits. Fred did not seem to notice the southpaw pitching of Al Grabowski, who went to the mound when Rhem departed. And it was the left-hander who served the pitch to Grantham which George drove out of the ball orchard.

Recruit Watkins, of the Cards, reached Kremer for a homer over the same stands in the fourth.

Long's Sport Comment

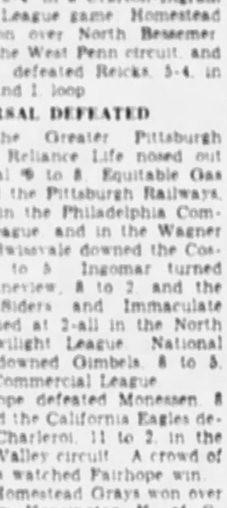
White, Jr., an attorney, and son of the famous old referee of the same name. He believes it is illegal because it is in conflict with the state law.

This law, enacted to govern boxing in New York, specifies that all bouts shall be conducted under the rules and regulations adopted by the Army, Navy and Civilian Board of Boxing Control.



Sammy Mandell.

"THOSE RULES ARE practically the same as the Marquis of Queensberry code," Wise says, "and provide for the disqualification of a boxer who disables his opponent by a blow delivered below the belt. The States Athletic Commission is not empowered to change the law itself, and that is what is done when the rule on fouls is so altered. The Legislature, not the commission, has the power to amend or alter the law." The commission is beginning to back pedal in the face of adverse criticism. It says the new rule was hastily framed for the Mandell-Singer match and will be amended in a fashion when the solons meet this week. "The rule will be changed so that it will still be possible for a referee to disqualify a boxer if the latter habitually or deliberately engages in thumbing, butting or heeling," says Chairman James A. Farley. "The public need have no fear that we will let everything go in a fight. And boxers found guilty of deliberately low punching or gouging will be subject to revocation of their license and fines up to $5,000."

ADVERSE TURNS EXAGGERATED BY MARKET

Lamont Recognizes Trade Improvement Not Up to Ideas of Hopeful Leaders

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, July 9.—Robert P. Lamont, secretary of commerce and one of President Hoover's mainstays in the business stabilization campaign, remarked to me recently that the stock market has been exaggerating adverse turns in business.

Mr. Lamont, who was formerly president of the American Steel Foundries Company, recognizes that business improvement has not been up to the expectations of hopeful leaders. He alluded to a relevant anecdote about the late Judge E. H. Gary, former head of the United States Steel Corporation. At a meeting of the American Iron and Steel Institute over which he presided in the midst of an intense business depression Judge Gary predicted a return to prosperity by the next meeting. Six months later the institute met again, and business was still depressed. An unkind delegate recalled Judge Gary's forecast, and asked him about it.

He replied:

"All I can say is that we are six months nearer recovery."

SEES FALL PICKUP

Referring to the immediate trade outlook the Secretary of Commerce asserted:

"Summer is usually a dull period, but I think conditions will be better in the fall. We may now be at the low point of the recession, although you can not be sure of this until you are out of a situation a ways. The spring improvement in business, as disclosed in April, did not carry through as expected, and disappointment over this fact has been overdone in the stock market.

"In 1921, the decline below normal was three times as great as this year, and it then took only two years to get back. Business has now been in recession nearly a year, and hasn't nearly as much ground to recover. The recovery this time should be faster. Possibly business will be back to normal by the end of the year."

Mr. Lamont pointed out that the decline in wholesale commodity quotations had not yet been fully reflected at retail. He remarked that the country at this time was feeling the full effect of the public works program. He indicated that the absence of better business reflected the failure of residential building and the automobile trades to make substantial pick-ups.

BUSINESS TONIC

A leading motive for lowering the New York rediscount rate to 2½ per cent was the hope that it would stimulate foreign financing in New York. Moreover, the reserve authorities wanted to leave undone nothing that might act as a tonic to business. The reduced rate enables the New York member banks to cut down on interest payments for deposits of out-of-town correspondent banks, and helps to offset factors making for decreased earnings.

A ray of hope from the great agricultural regions has been flashed to this column by Grant McPherson, president of the Central National Bank and Trust Company, Des Moines, Ia., who points out:

"I think the farmer's situation has been discounted considerably. In other words, I am quite of the opinion that the general public is finding more fault with the prevailing prices than the farmers themselves. While it is true there has been quite a decline, yet prices existing today, to the careful and prudent farmer, will mean a profit. In getting out over the state I find a much better feeling among the farmers than I expected to find. A few days ago I called at a small restaurant in a county seat town a few miles south of Des Moines. I asked the young man who served me how conditions were in his town.

TOWNSPEOPLE COMPLAIN

"He said that while business was not as good as could be expected, it was not so bad after all. He mentioned the fact that there was some unemployment in the town and about the only complaints he heard were from the citizens of the town and not the farmers, which a year ago he indicated was the reverse. He expressed the opinion the farmers were quite well satisfied and rather optimistic.

"If the present crop of grain, as indicated today, matures and barring accidents such as hail and other calamities, the farmers will be in much better position to buy in the early fall than they have been for some time. In other words, in Iowa, we feel much encouraged."

Taft-Buick Wins Motometer Suit

NEW YORK, July 9.—Federal Judge Manton, of United States District Court of Appeals, has ruled in favor of the Taft-Buick Corporation in an appeal brought from a decision in Eastern District Court of New York holding Patent No. 1205783 on motor temperature gauges for use on automobile dashboards held by the Leander Development Company and the Motometer Company, Inc., valid and infringed by the Taft-Buick Corporation. Judge Manton reversed this decision.

Big Employers Seek Cure of Unemployment.

By B. C. FORBES

PRESIDENT WILLIAM GREEN of the American Federation of Labor welcomes the General Electric Company's new unemployment plan as tangible evidence that industry is acknowledging its responsibility for constructive plans to meet unemployment problems.

SINCE AMERICAN industry lately has found it impossible to provide work for all its leaders are realizing—rather tardily—that it is incumbent upon them to convince the unemployed and the public in general that they are giving really serious thought to the problem of unemployment and how to advance towards its solution. Sympathy can fill no stomachs nor pay any grocery bill, yet the idle worker earnestly seeking a job would rather know that employers and others are seriously concerned about his plight than that nobody was giving him and his hungry dependents a moment's thought.

Mr. GREEN'S communication to the writer follows:

"In my humble opinion, industry should squarely face its responsibility and accumulate unemployment reserves to take care of emergencies for this type of obligation just as it does in dividends for depreciation, expansion, etc. As industries increasingly realize the interdependence of all forces in the economic and industrial world, they will understand what wage-earner buying power means in the maintenance of prosperity. Unemployment reserves would be a potential factor for our stabilized prosperity."

PRESIDENT F EDSON WHITE of Armour and Company reveals something not generally known, namely that regular packing company employes are guaranteed 40 hours of work each week. Mr. White in a letter to this column after stating that he had studied the General Electric plan carefully, says, in part:

"Most of the fundamentals of the plan, as regards stabilization of employment, have been practiced in Armour & Co. for many years. In fact, the packing industry, over 20 years ago, adopted a plan of guaranteeing to its workers 40 hours' work per week.

"We have no form of unemployment insurance, however. This is a subject that deserves the greatest study, and we believe with you that industry must assume the initiative in coping with this problem of unemployment.

"Fortunately, we do not have the peaks and valleys of unemployment in our industry that seem to affect other industries. Our employes who have a year's service or over, are, in the most part, regular employes who work 52 weeks in the year, and are guaranteed 40 hours' work at the 'going' rate of wage each week.

"It is a question in our minds whether the payment of an allowance during a period of unemployment is the proper solution, or whether the guarantee of steady employment for the major part of each year would not be more satisfactory.

"We have watched with interest the Procter & Gamble plan of guaranteed employment, which has many features that impress us favorably.

"You can be assured that we in Armour & Co. are deeply conscious of the importance of this problem and are giving it the most careful study and attention."

HERE IS a typical comment, from Charles A. Stone, head of Stone & Webster, employers of from 18,000 to 20,000 workers:

"The principles for the stabilization of employment as outlined by Mr. Swope seem to be splendid. I believe that all the big corporations can do much along the lines he mentions which will help stabilize working conditions. Now is the time for the senior officers of the big corporations like the General Electric Company to call attention to these matters, and it is a fine thing for the General Electric Company to come out as one of the first to point the way.

"So far as the unemployment pension plan is concerned, I have not had time to go into the details of the proposed plan. It is a difficult thing to work out. Conditions vary so in different organizations and the necessity which arises in all organizations of weeding out the inefficient and encouraging the efficient in times like these make it almost impossible to lay down any general rules that will apply to corporations in general. Each chief executive has to work out his own problems and I have no doubt that the plan as proposed by Mr. Swope is a splendid one for his organization."

GEORGE F. JOHNSON, the large-hearted head of the Endicott Johnson Corporation, whose unique co-operation with all its workers is well known, declares:

"I am very certain industry must make vast improvement in human relations as expressed between capital and labor."

CERTAIN it is that if capital doesn't the politicians will take action — doubtless, blundering action.

Let industry get busy and solve its own problems.

HOW'S BUSINESS?

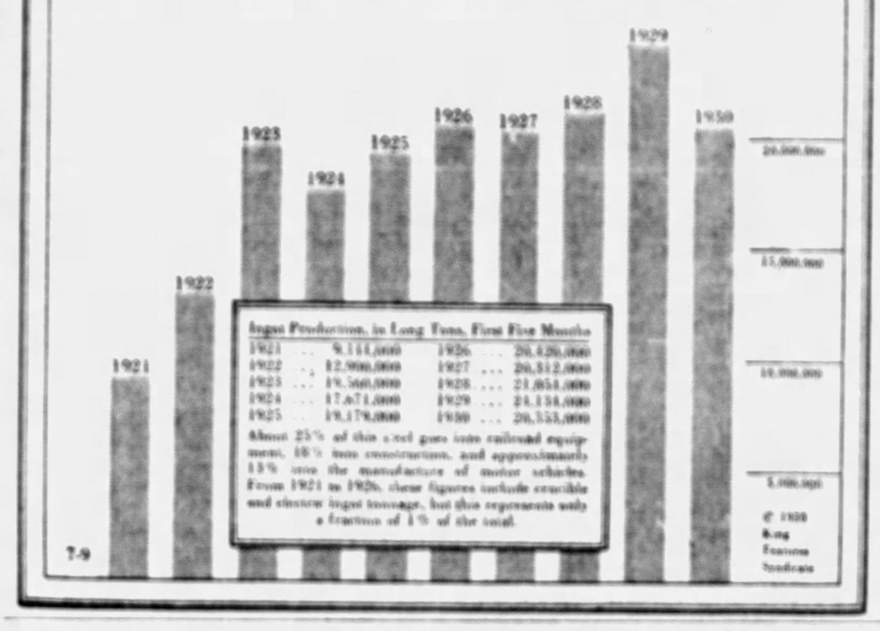
ACTUAL FACTS ON CONDITIONS TODAY

By FRELING FOSTER

Steel Production Practically Normal

The total production of Bessemer and open-hearth steel ingots throughout the United States during the first five months of 1930 is compared with the corresponding periods of the past nine years. Sources: American Iron and Steel Institute and The Iron Age.

The production of crude steel is one of the soundest indexes of basic industrial activity. Excluding the abnormal 1929, the output in 1930 exceeds the average for the four preceding years of 1928, 1927, 1926 and 1925.



NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, July 9.—Broadened activity developed in the listed bond market, fusing new vitality into the better grade of issues which steadily advanced. Aggregate sales increased more than 1,000,000 during the early trading, starting off at a faster pace than the bond market showed Monday and Tuesday.

Short Interest in Market Termed Largest Since Early Days of 1928

Even among those who still lean toward bearishness the opinion yesterday was that the market was developing no new evidence of having again become rather heavily oversold. The point was made that reactions are being forced from day to day with increasing difficulty and that indications are that the short interest outstanding is probably much larger than it has been in quite a while. One view observed was of the opinion that the short interest in the market at present is larger than at any time since early 1928, when it provided the impetuous for a long sustained rise. This contention is supported to some extent by the situation in the stock loan market where Steel is now reported as "trading flat" along with American Telephone and a number of other prominent issues.

Cotton broke sharply upon the resumption of trading after the usual short suspension of activities which attended the publication of the government's report on planted acreage at midday yesterday. Though the figures proved closely in line with preliminary private forecasts, the report was interpreted bearishly, tending to accelerate the selling which had been influenced earlier by favorable weather reports. The government estimate placed this year's indicated acreage at 97.3 per cent of the 1929 total, a decrease of only 2.7 per cent, which just about matched the unofficial indication of 3 per cent.

One of the interesting yarns going the rounds today had it that early negotiations looking toward the acquisition of the Autostrop Razor Company by the Gillette Safety Razor Company is a possibility. The former company has filed suit against Gillette since the marketing of the latter's new product, claiming infringement of certain of its patents. This litigation is expected to come up for hearing early in the fall. Gillette, however, has maintained right along that its new product does not involve any infringement of rival patents, holding that the company was ready for any legal controversy in connection with questions of that nature.

Not many corporations are going to be able to match the performance of Childs Company during the first half of the year. In spite of a smaller sales total, this company was able virtually to double profits accruing to the common stock. This would indicate that to some extent at least the company profited by the slump in commodity prices, having passed along little of the difference to consumers. At any rate, while sales for June and the half year were slightly less than in the same periods of 1929, the profit for the common stock was equivalent to $1.35 a share, or almost double the 68 cents a share reported for 367,320 common shares in the first half of last year.

Reflecting the slack in the movement of freight over the country's railways during the first half of the year as compared with the same period of 1929, orders for new equipment have been relatively light in the period. June brought orders to the equipment companies for a total of only 900 new freight cars, the smallest for any month since last July. This brought the total of new cars ordered during the six months just ended to roughly 40,000 as against 63,000 in the initial half of 1929. Still the total for the current year was substantially better than the 28,000 ordered in the first half of 1928.

For five months to May 31, Underwood Elliott Fisher Company and its consolidated subsidiaries earned approximately $2,051,000 after charges, equal to $2.82 a share on 969,835 common shares after preferred dividends. These five months' earnings are 12.8 per cent above the semi-annual common dividend of $2.50. Earnings of the company and consolidated subsidiaries for six months should be close to $3.25 a share on the common. Inclusion of equity in earnings of non-consolidated affiliates incorporated in the year-end statement would bring the six months' net to about $3.50 a share.

Dayton Rubber Wins Patent Rights Suit

DAYTON, O., July 9.—Permanent injunction and substantial recovery have been granted Dayton Rubber Manufacturing Company by Federal Court at Columbus, in its action against the Dorman Automotive Parts Company, alleging infringement on transmission belts. The Dorman company was ordered to account for all sales during the last two years.

20 Roads Granted To Missouri Pacific

WASHINGTON, July 9.—(AP)—The Missouri Pacific Railroad received conditional permission from the Interstate Commerce Commission to take over and operate as a unit with its own line some 20 separate railroad corporations which it now controls and operates as separate units.

Coal Prices Still On Down Trend

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

COAL PRICES HAVE SLUMPED to the lowest levels since pre-war days. This is the outstanding complaint of the industry. The general business situation has made the condition of the trade exceptionally acute but the coal business was far from satisfactory even in the busy periods of last year.

In volume coal production has not been exceptionally bad. The total output for the country for this year up to June 28 was 229,059,000 tons. This was 10 per cent less than in the corresponding period of last year. Few companies were able to report profits in 1929. The weakness in prices has left an even smaller number of organizations which show figures in black ink after deducting all charges this year.

Several large orders for mine run coal have been placed at quotations lower than $1 a ton. The large organizations, such as Pittsburgh Coal, have been trying to maintain the price structure but the vast number of small producers who will take business at any figure, has been constantly reducing prices.

Overproduction Chief Complaint

DURING THE WAR period coal mines were developed at an unprecedented rate. Later the new producing properties in West Virginia, unhampered by union agreements, were able to take many markets away from Northern operators. The result of all this was the opening of such a large number of mines that capacity is far in excess of requirements.

Coal stocks of 33,100,000 tons on April 1 were at the lowest point since November 1, 1922, with the single exception of July 1, 1929, when they were at substantially the same level. In spite of this, however, the excess of supply over demand has kept prices persistently on the down trend.

Optimism Rare

LITTLE OPTIMISM CAN be found among coal men. Few of them believe that better returns are in store for the industry at any very close date. Some companies have made large investments in coal mining machinery and in cleaning plants in an effort to produce a product which can be profitably marketed. The experience of most of these organizations has been that prices have been slipping faster than they have been able to reduce costs.

Various attempts have been made to improve the condition of the industry by consolidations in recent years. With only a few exceptions, no mergers of importance have been consummated. The industry is still disturbed by too great a number of operators fighting for an insufficient amount of business.

All Producers Losing

DURING THE STRIKE the Southern fields were prospering at the expense of the idle Northern operators. At present, however, there are practically no profits in any district. It appears to be the fate of the coal industry that mines in one section can make money only when producers in other districts are being prevented from mining coal. There seems to be no way for the entire industry to achieve general prosperity.

At present the West Virginia and Kentucky producers are having fully as much trouble in making ends meet as the producers in the Pittsburgh district.

The operating problems of some of the weaker producers have become so great that a few have been unable to meet their payrolls. These companies have given their workers no cash recently. Labor's entire remuneration has consisted of merchandise at the company stores.

To the credit of this district it may be said that such conditions are not prevalent here and that the larger operators, among which is Pittsburgh Coal, are paying higher wage scales than the general average.

WALL STREET HEARS

That W. C. Durant, member of the so-called "big ten" during the 1928-29 bull market, has re-entered the market on the bull side for the first time since the June decline.

That the decline in wholesale prices in Europe has not been followed by any comparable decline in retail prices, with the result that signs of buyers' strikes are appearing.

That the movement of crops is already increasing the freight loadings, and the railroads expect the second half of the year will show substantial improvement over the first.

That several radical model changes will be announced shortly by automobile manufacturers in the hope of stimulating fall sales.

That some new financing for Richfield Oil will be announced shortly.

stimulated some buying of the

Other factors favoring the ad

BULL POOL RUMORED

A rumor unconfirmable and re

At least this rumor provided some variation from the wild bear

PIPE SUSTAINS STEEL TRADE

NEW YORK, July 9. The Iron Age in its weekly summary of the and steel trade tomorrow w

The demand
the holiday interruption, and will last a week or two before the volume of current business can be gauged. Immediate prospects are not promising.

Many consuming plants are shut down for inventory and repairs, operations among automobile and automotive parts makers will aver age weeks or longer. The Ford Motor Company will stop opera tions from July 11 to 28 and has closed all shipments of steel. Rail road builders are reaching the end of their orders. Other shops in the Chicago district, having shut down, with others running at 25 to 40 per cent of capacity.
Operations of farm equipment plants have reached the lowest point of the year. Western rail mills are now on a 25 per cent basis and have little remaining tonnage to roll.

PIPE MILLS BUSY

Steel ingot production after the sharp reduction in operations fol lowing last Thursday now aver ages 56 per cent of capacity com pared with 60 per cent at the be ginning of last week. Recovery in mill operations has been most marked in plants making line pipe.

Backlogs in pipe steel and tin plate good commitments in rein forcing bars and a large volume of pending structural steel ton nage are counted on to hold steel production within a few points of the present rate until general im provement in demand sets in. A large radio plant is steadily add ing to its forces and expects to have 6,000 employes making 1,000 receiving sets a day by August 1.
The low current levels of mate rials prices and the favorable terms under which labor can now be hired are believed to have been more important factors in deter mining this program than the im diate outlook for the sale of product.

PIG IRON LOWER

Scrap prices show little further change and appear to be ap proaching a stalemate.

Pig iron prices in the Valleys and at Pittsburgh have receded 50 cents a ton after having held at the same level for more than a year. The reduction was due main ly to an invasion of the district by furnaces in other producing centers. Prices at Cleveland fur naces on shipments into competi tive districts have declined from $1 to $17.50.

Finished steel prices, although sensitive in proportion to the cur rent need for tonnage, have un dergone no further important changes.

Nash Earns $1.36 In First Half-Year

KENOSHA, July 9.—Nash Motor Car Company reports for six months ended May 31 net profit of $3,715,408 after depreciation, federal taxes etc., and after setting aside $1,155,000 in the first quarter for contingencies, equal to $1.36 a share on the 2,730,000 no par shares against net profit of $10,742,190, or $3.93 a share, in the first half of the previous fiscal year.

Net profit for May quarter was $1,932,896, equal to 71 cents a share, against $6,623,329 in the May quarter 1929, or $2.42 a share. Balance sheet as of May 31, 1930, shows cash and govern ment securities of $59,413,117, as against $42,012,005 on November 30, 1929.

division and vice president and director of publicity, respectively, retain their present duties, with headquarters here.

Texas Oil Output Above Consumption

FT. WORTH, July 9.—Production of Texas oil pools is about 65,000 barrels daily in excess of the demand, according to the first statistical report submitted by David Donaghue, Ft. Worth geologist, recently retained to super vise a study for the joint com mittee of three branches of the oil industry in Texas.

The data, presented at a meeting of the committee in Ft. Worth Monday, showed demand for Texas oil approximately 800,000 barrels daily, with production at 865,000 barrels.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, July 9. The list appeared to be somewhat more cheerful in the early mar ket today. For the most part the railroads led, there were a few exceptions to the rule, however, which gave a cautious note.

Following is a partial list of trading on the New York Curb Exchange, giving a week's record of sales, high, low and closing prices:

CHICAGO STOCKS

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, July 9.—Fresh up turns in wheat prices today fol lowed a hesitant start. Extreme high temperatures and widespread dearth of rain impairing spring wheat crop prospects acted as more than a counterbalance for laggard European quotations and so too did indications of good ex port demand overnight. Starting unchanged to ½c off, Chicago wheat showed a material all around advance later. Corn dis played independent strength opening ⅛@⅜c higher and sub sequently continuing to mount.
Oats were firm. Provisions de clined.

At noon wheat was 1⅜ to 2⅛
net higher, and corn 1⅛ to 2⅜ up.

Water Gala at Rock Bottom Pool Sunday

The famous Willows Swimming Club is to sponsor a pageant and water gala at the Rock Bottom pool, Edgewood, Sunday, at 3 p. m. Champion natators from every town in Allegheny County are taking part in the program. Axle Baum, champion canoeist of the Pittsburgh Aquatic Club, is leading a group of clowns in a comedy act of their own making. Karl Bou and Manke, of the Oliver Club, will stage the Chinese life saving act. Jimmie Ryan, the famed water clown, will entertain with acrobatic dives from the 20-foot board and off the 60-foot cliff.

The three McCann brothers, of Wilkinsburg, Bob McTiernan, Ken McKillop, Sandow Mertz, Charles Dumsworth and 20 other daredevil divers will perform off the high cliff in dangerous dives. Eleanor Stevens, 10 years of age, will execute a swan dive from the rocky cliff.

Virginia Brandes, of Carnegie, "Miss Willows 1929," Dorothy Gildernew, "Queen of the Rivers," Alphild Larson, "national fashion queen;" Eleanor Lawrence, "Metropolitan Miss Pittsburgh," and Miss Florence Oleyar, of McKees Rocks, will lead the pageant parade.

SPORTS SQUIBS

With Sutter of Tulane winning the National collegiate tennis championship in the singles it makes three years in a row for the South. Two years ago Allison of Texas grabbed the honor and last year Bell of Texas did the same.

Knute Rockne

As usual the doubles went to the Pacific Coast. The East furnished most of the competition in the person of Seligson of Lehigh. The Middle West did not go beyond the preliminary round.

Molitar of Notre Dame upheld the Middle West in the National collegiate golf tournament, tieing for the low medal score, losing in the final round to Dunlap of Princeton and then having himself elected president of the association for next year. Not a bad showing for the first year of competition. It showed that Notre Dame can excel in something else besides athletics.

The correct title for Cartoon No. 13 can be found in this list: "The Wasp," "American Pluck," "A Gamble in Lives," "True As Steel," "Nugget Nell," "Hate of Men," "The Black Pirate," "Barbed Wire," "Second in Command," "The Lure of Luxury," "Two Moons," "Broken Chains," "The Sign of the Poppy," "Unto the End," "The Near to Wild," "What Happened to Father," "The World's Applause," "Just Like a Woman," "The Gasoline Cowboy," "The Last of the Duanes."

Here's the Idea of This Contest

Notice the cartoon printed at the left. It represents or suggests in some way the title of a well known motion picture. The correct title is included in the list of titles printed directly below the cartoon.

The Sun-Telegraph's great $5,000 Movietest consists of thirty cartoons similar to this one and with each is a list of titles that includes the correct title for that particular cartoon.

Your job is to name the movie title represented by each of the thirty cartoons.

Fifty prizes totaling $5,000 will be awarded contestants submitting correct or nearest correct lists of titles for the thirty cartoons.

The cartoon at left is number 13 of the series.

NO TRICKS!
NO CATCHES!

No Money to Pay or Collect—No Number Problems—No Letter to Write!

You can win $1,500 or any two of the fifty prizes offered in this contest.

You can win two of these prizes in less than an hour with a little brain work. This contest has nothing to do with getting into the movies. No tricks. No catches. Neatness doesn't count. No letter to write.

Just a slight personal effort on your part.

You compete against no one as far as obtaining the greatest number of subscriptions is concerned.

DAILY TRUE STORY

Una Mayfair, of the High Life Revue, was curled up in an ancient Morris chair by the window of her double room and bath, second floor, rear, of Mrs. Dunlevy's rooming house.

Now and then she put down her books of poems and stared out at the single struggling tree in the little backyard.

It was [illegible] and no matinee this day. Una's roommate, Claire Safsel, had gone out to get her hair done. "Doing" Claire's hair involved certain chemical processes that kept it last new comers. Una's hair was of black satin, [illegible] wavy and inexpressive by comparison.

Show [illegible] rooming house.

Certainly. A great many [illegible] more than a majority. Because some journey and [illegible] cars and occupy [illegible] world. Like [illegible] of them do [illegible] same thing.

When Claire [illegible] she brought Nina Hess with her. Nina was [illegible] of the company, having been engaged during a try-out. By virtue of [illegible] tute for [illegible] of the girls who had grabbed the golden opportunity to rope with a self-[illegible] scion of wealth.

"Hello, dearie," Nina greeted Una. This was the first time she had been in the place and she looked around with interest.

"Not so swell, Nina," Claire said, adding: "Nina, some clothes and so comfy."

"Not so swell myself, right now," said Una, "but we pay our own rent."

"I get you." Nina kicked off her little shoes, stepped out of her dress and sprawled across the foot of the wide bed. It was hot weather, so hot that only the [illegible] business man type of show really prospered.

Nina Hess seemed always pink and white and soft and fluffy. But Nina was not soft inside—she was as hard as nails. This was because she was wise. And she was wise because she was experienced.

Talk of Marriage

Claire got out saucers and divided the brick of ice cream she had brought in.

They began to talk.

They talked a little about pretty clothes, but more about the reason why girls desire to wear pretty clothes—man.

Perhaps because Nina wasn't a New Yorker and hadn't lived in the town for long she feared her friends would think her quite greedy.

"You girls ever have [illegible] bands?" Nina asked suddenly.

"Not for a minute," Una answered.

"I've got one and he's a darn nice boy—that is, I've got him picked out, we're engaged. He's on the road now ahead of No. 1 'High Life' road company."

"For Pete's sake, Claire," exclaimed Nina, "don't tell me you'd marry a press agent!"

"I'm the crazy sort of a girl who would marry the garbage man if she loved him—how's them cauliflower and lettuce?"

Nina shrugged.

"I got over that sap age. I married a bozo down in Baltimore and—"

"Served you right for marrying a bozo," Una told her. "Claire's boy friend is no bozo; he's the cat's."

"Horse feathers," Nina said, "they're all bozos if they haven't got lots of jack."

"And sape if their hair," Claire put in.

Nina sat up and hugged her pretty knees as she started around the shabby but comfortable room.

"I had a hunch you girls were playing my sort of a game," she remarked.

"If your game is to live as comfortably as you can until you die," Una told her.

"I let my husband divorce me," Nina went on, "and I began to plan my little plans. Of course any of us could get a nice generous sugar daddy and become what is jokingly called 'keptives,' but that doesn't get you anywhere and it's tough trying to make the grade into some really swell family after that. I'm going the love-letter route."

"I'm right up with you if not ahead of you," Una laughed. "Your love-letter route means breach of promise in court with pictures of your legs crossed in the witness box and a settlement of enough jack to enable you to tell any stage director where he gets off."

Nina's Plan

"Not so bad, dearie, pretty close to it, only my campaign calls for a really nice young man, not too sappy, a good family and a lawyer smart enough to fake the letters. I'll make him write me and make the old folks prefer marriage to the notoriety. There are a lot of such families—"

"Slow down, Nina—you're dreaming dreams. Such families as you have in mind aren't strong for chorines—they think we're all bad."

"Yeah? That's where my stage setting comes in. This room of yours made me think you two were doing the same. I've got a room just like it, a little shabbier, perhaps. I got it when I came here. It's in a place where no man is allowed further inside the house than the front parlor."

Una nodded.

"Good little girl stuff. Swell idea, Nina—only two things are lacking, the rich young man and making him write the necessary sort of letters."

"Watch me! The letters I shall write to him will be hot stuff, they'll make him write the same sort, only my letters will always have something in each one to the effect that I'm just a little better than the ten virgins combined, and intend to remain so—get the idea?"

"It's a good trick whether you do it or not," Claire agreed.

"I'll do it—watch me. I've got a line on a couple nice boys [illegible] Knickerbocker families with nothing but. This beats the loveliest stuff little ways.

The High Life Revue prospered as the spring merged into hot summer. Claire and Una (Jellyjaw Nina occasionally except) back stage.

One afternoon she dropped in on them. She looked like a cream-haired angelic. She always did, for that matter.

"Good news," she said.

"How about the Vannesters?"

Una gathered out of the window and bit her lip. There was but one Vannester family and but one Vannester son—young Reginald Vannester, widely and favorably known as Peddie. And it happened that Una had met Peddie on Main [illegible] Nina. More than that, she had fallen so hard for him that I gave her a queer little [illegible] full pain which every girl will understand every time she thought of him.

Sorry for Una

"[illegible] now about the Vannesters," Claire asked, watching Una out of the corner of her eye and beginning to hate Nina and feel sorry for Una because Claire knew how much she was in love with Peddie and how hopeless it had seemed. Now with Nina after him, Una would not have a look-in.

"I've got him as good as got him, right up in front of the register," Nina boasted. "He has stalled writing letters to me. Every time he goes up to the swell North Shore to [illegible] or any other place I write to him and does he write to me? Not letters. I ask you!"

I'd love to see them," Una managed to say.

"Sorry, but his lawyers are never going to be able to say that I showed his letters about or was merely playing with him. They are all tied up with ribbons and put in a box with lavender. Imagine the box being opened in court!"

Nina chuckled.

"Only if I know my asparagus it won't go to court. Peddie will marry me and his folks will actually boast about my spotless character."

There was a brief silence.

"Well now about it, dearies, why not three cheers for me?"

"Three cheers, old dear," Una said suddenly, turning from the window and smiling. "Three big cheers, so long as you want to tie up to any chap sap enough to be forced into a marriage."

"Horseradish!" snapped Nina. "I'd be a fool not to play nice with a rich young husband and always be on the up and up with him."

Una was crying.

Impulsively Claire went up to her and gave her a hug.

"It's a helluva world, honey—but now and then there are bright spots. This Peddie lad strikes me as being pretty wise. What I saw of him with you gave me a hunch that he was all for you."

In the fall Vannester telephoned Una and asked her if she would go places with him.

She would and did.

But how about Nina?" Una asked him over the squab en casserole.

Got foolish over her first and then wise afterwards—awfully pretty little devil—but hard as nails. Ifish and scheming. Had her sized up."

Una Worried

"Listen, Peddie, people do such things as hire crooks to steal letters—all of your letters are kept in a little box with lavender tied up with ribbons. She—she's going to spring it in court if—if you don't marry her."

Una, let's dance, let's talk about something nice."

"But it is so serious, Peddie, and I want to help you."

"You can help me a whole lot. I've got to run up to Boston and be best man at a cousin's wedding, but a week from tonight, I'll see you."

Una tried to be merry, but she was greatly worried.

She was more worried when Nina dropped in to see her and Claire.

"Well, my rich boy friend is stubborn, no wedding bells, he told me—I should worry, he'll have to hand over one hundred thousand and pay my lawyer."

"The—the letters he wrote?" Una asked.

"And how! Just you wait! How the newspapers eat up push letters at a heart-balm trial—publicity and cash. I'll be starring next season, girls!"

When Peddie Vannester came back and met Una he said: "You promised to do anything to help me, sweetheart."

"I meant it—anything—within reason."

"Oh, this is within reason. I want to marry you!"

"But Peddie darling—I'll marry you, only there's going to be a lot of trouble, those silly letters you wrote to Nina—she's going to sue you."

"No, she isn't, dear. She's going to take the letters to her lawyer and when he starts to read them he won't—because I used a phoney ink that entirely disappears in a few weeks. She'll have a lot of blank paper and that's all."

So there was no breach of promise case and Peddie married Una and everybody was happy.

Except Nina.

How do I know this is true?

Because I am Una Mayfair—how dumb of me!—Una Vannester, if you please.

ABSOLUTELY. OLD HARTFORD PROBABLY MADE AS MANY MISTAKES AS ANYONE ELSE BUT IF YOU ASKED HIM ABOUT IT HE'D COME OUT LIKE A MAN AND ADMIT IT.
WHAT GETS ME IS THAT MOTHER IS SO AFRAID I'M SIMPLY WILD ABOUT HIM. IMAGINE. I'VE OFTEN THOUGHT—LATELY ANYHOW—THAT THE INTEREST I ONCE HAD IN HARTFORD MIGHT HAVE STARTED WITH SYMPATHY CAUSED BY MOTHERS CONTINUAL MISUNDERSTANDING OF HIM.

REST IN PEACE

CATSKILL—"Legs" Diamond, former bodyguard for Arnold Rothstein, has gone into retirement here on a farm. He has an armed bodyguard, searchlights on his house and a pack of police dogs on watch. Because he tips the barber $5, and has built a porch on an old lady's house, loaned his $4,000 limosine to farmers in distress, paid for funerals for the poor, and takes candy to sick children, "Legs" is popular with the natives. He has been arrested seventeen times but never jailed, and was questioned in connection with the "Hotsy Totsy" murders.

Back to the soil, where the clover grows,
And the cows and the constable yawn and doze,
Back in the hills where the grasshoppers sing,
And the cowbells tinkle and the churchbells ring—
Where the folks don't care and the folks don't know
And won't believe it when you tell them so—
That's the place for a guy like me
When the pavement's hotter'n a flapper's knee
And around each corner there's a mug or two Waiting with a slug that's addressed to you—
Waiting with a load of machine gun lead
Or a window sash to top you on the head!
Here I am and here I stay
If anything happens I'm far away—
Far away from the city dicks,
Sittin' pretty with the Catskill hicks.

WHY PITTSBURGH IS GREAT

Senate Can't Vote on MERITS of London Pact Without ALL Facts Before It

Senator McKellar asserts that only because Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, and Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, are supporting the humiliating London naval treaty, is its passage possible.

So the distinguished senators, members of the greatest deliberative body in the world, are not going to vote on the MERITS of the treaty.

They are not going to vote to uphold the United States naval authorities.

They are not going to vote for adequate naval defense for their country.

They are not going to vote to sustain the dignity of the nation.

They are not going to vote to preserve the fundamental constitutional rights of the Senate.

They are not going to vote patriotically.

They are not going to vote conscientiously.

They are not even going to vote intelligently.

They are going to vote to make a dictator out of the President.

They are going to vote to make a lot of lackeys of themselves, and to make the Senate a sort of backstairs club of White House servants and sycophants.

They are going to vote with the full facts refused them.

They are going to take orders and obey them.

They are going to accept a slap in the face and like it.

They are going to prove themselves unworthy of the confidence the fathers reposed in them.

They are going to show themselves unable to exercise the rights and powers which the Constitution confers upon them.

They are going to be false to their trust, false to themselves, false to the great record of their house, false to their country, false to the best interests of their people.

Why?

Because Senators Robinson and Reed were on the London Naval Commission.

Because Senators Robinson and Reed got preferment from the President.

That is what is called senatorial courtesy.

But, gentlemen of the Senate, there is little courtesy in the attitude of the public toward this gang spirit of yours.

The public thinks your so-called courtesy is merely lack of courage and lack of conviction.

They think it is over-consideration for your private interest and lack of loyalty to the public interest.

If you senators realize that the London naval treaty is unjust to the United States, humiliating to our people, discouraging to our defenders, dangerous in its limitations on our own freedom of action, and equally dangerous in its concessions to foreign nations;

If you realize that it does NOT reduce armaments nor decrease taxation, and that it has not advantages to compensate for its very obvious and dangerous discredits and disadvantages;

What possible excuse is there for you to sacrifice the welfare of your constituents and to jeopardize the future of the country which bore you and which has so signally honored you?

What explanation can you offer the people who trusted you and whose trust you are betraying, except the paltry pitiful reason that Senator Reed and Senator Robinson do not wish to appear to have come home empty-handed from their trip abroad?

What kind of a Republican leader is Senator Reed?

In the opinion of the public even Grundy would be a better leader, for he at least has a mind of his own and some independent American spirit, and some appreciation of the dignity and importance of the body to which he belongs.

He may have unduly served a faction of his fellow-Americans to the detriment of other factions, but at least he has not subordinated his own country to the interests of foreign countries, and surrendered the independence of his own nation in the most important matter which can ever come before a sovereign people—the defense of their own families and their own homes.

What kind of a Democratic leader is Senator Robinson, who sacrifices not only his own country but his party to save and salve his own petty vanity?

What kind of a leader is it who is himself led by the nose by the fiscal agents of foreign powers, and whose chief adviser and supporter is a Wall street speculator?

It is left to Senator Robinson to verify and confirm Gen. Grant's historic prediction that no matter how foolish the Republicans may ever be, a Democrat will always be found who will excel them in folly; no matter how black the prospects of the Republican party may become, some Democrat can always be found who will make the prospects of his own party blacker and baser.

The citizens of this country need a new set of public officials. They need a new set of Republicans and a new set of Democrats.

They need a Senate which will be conscious of its own dignity and appreciative of the dignity of the nation.

They need representatives generally who are the servants of the public, and not the agents of private interests.

They need sturdy patriots and not time-serving politicians.

And, above all, they need true Americans, loyal to their country and to their fellow-Americans, realizing their country's greatness, glorying in its achievements, rejoicing in its independence, proud of its splendid history and faithful to the precepts and principles of the far-seeing founders of the republic.

It is time that those who love and honor and understand our country and our people should unite to keep the stream of our nation's life strong and pure, and our politics uncontaminated by foreign influence and interference.

Let us have America for Americans, and NONE BUT AMERICANS FOR AMERICA.

Commission Can Save $2,000,000 for City

Producers and consumers of steel today started their fight for short haul freight rates which will make it possible for this district to hold its place in the country's competitive markets.

The Chamber of Commerce, working with 49 individual organizations, is appearing before the Interstate Commerce Commission to protest against increases in the charge for hauling steel between plants in this district. In many cases the rates have been more than doubled.

It has been estimated that a burden of $2,000,000 in extra freight charges will be placed on Pittsburgh's industry. It is impossible to make any estimate of the loss which Pittsburgh business may suffer from the difficulty of competing with Cleveland and Chicago manufacturers who have not been placed under the same rate disadvantages.

The rates involved in the case cover shipments only within a short distance from the city. No interstate freight problem is involved. It is within the power of the commission to suspend the new rates and to restore the older rate system under which this district has been able to compete on a fair basis. The commission will use this power if it is truely interested in the welfare of Pennsylvania.

Abroad With A New Yorker

PARIS: As perfume is one of my lesser failings, all the phases of its making are interesting to me. Every time I come to Paris I go on a perfume jag, wandering about from shop to shop to be all squirted up with samples. Nothing pleases a perfume sales person so much as a customer who will try out new scents.

They sneak up on you with atomizers and—psst, psst, psst—before you know it you are fairly drenched with some exotic odor. I have come home from one of these excursions to have the dog crawl under the bed and refuse to come out. Dogs hate perfume.

Indeed, upon one occasion I arrived looking as though I had been ducked in a flour barrel. It developed that some enthusiast had slipped up on my blind side and deluged me with sachet powder. I always sweep into a perfume parlor and creep out. They pass out so many samples I seldom buy.

Perfume making is the largest single industry in France. Its richest men are perfumers. M. Coty, for instance, is a multi-millionaire, owner of newspapers, race track stables and rare paintings. Houbigant, Caron, Lubin are similarly in control of huge and growing fortunes.

Most of the essences for perfume making come from the flower country near de Grasse in Southern France. There are many manufacturers who are interested solely in the artistic side of the business and not its commercial rewards. They do not offer their output for general sale—just for connoisseurs.

There is a perfume known to the "perfume-minded" as No. 3. Many establishments offer a No. 3. But "the" No. 3 is only offered to an extremely select and limited clientele. Its secret formula is said to have been in the possession of one aristocratic French family for 150 years.

Perfume prices have gone beyond all bounds of reason, due largely to the heavy sale in America. Most French perfumes in the past 10 years have increased in price more than 2000 per cent, although the rising cost of production has not reached 100 per cent. Perfume making is now another racket.

Every time I come through the hotel lobby the frock-coated brigands seem to pop from the woodwork and fly out of trap doors to line up and bow. I wish I had the courage some day to cry: "Keep your seats, Messieurs. I'm not tipping this week."

I have never before been so completely burnt out with French servants as on this trip. Always the servant class here has wheedled the visitor, but there was an appeal in their complete obeisance. And they have a studied insolence for those who do not respond to their wheedling. The amount one has to tip here is no larger than in America, but at home we are not blungeoned into it.

Paris is packed with pouting wives. I have run across four with whom I am acquainted. They leave their husbands suddenly in a huff over some real or fancied pique and come here determined to sever the bands. But they soon cool off and after awhile their lives become a waiting game—a game of waiting for hubby's cable to "come on home and be yourself."

The flavor of the old time bistro exists only around the Central markets from midnight until sunup. They are rowdy and surly—the most insulting places getting the biggest trade. Each place is aswirl with husky blue-bloused porters, shivering alcoholic wrecks, screeching viragos and the polite slummers in evening dress who always wind up a night of revelry at "Les Halles."

The term "bistro" is really a misnomer. In the original form it means one of those tiny stand-up places with a circular bar and a round table or two out on the sidewalk. Each bistro, like the old American saloon, is a market place for votes. France is completely dominated politically by the liquor interests.

WILKINS EXPEDITION

By Archibald Henderson

A phrase with a deep and romantic connotation in the history of exploration is "the search for the Northwest passage." Think of all the ambition, struggle, skill and ingenuity which have been expended in the fruitless attempt. Think of all the wealth which has been poured out for the purpose of finding such a trade route! Hundreds of lives, millions of dollars.

Sir Hubert Wilkins is now actively preparing to make a voyage of discovery through the Arctic Ocean in a submarine. The primary object of this unique and extremely hazardous exploration is to find, if possible, a short commercial route from one side of the Arctic to the other. The results, if the expedition proves successful, will be of incalculable importance—financially and economically—to world commerce. Consider what it will mean to open up regular trade routes through the ice-locked waters of the North Polar Sea!

In a preliminary announcement regarding his extraordinary project, Sir Hubert Wilkins says:

"Statesmen and business men have for years sought a shorter sea route from Europe to Asia, from Alaska to Florida, from Seattle to New York. It is very much shorter from Seattle to New York via the Behring Straits than it is via the Panama Canal. But the search for a navigable northwest or northeast passage has so far been in vain . . .

"Men in ships have circumnavigated the Arctic Ocean, yet a practical route for surface vessels has not been found. The potential value of a northwest passage is still as great as it ever was, but those of us who know the Arctic do not believe that a surface route is practical."

The submarine in which Sir Hubert Wilkins and his party will travel is to be equipped with especial apparatus for making scientific research. The expedition is not designed for the unique purpose of discovering a short under-ice route through the Arctic waters. Deep sea soundings will be made, not only by plumb lines, but by means of instruments which determine the depths by sound. Manual sounding machines on board will also serve to prevent the submarine from running aground in shallow water.

By means of a pendulum apparatus, the specific gravity of the earth's crust in the polar region may be determined. In the regions north of the magnetic pole, valuable information regarding magnetic influences may be secured through the use of a gyro-compass.

Observations of great scientific value will be made concerning the various currents in the Arctic Ocean, their direction, temperature and velocity. The submarine will have to come to the surface frequently, and to do so will cut open the overhead ice crust by means of heavy steel drills, or, if necessary, by blowing open the ice crust by means of explosives.

ALWAYS WELCOME

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

We are eagerly awaiting the return of the world's greatest sportsman, Sir Thomas Lipton.

He is a great host, a famous story teller, a baron, a merchant prince and a yachtman.

"Bugs" Baer

The only mistake he ever made was in building his Shamrocks one at a time.

He is the author of that famous line, "It is better to have lufted and lost than never to have lufted at all."

It has been some years since Tommy finished sideways in an international cup race. But science and the movies have done Thomas a great favor in the last 15 years.

When Tommy lost before, he lost. And that was those. Now, when Sir Lipton loses, he can go to a news reel theater the next day and see what the race looked like.

We were on Lord Dewar's houseboat during the last cup races. Present were many other famous journalists, Ring Lardner was there in a body, Damon Runyon, Will McGeehan, Grantland Rice, Bozeman Bulger and Westbrook Pegler.

Westbrook Pegler is a name that sounds like a man wading a creek on stilts. Pegler is a good sports writer but he has no respect for authority and no reverence for gray hairs, especially in soup.

We were all gathered around like Indians waiting to jump the reservation when Sir T. cracked open with a story, saying: "Stop me if you've heard this," which is not the remark to make during the radish season.

"Well, I've heard that story before," said Pegler.

Lord Dewar admonished Peg with a wave of an ancestral forefinger.

"No gentleman has ever heard a story twice," he said.

"No gentleman ever tells a story twice," said Peg.

And those were them. We marched off the yacht four abreast, reading from left to right. Sir Thomas looked almost as hurt as if a cup of his own tea had exploded in the Prince of Wales' face.

We were never invited back for the pleasure of seeing Sir T. lose another race. And we will not be invited this time.

And what makes us all the more morose and regretful was that the incident did not occur on Lord Dewar's little yacht.

It was the big one with the outboard motor.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

The question naturally arises, do such phenomena exist elsewhere outside this little group of patchwork plants? In animals, is the whole of heredity due to the nuclei of the sperm and eggs? Does the rest of the egg protoplasm (cytoplasm) play no part at all?

We cannot answer with an absolute No. Recent research has produced instances that seem to establish cytoplasmic inheritance in certain types, but the weight of the evidence seems to be that these instances are very exceptional and that the bulk of racial qualities in all the metazoa at least are transmitted by genes according to the Mendelian principle.

H. G. Wells

We must remember that in the simplest living things, the bacteria, there is no definite nucleus and no sexual process, so there cannot possibly be Mendelian heredity.

Here then is a very large group of organisms, in which apparently inheritance must be non-nuclear. It is possible to look upon the cromosome mechanism as a later evolution, a thing added to this non-nuclear inheritance, co-existing in the higher animals and plants with a more ancient mode.

There are authorities (of whom the late Jacques Loeb was the most distinguished exponent) who hold this view. They believe in two different methods of inheritance—the "species" method and the "variety" method; the former, they suppose, is something more basal, co-existing with the latter, and presumably carried on the cytoplasm.

According to these dualists it is usually by this former, the cytoplasmic or "species" method, that the race evolves.

A similar dualism, it may be, presents itself in the development of the embryo from the fertilized egg. It is probable that the nuclei do not begin to play a part in shaping the growing embryo until the first stage in development is over and the rough form of the future person is already planned out.

The egg-plasm forms itself into a crude embryo and then the genes take control and put in the details. This is essentially the former view put rather differently; the egg-plasm is the basal formative agent, the designer and builder of the future organism, while the genes are merely painters and decorators, putting finishing touches to the work.

Now let us consider what objections can be raised to this dualism.

Firstly, in the matter of inheritance in the bacteria. It is perfectly true that bacteria have no definite nuclei. But it has been proved that they have nuclear material, the same substance of which the chromosomes of higher organisms are composed, scattered through their tiny bodies.

May it not be that this scattered chromatin is the only hereditary material that they possess?

Presumably when the first bacteria evolved upwards into creatures with nuclei, an elaboration that we must stress as the greatest stride ever made in the evolutionary march, they did so by a process of concentration—by collecting all this scattered stuff together into a single central blob. If this process was at all complete, no hereditary material would be left the cytoplasm outside the nucleus.

For the terms "species" and "variety" inheritance, there is indeed little justification. Either they express a bad idea or they seek to express a new idea badly. They suggest a revival of the old belief in species as something qualitatively distinct from variety, which is unsound.

Whenever we find fully fertile hybrids between species, the result follows the Mendelian principles. And in all the careful breeding work there has been done on animals and plants, except for the patchwork plants that we have already considered, there is hardly a case which is demonstrably non-Mendelian.

Everything points to the predominant importance of Mendelian heredity in the great majority of living forms today, whatever vestiges of cytoplasmic reproduction may still linger in obscurity.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Sensitive? Always being hurt? Life just one blue spell after another? Probably. Sensitiveness is one of our commonest and cussedest forms of conceit.

Does that give you a start? Maybe you've been thinking that you have a monopoly on sensitiveness—that no one else suffers quite as you do. That your idea about yourself? Then get over it. You're just one out of millions, partner. There's nothing unique about your trouble and there's nothing obscure about its cause or cure.

Sensitiveness is not a sign of a great or rare mind. It is the sign of a very tight, immature mind—a baby mind—a mind that has never opened to the significance of the life about it.

Why are you sensitive? You're sensitive because mentally you're all out of focus. You center everything on yourself. You do not see other lives, other problems. You think you do. You discuss other people. You may even fuss a great deal over other people. But always you are thinking of yourself—and of how various acts affect yourself.

What's the cure for sensitiveness? Open your mind. Look beyond yourself. Grow some perspective. Learn to be impersonal—as impersonal about people as you are about climate.

The climate is a lively and often a very disagreeable factor in your life. It can cause you quite as much discomfort as the most malicious person. But you keep that discomfort on the surface—you don't let it get inside—you don't "take it to heart." Unless you are a most childish person, you don't get mad at thunderstorms or hurt by frosts or insulted by hot days.

But snubs and spite and loneliness and loss and disappointment also happen to every one—they, too, are part of all life. They are as universal as climate.

God isn't picking on you—people aren't conspiring against you—people are just HAPPENING as climate is happening, and you're in the midst of it all. And your feelings are getting frightfully hurt because you take their actions personally. Stop thinking of your feelings for a while and think of the other fellow's. He may seem to aim at you, but he really isn't—any more than the fog is aimed at you. He's just functioning, and that's his business, DON'T MAKE IT YOURS. And if you do get bruised—as is inevitable with even the best balanced natures—keep your bruises outside, as you'd keep sunburn or frostbite. Don't let them get through to your soul.

Get a new slant—learn that this isn't a one man show—move with the parade and realize that whatever is happening to you is also happening to the rest of the marchers—there's the cure for sensitiveness. That is, if you really want to be cured. Some don't.
